Communist Pledge Rule Is Reversed By NLRB

Board Holds Top AFL, CIO Officials' Failure to File Won't Affect Unions

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

By a 4-to-1 decision, the National Labor Relations Board yesterday declared that top officials of the CIO and AFL are not required to disavow Communist affiliation.

Promptly after the announcement of the ruling, NLRB General Counsel Robert N. Denham philosophically — almost cheerfully — bowed to it. Hitherto, he had vehemently defended a contrary interpretation of the Taft-Hartley law.

The decision, and Denham's declaration that he would conform to it, appeared to make it fairly certain that the noisy controvery over the Communist affidavit issue is at an end. It is unlikely that anyone will seriously challenge the board's ruling.

Resistance Widespread

The hullabaloo began last August when Denham, in an interview, declared that he read the Taft-Hartley Act to mean that all union officers, including members of the controling bodies of the CIO and AFL, were obliged to execute an affidavit disavowing any membership in or sympathy with the Communist Party.

Until they did, he said, none of the union organizations affiliated with the parent bodies could qualify as eligible for help from the NLRB or the new labor law.

Resistance to signing the affidavits was widespread. The issue came to a head in the AFL executive council, where Vice President John L. Lewis took an adamant stand. As long as he held to it, and remained on the executive council, no component AFL union could have recourse to the board, under Denham's ruling.

Denham issued a rule to this effect.

Ruling on WARL Appeal

Acting under it, the Baltimore regional office of the NLRB last week dismissed a petition of the AFL International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers for a collective bargaining election among technical employes of Station WARL at Arlington.

Officers of the local union and of the IBEW had signed the affidavits; the AFL executive council had not.

The union appealed the decison to the full board, and yesterday's ruling was their answer. The order reversed the Baltimore office and prescribed that the election be held.

Board chairman Paul M. Herzog, joined by members John M. Houston and James J. Reynolds, jr., issued the majority opinion. Concurring in it, but also adding

80 Ballet Dancers Escape in Train Wreck Killing 3

Fort Wayne, Ind., Oct. 7 (U.P.)—A Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train, carrying 80 members of the famed Ballet Russe troupe among its travelers, plowed into a heavy road construction machine and was derailed today, killing three persons and injuring 12 others.

A railroad spokesman said none of the members of the ballet troupe was injured.

C. A. Perry, 53, Fort Wayne, the engineer, and W. R. Foshee, 32, Indianapolis, a special duty engineer who was riding in the cab, died in the wreckage. Lyle M. Martin, Fort Wayne, a fireman, died at a hospital. Dennis Gerlock, Fort Wayne, a "deadheading" fireman, was injured critically.

Three coaches, a mail car and the locomotive of the six-car train were derailed. Two of the coaches overturned into a shallow ravine. The locomotive jumped the tracks, swung completely around and nosed into the earth.

Shakeup in Britain

Attlee 'Demotes' Shinwell, Drops Five From Government

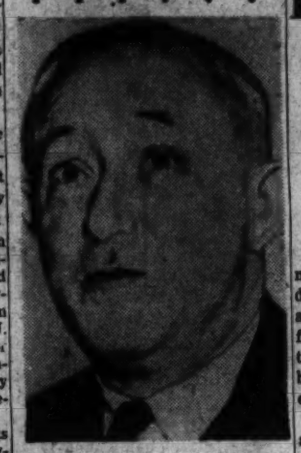
London, Oct. 7 (AP).—Prime Minister Attlee tonight demoted his much criticized fuel minister, Emanuel Shinwell, and dropped five other senior members from the government.

The London Star called the large scale shakeup a slight "movement to the right," but government informants denied there was any ideological significance in the shift.

The official announcement from No. 10 Downing st., official residence of the Prime Minister, said the five ministers who were leaving the government were John Wilmot, Minister of Supply; F. J. Bellenger, Secretary of State for War; J. B. Hynd, Minister of Pensions; Lord Inman, Lord Privy Seal, and Joseph Westwood, Secretary of State for Scotland.

The shake-up, involving 30 posts within the government and bringing in several young Laborites as junior executives to infuse "new blood" into the direction of affairs at a time of economic crisis, did not touch Health Minister Aneurin Bevan, a leader of the Labor Party's left wing, nor Food Minister John Strachey, another left-winger.

Sir Stafford Cripps, named to a new post as economics minister last week as the first step in the reorganization, remained the only one of the government's "big four" affected by the changed line-up.



EMANUEL SHINWELL

Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton and Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison all retained their posts.

Counting the resignation of Arthur Greenwood as Minister Without Portfolio last week the shakeup has involved the dropping of six senior and six junior ministers.

Rep. Thomas Demands Hemisphere Action Against Communists

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Joint action by legislative leaders of all Western Hemisphere countries to combat the new international organization set up by Russia and her European satellites was proposed yesterday by Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.).

In a letter to House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Thomas, as chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, proposed that the Legislatures of this hemisphere be invited to send delegates to a conference to discuss a "uniform program of legislation and exposure designed to cope with the Communist danger."

Thomas said the Belgrade manifesto announcing the new Communist organization dedicated to the defeat of United States proposals "should serve as a blunt reminder to the freedom-loving people of the world that the revolutionary aims and purposes of the communists are still as diabolical and destructive to democracy as they were in 1919, when the Communist International was first established for the purpose of bringing about a world revolution."

Asks for Committee

Thomas asked Speaker Martin to designate certain members of the House to initiate arrangements for such a conference. He did not, in his letter, make any reference to the possibility of joint action with the Senate.

Martin was in Los Angeles last night where he is making a speech as a part of his swing through the West, and had not up to a late hour received the letter.

"This challenge from the left, which has received its impetus from the postwar chaotic condition in Europe, must be met and defeated," Thomas declared in his letter.

Thomas said that as a member of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, he always had been conscious of the "true and unceasing efforts of the Comintern to bring about world upheaval,

Foreign Office Terms Step 'Deterioration' In World Relations

London, Oct. 7 (AP).—The British Foreign Office declared today that Europe's Communist leadership had officially revived the Comintern and said the step represented "a clear deterioration of the international situation."

The Foreign Office confirmed at the same time that the Soviet Union had accepted November 25 as the date for the Big Four foreign ministers to resume their work on peace treaties for Germany and Austria—a task already complicated by the mounting differences between Russia and the western powers.

The Soviet acceptance was interpreted here as evidence of Russian willingness to continue to negotiate with the western powers on the treaties, and provided a ray of hope in an otherwise dismal picture. The United States and France had indicated willingness earlier to accept the November 25 date, which was suggested by Britain.

Russians Agree Twice

The Russians agreed also on November 6 as the meeting date for the deputy foreign ministers who will draw up the agenda for the November 25 session.

British policymakers studied for 24 hours before issuing their assessment of the Communist declaration attacking "Anglo-American imperialism" and announcing the creation of an "information bureau" in Yugoslavia to coordinate activities of Communists in nine countries of Europe, including Italy and France.

A Foreign Office spokesman said the Communist move was "the official resuscitation of the Comintern," the organization founded by Lenin in 1919 to promote a world revolution by the proletariat.

It was dissolved officially in 1943 in Moscow, and Prime Minister Stalin at the time said the decision heralded an era of greater cooperation between the forces united in opposition to the Hitler-led Axis.

The Foreign Office spokesman pointed to the presence at the secret meeting in Poland, where the

Peace Closer, Eventually We Will Get It, Truman Says

President Truman, in a surprise visit to the First Baptist Church last night, said that a fair and just peace is "getting closer all the time, and we will eventually get it."

The Chief Executive called for the support of "all those organizations that stand for God and a moral code in the world."

Mr. Truman, accompanied only by Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, with whom he attended school and church in Independence, Mo., as a boy, gave an extemporaneous, two-minute talk at services commemorating the transfer of the Baptist World Alliance from London to Washington.

The President spoke at the invitation of Dr. Edward H. Pruden, pastor of the church at 16th and O sts. nw. which was packed to its full capacity of 1000 persons.

After welcoming four baptist ministers from Australia, Canada, Denmark and Norway, he said:

"We hope that you will take to heart the prayer in the invocation for a just and honorable peace.

"That's all the United States Government has ever wanted. That's all it has ever asked for, and we are using every means at our command to get the proper moral support for that fair and just peace."

His remarks were followed by loud applause.

Dr. C. Oscar Johnson, president of the Baptist World Alliance and also a native of Missouri, in his address, said that Christian spirituality must follow in the wake of economic relief to the starving peoples of the world.

Suspected Reds' Pals Face Firing

State Dept. Bars Associates of Any Even Thought To Be Communists

(Text of Order, Page 5)

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

The State Department yesterday made public its security code under which disloyal and questionable employes can be summarily fired. The document is perhaps the most sweeping and drastice to be adapted in peacetime by a Federal agency.

Briefly, the department may fire any employe who is deemed to be a "security risk," and any doubt as to his loyalty is decided against him.

Not only will an employe be fired who is a Communist or fellow traveler, but also anyone who has "habitual or close association" with persons believed to be Communists. In addition, employes who are irresponsible in handling their financial affairs and confidential information, drunks, sex perverts, and former criminals can be fired as security risks. In other words, anyone who has a weak character and who could be used by a foreign agent.

A spokesman said the code had been drawn up to protect this country since the department has become "a vital target" for spies and subversives.

The code, he said, was based on a law—known as the McCarran rider—that gives the Secretary of State absolute discretion in the firing of any employe in the national interest.

A personnel security board was established several months ago to pass on loyalty and security cases. It has forced the dismissals of 13 employes as bad risks, but three were allowed to resign without prejudice after reconsideration of their cases.

However, a number of other employes were permitted to resign while they were under investigation, and the investigation of other employes is under way. The State spokesman said the great mass of the department's employes are loyal beyond any doubt and he implied that fewer than 100 cases had been considered by the personnel board.

The State spokesman made it clear that "loyalty" and "security risk" were two separate and distinct charges that shouldn't be confused. He emphasized that no person who is believed to be a bad security risk because of some peculiar personal habit would be fired on a loyalty charge.

The department will cooperate with the President's Federal worker loyalty program despite the fact its security code is far more drastic. Its employes will be fingerprinted and checked by the FBI, and new employes will be checked by the Civil Service.

State employes accused of disloyalty will have the right of appeal to the personnel security board, and also to the central review board to be set up within the Civil Service Commission. However, the department will retain the right to override recommendations of these boards.

Security risk cases involving personal habits and weak characters will not be appealable to the Civil Service review board since loyalty won't be involved.

2 D. C. Heads Favor 2% Sales Tax

Commissioners J. R. Young, Mason Also for Repeal Of Income Levy

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

Two of the three District Commissioners said yesterday they personally favor adoption of a 2 per cent sales tax and repeal of the present "inequitable" personal income tax.

This would net the District eight million dollars additional revenue.

The proposal was made yesterday by Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler in his report on anticipated income for the year beginning next July 1.

Fowler also recommended that the D. C. National Guard and its new $2,700,000 armory be transferred to the Federal Government.

Hearing Tomorrow

Official action on Fowler's recommendations was deferred by the Commissioners until after a public hearing at 10 a. m. tomorrow in the District Building board room on city department heads' budget requests for fiscal 1949.

Commissioners John Russell Young and Guy Mason said, however, that they personally would "go along" with Fowler's tax recommendations. Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young said he was "not taking any stand" until he had more facts and figures.

Sees 12 Million Intake

Fowler estimated a 2 per cent sales tax, with exemptions for food and other specified items, would bring in up to 12 million dollars.

"A little over four million" would be lost, he predicted, if the personal income tax were repealed.

Assessor Edward A. Dent said last night that less than half of the persons who actually live in Washington are subject to personal income tax under the present law.

"I believe," Fowler declared, "that over a number of years a sales tax would meet our requirements without the necessity of borrowing."

Commissioners Mason and J. R. Young said they doubted whether a sales tax would meet all of the District's needs but indicated they would seek a loan "only as a last resort."

Fowler said the expected income for fiscal 1949 would fall more than 48 million dollars short of what would be needed if the commissioners approved the 144 million budget requests in their entirety.

Sees $100 Million Budget

"But nobody is figuring on a budget of that proportion," he said. The commissioners will probably pare the final budget to approximately 100 million, he indicated, estimating the probable deficit of four million dollars.

Fowler said he expected about 96 million dollars revenue during the year beginning next July 1—$64,500,000 from the general fund; $16,147,000 from the highway and water funds; 11 million dollars from Federal Government payments; $3,102,545 from sale of securities; and $1,250,000 from previous years' unexpended balance.

Fowler said he recommended turning the National Guard and its armory over to the Federal Government because "the Guard appears to me to be wholly an adjunct of the United States Government, purely Federal in all of its characteristics."

This does not mean, he asserted, that the District has given up its efforts to obtain income received

Addresses D. C. Physicians

Msgr. Sheen Calls Psychiatry 'Very, Very Valid Procedure'

By N. S. Hasseltine
Post Reporter

Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen, eminent Catholic University professor of philosophy, yesterday stated public approval of psychiatry which he once reportedly condemned as irreligious.

Speaking before physicians attending the eighteenth annual scientific assembly of the District Medical Society, he termed practice of psychoanalysis "a very, very valid procedure."

The praise was given without spoken reference to his controversial sermon last Lent at St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York. News accounts of that talk, belatedly refuted by Msgr. Sheen, alarmed Catholics who interpreted the reports as official church disapproval of psychiatry.

Advances in psychiatry, Dr. Sheen told the physicians here yesterday, "offer proof that man is not just material, that there is something immaterial in him, and that there is a conflict between the two."

He spoke before a luncheon gathering of the Georgetown University Medical Alumni Association which was opened, at his invitation after the meal, to all physicians attending the scientific assembly.

"Psychoanalysis," declared Dr. Sheen, "is a kind of a fringe on the great old Christian principle of examination of the conscience. We've always known this relationship of body and mind."

One of the principal benefits of modern psychiatry, he said, is "its rediscovery" of conflict within man.

"Man is not naturally good and progressive," he declared, citing the everreducing lapse of peaceful years between major wars.

He exempted "unique, erotic interpretations" of psychiatrists from his praise for the profession, and condemned the materialism of Freudian philosophy.

Quoting biblical interpretation of the body as "the temple of the soul," Dr. Sheen urged the physicians to bring to their work "the inspiration of faith."

Last July, Dr. Frank J. Curran, nationally known psychiatrist, resigned his professional connection with St. Vincent's Hospital, New York, in the controversy following Dr. Sheen's earlier public talk on psychiatry. He later became assistant professor of child psychiatry at the University of Virginia.

It was Dr. Curran's resignation that made public the alarm among Catholics undergoing psychiatric care over Dr. Sheen's reported attitude toward the profession.

After Dr. Curran's announcement of resignation, Dr. Sheen declared he had been "misquoted" in his Lenten talk and that his condemnation referred only to Freudian psychoanalysis, which he termed "materialism, hedonism, infantilism and eroticism."

Scandinavians, Latins Hit Aggressor Charge, Urge Neutral Inquiry

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 7.—For the first time since it raised the Greek issue in this Assembly, the United States ran into opposition from friendly non-Soviet sources today.

The opposition came from several small nations which showed that they did not want to be drawn into the increasingly bitter Soviet-American diplomatic conflict here.

They indicated that they did not want to vote for the stiff American resolution which is now before the Assembly's political committee. This resolution calls for straight condemnation of Greece's northern neighbors and for the creation of an Assembly commission to watch the border situation from Salonika.

Those who spoke up against the American plan were Sweden, Norway, Ethiopia and Cuba—too few to be regarded as an Assembly "revolt" or as a real cross-section, but too wide in their geographical range to give much comfort to the American delegation. It remains to be seen how many other small countries wil join them when the American resolution comes up for a vote.

Latin Americans Silent

The American delegation is still determined to roll up a heavy majority, if it can, for both parts of its resodution. It knows it can count on the 100 per cent support of the British Commonwealth, Holland, and Belgium, the Philippines and perhaps some of the Latin-American countries.

It knows, too, that it will get the 100 per cent hostility of the six countries of the Soviet group, plus the abstention or hostility of the six Arab countries which are angling for Soviet support on the Palestine issues. The Latin-Americans have not been at all articulate on the Greek issue here, and some of them would like to avoid a condemnation of anyone.

In the light of this tentative line-up, and of the speeches and counter proposals made today, it

Meat Served On Many D. C. Area Tables

50 GSI Units Observe Plan; Hotel Group Votes to Cooperate

Meat dishes were in abundance on many tables of Greater Washington area homes, restaurants and hotels yesterday as the Nation began celebration of meatless Tuesday.

While almost all restaurants and hotels checked were serving a broad variety of meat items, the 50 units of Government Services, Inc., which serve 100,000 daily, obeyed the one-day Tuesday edict. Pentagon outlets, feeding 22,000, did likewise.

Many eating place managers declared they were awaiting a "clear-cut" directive from the Washington Restaurant Association on whether to observe the President's recommendations.

The executive secretary of the association, Robert J. Wilson, said his group, which includes 90 per cent of the eating places in the area, was "doing the best they could" and would "cooperate with the food saving program as near as possible."

Public Blamed for Failure

He admitted that no specific recommendation on meatless Tuesday has been sent by the association to its members, but said one would be mailed shortly. Wilson blamed much of the failure to observe food saving suggestions on the general public, which he said has thus far not been cooperating in the program.

Another cause of the failure to cooperate was the suddenness of the national program. Wilson said many eating places had heavy supplies of meat on hand and printed menus prepared weeks in advance which had to be followed.

The president of the association, Watson B. Rulon of Hogate's Sea Food Restaurant, is following the national suggestions in his eating place and has printed table cards advising the guests of the recommendations.

Government Services, Inc., observed the meatless recommendation with only one exception. The exception was an a la carte offering of liver, which GSI officials said had been ordered early and could

Suit Filed to Test District's Segregated School System

(School Board's report emphasizes problems of overcrowding. Legal ruling permits board to pay out-of-town schooling. Page B-1)

A suit to test the legality of the District's segregated school system was filed yesterday in District Court.

The suit was filed by the law firm of Austin L. Fickling and Leon A. Ransom in behalf of Marguerite Daisy Carr, 4233 Clay st. ne., a 13-year-old Negro girl attending the Browne Junior High School, 24th st. and Benning rd. ne., and other part-time students at the school.

Named as defendants were Dr. Hobart M. Corning, superintendent of schools, and the nine members of the Board of Education.

Last month Ransom filed a similar suit in Virginia to test whether an Arlington Negro girl can be legally barred from attending a white high school.

The suit filed yesterday charges that students at the Browne school attend classes 4½ hours a day when by law the Board of Education is required to provide a full-time session of not less than six hours.

The suit states that Eliot Junior High School, 18th and B sts. ne., offers fulltime instruction but that Marguerite has been refused a transfer on the grounds that Eliot is a school for white children.

As a result of the segregation policy, the suit states, Marguerite must attend school part time and "valuable years of her education life are being wasted."

Overcrowding at Browne School will be relieved, Corning said, with construction of Miller Junior High School. Bids for this school, to be built at 49th st. and Washington pl. ne., are to be advertised this month.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Chester H. Gray said the segregated school policy is based on a Congressional Act of 1878 which impowers the board of education to "provide suitable and convenient houses or rooms for holding school for colored children."

Food-Saving Need to July Is Forecast By Anderson

World Must Await Next Harvest, Says Secretary; Stockmen Asked to Save Grain

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

It will be necessary for Americans to continue to "waste less food" until next June or July, Secretary of Agriculture Anderson warned last night.

The Secretary declared that the critical situation of the world's food supply will not be eased until the next harvest is under way.

To help in the national drive to conserve food, Anderson's department is launching a campaign to induce farmers to cut down on feeding grain to livestock.

Other types of feed, are being suggested, and the marketing of animals at lighter weights are being urged as a conservation measure.

Meatless Day Observed

Yesterday saw the whole country take part in the first meatless day since the First World War. Tomorrow will see the first poultryless and eggless day under the program put forward by the Citizens Food Committee and proclaimed to the people by President Truman Sunday night.

Today the Nation's distillers will meet here to decide what to do about a 60-day shutdown, asked Sunday by the President, in order to save grain.

Last week part of the whisky-making industry, the Distilled Spirits Institute, representing about 60 per cent of the distillers, agreed to cut in half their use of grain. This offer was followed at once by another large segment, the Publicker Industries of Philadelphia, that urged the industry to shut down completely.

Friday the Nation's brewers will meet in Chicago to determine what they may do to save grain. Many brewers yesterday were asking that they be given assurance that grain shipped to Europe not be brewed into beer and shipped back here before agreeing to cutting domestic manufacture.

Plea to Farmers

Anderson is enlisting the support of farm organizations and farm advisory groups to cut down the feeding of grain. The department will seek to have the farmers feed more grass, hay and other feeds in place of grain; to market animals at lighter weights.

Farm experts hope to carry on the program without cutting down on the livestock numbers so that severe shortages next year will not result.

Asked to cooperate in the work are the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Farmers Union, the National Grange and

U. N. Flag Is Born: One White World On a Blue Ground

By a Post Reporter
Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 7.—A new flag was born today.

Its parents are 57 countries, but it will fly higher than the flags of these countries when they meet as the United Nations.

The flag will be used by United Nations commissions or groups as identification of neutrality and impartiality in all parts of the world where they travel in efforts to remedy the world's ills.

The legal committee voted its adoption today on the request of Secretary General Trygve Lie, who said it was most needed by the Security Council's commission which, until recently, was investigating Greek guerilla warfare. A two-third majority of the General Assembly must also give its stamp of approval before it flies officially.

100 Guerillas Dead, 800 Surrounded in Drive, Army Reports

Athens, Oct. 7 (U.P.).—Greek army units have launched an offensive against an estimated 5000 guerillas in the Lamia area of eastern Greece, and have surrounded 800 near Eurutania, southwest of Lamia, progovernment press dispatches said today.

Large-scale battles were reported in the mountain villages of Dereli and Fourna. At Dereli, army units routed a guerilla force said to have been led by "Gen. Markos" Vafthiades, chief of the guerillas, who abandoned "considerable quantities of war materials."

One hundred guerillas were said to have been killed or wounded at Fourna. Government casualities were listed as 10 killed and 4 wounded.

Dwight Griswold, head of the American aid mission, announced a one-million-dollar plan to make five airfields in battle-torn northern Greece suitable for use this winter.

Improvements will be made at Larissa, Kavalla, Kozani, Salonika and Jannina, Griswold said. In addition, Hassani airport in Athens will be repaired and improved.

Premier Themistocles Sophoulis announced that the guerilla amnesty offer scheduled to expire October 15 would be extended for an unspecified period.

Dispatches from Kalamai, on the southern tip of Greece, reported that two earth tremors, the most violent in 30 years damaged several buildings and many homes last night.

Seven nearby villages also were said to have been damaged, but a full report was not available because telephone and telegraph lines were disrupted.

Greeks Plan To Supplant Army's Chief

By M. W. Fodor
Post Reporter

Athens, Greece, Oct. 7 (By Cable).—General Ventiris, chief of staff of the Greek army, will be replaced probably by General Kalperopoulos, in a move to liberalize the army and to bring about greater efficiency, I was informed today.

This move is considered to be of first importance in the business of bringing about internal unity in Greece.

General Ventiris, politically ambitious and a representative of the Populist or Royalist Party, became more and more unpopular through his failure to bring about an end to civil war.

Premier Sophoulis has insisted to British and American military commissions that he could not operate successfully with an army whose leadership was almost 100 per cent Populist.

Putt, deputy chief of the engineering division of the Air Material Command, addresed the aircraft manufacturing section of the National Safety Congress here.

He said that with unlimited funds and resources, the Air Force believed the 5000-mile missle could become a reality within five years, but at a normal peacetime research pace the time probably should be extended to 15 years.

Small Nations Fire Criticism At American Balkan Plan

is by no means sure that the United States can get amajority for the condemnation of Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania. As for the setting up of an Assembly commission in Greece, it is not all certain at the moment that a majority of the Assembly would be willing to have the kind of commission the United States wants.

U. S. Opposes Swedish Plan

1. Sweden, through her Foreign Minister Osten Unden, argued that "the internal struggle in Greece" was directly related to the friction between Greece and her northern neighbors. Therefore, he said, a commission should investigate political and economic conditions inside Greece as well as the border issue. He promptly submitted a long draft resolution asking Secretary General Trygve Lie to send an impartial commission to Greece with this broad assignment. (The American delegation, incidentally, will try to have this resolution killed—partly because it has always insisted that internal conditions in Greece are not the cause of the border warfare.)

2. Norway, through Nils Langhelle, went further by demanding the withdrawal of all foreign troops from Greek soil, as well as the securing of "internal peace" in Greece and the reestablishment of normal diplomatic relations between Greece and her northern neighbors. The Norwegian agreed that border violations must stop, but he said the guilt of the northern neighbors had not been established.

Cuban Sees Greece as Pawn

3. Ethiopia, through her foreign minister, Aklilou Abte Wold, said any finding of guilt would simply "aggravate" the situation along the Greek border. However, she agreed with the United States that the northern frontier must be supervised by some special United Nations committee.

4. Finally Cuba, through Ambassador Guillermo Belt, protested that the real cause of the Greek problem was "the rising and dangerous antagonism between the United States and the Soviet Union." These two powers, he said, were the real actors in the Greek tragedy, and Greece and her northern neighbors were only pawns. Belt also opposed any finding of guilt by the Assembly.

Never terrified, however, of tangling with the Russians, Belt proposed that the Assembly's commission should also determine the extent of political freedom in Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania as well in Greece, and also in Romania, Poland and Hungary.

Ambassador Belt has always been an idividualist here, and does not necessarily speak for the rest of the Latin-Americans. However, his speech suggested that the United States had not yet convinced the delegations from south of the boarder, and might fail to get their votes on an issue which Secretary Marshall regards as crucial for the future of the United Nations itself.

Yugoslavia Reaches "Hysteria"

The last day of the committee's "general debate" on the Greek issue was the stormiest of the lot, largely because of a one-hour harangue shouted into the microphones by Deputy Foreign Minister Ales Bebler, of Yugoslavia. Bebler, twice wounded in the Spanish Civil War and again in fighting with Marshal Tito's partisans, argued with such passion that Hector McNeil of Great Britain later described it as "hysteria."

Premier Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium, the target of many of Bebler's attacks, said that "if the force of an orator is measured by the number of insults in his speech, then today Dr. Bebler has surely reached the summit of eloquence."

Repeatedly the committee's chairman, Joseph Joseph Bech, of Luxembourg, interrupted Beb to call him to order. When Bebler said the Greek government had acted "without shame" in letting British troops fight against leftists in 1944, the chairman rapped his gavel.

"I will not permit you to use such language," said Bech.

New Greek Spokesman Replies

"I will use it without your permission, sir," Bebler shouted back, and went on with his accusations against the Greek government, whose delegates were sitting across the committee room.

Marshall Pudding Ambrosia Perks Up Jr. College Menu

The Washington Post

LESSON IN FOOD SAVING—Chef Sidney Lattimore of Chevy Chase Junior College prepares the Marshall Pudding Ambrosia. The interested observers are Barbara Gresham (center) of Kansas City, Mo., and Jan Farber of Sparrows Point, Md., students at the college

It's Marshall Pudding Ambrosia for dessert at Chevy Chase Junior College today, following a revision of all menus in line with the President's conservation program.

The pudding—named, of course, for the Marshall Plan—is an appetizing dish designed to use up leftover bread.

BeBsides bread cubes and crumbs, two of its chief ingredients are oranges and grated coconuts, as anyone who's ever eaten old-fashioned Southern ambrosia might guess. The pudding is mixed with a custard base and baked in the oven.

"It's easy to make," said Miss Sue Frick, dietitian for the college, yesterday. "You can use any standard bakekd custard recipe, then add oranges, crumbs and coconut in whatever proportions suit your fancy."

Another unusual way Miss Frick is using up leftover bread and crusts is as pie crust.

"We use toasted crumbs in the same way graham crackers are sometimes used as crust," she said. "They're scattered over the bottom of the pie pan and sometimes melted shortening is poured over them to bind them together. They're delicious with a sweet pie filling—lemon or butterscotch, for instance.

the National Council of Farmers Cooperatives.

The Production and Marketing Administration is also calling upon the State extension services and the far-flung AAA organization to carry on the program among the farmers.

Anderson also announced that nutritionists, and home economic experts in the department and in the field, will disseminate information about substitutes for meat, butter, poultry and eggs and other foods requiring large amounts of grain.

The first meatless day, and the first day after the commodity exchanges raised margin requirements to one third the amount involved, saw a quiet market in most commodities.

Grain markets were extremely nervous, all cereals moving upward at the opening and then falling back by closing time. Reports of heavy Government buying strengthened nearby futures, but later reports of rain in the winter wheat section had a bearish effect.

Cattle and hogs both were slightly lower.

Butter was 3 cents a pound lower in New York and 2 cents in Chicago.

In this discussion of the Citizens Food Committee's meatless, poultryless and eggless campaign, Anderson declared that his department is "backing it to the limit."

"I don't say the department would have launched such a campaign," he said, "but the committee chose it."

Although he says conservation of food must continue until the end of this crop year, the Secretary did not predict that meatless days would continue that long.

Anderson also denied reports that the department's holdings of dried and frozen eggs were extraordinary.

Later his department issued a statement showing that the supplies of frozen eggs in warehouses in this country, including those Government-owned, is almost identical with last year's supplies. The department has bought 85 million cases of eggs in dried form for export, the statement said. The stock of shell eggs in commercial storage is about half those in storage a year ago. The Government has no shell eggs.

All Government-owned eggs in storage will go on the market in the next few months, it was stated. From now until January is the period of greatest withdrawals of eggs from storage, being the season of low production. Most eggs are put in storage for consumption in the last quarter of the year.

On Thursday, however, the GSI cafeterias will follow the poultryless and eggless recommendation and by next week will cooperate "a hundred per cent" with the meatless Tuesday plan, officials said.

Another cooperating group was the four cafeterias and nine snack bars in the Pentagon. The patrons there went meatless and frequently breadless yesterday as the food conservation program became effective.

Secretary of Commerce W. Averell Harriman, dining with a committee in the Commerce Building, ate the GSI special plate—stuffed green pepper with Spanish rice, baked onion, cherry pie and coffee. He added celery soup and fruit salad, but passed up bread and butter, on his 77 cent meal.

Among the few downtown restaurants to remove meats from menus were Childs Restaurants, which also plan to observe poultryless Thursday.

Among the hotels, the Statler and the Raleigh observed meatless Tuesday; many others did not. The Hotel Association of Washington, however, decided at a meeting yesterday to cooperate with the Tuesday and Thursday suggestions. The group has 32 members.

Fish in Demand

Several food markets, taken unawares by the meatless Tuesday policy, received many requests from housewives for fish. Usually, these markets do not receive fish until today since most sea food buying begins at the weekend.

In Prince Georges County where almost all restaurants were offering meat dishes yesterday, the Board of County Commissioners issued a proclamation calling upon residents and restaurants to follow the Presidential food saving requests.

Montgomery County restaurants, for the most part, adopted a wait and see attitude. Several managers, members of the Washington Restaurant Association, said they would await definite instructions from the organization. One man, Peter J. Floros of the Commonwealth Farm on Colesville rd., north of Silver Spring, said he was cooperating on the requests because "it is the only human thing to do."

In Arlington County, most restaurants cooperated, although those nearest to Washington waited to see what would be done in the District. The National Airport Restaurant, one of the largest, took this position.

Few Cooperate in Alexandria

Shuman's Restaurant at 516 King st., Alexandria, was one of the few eating places in the city cooperating. The manager reported few complaints. In Fairfax County, the few restaurants served meat, but said they were watching nearby policies as a lead on what to do next week.

Throughout Maryland and Virginia, the Associated Press reported most eating places were serving meat. The Maryland Restaurant Association took the position that it was up to individuals to practice self-denial, instead.

The Free State's public institutions pledged cooperation and Gov. William Preston Lane's family ate seafood instead of meat.

Gov. William Tuck called on Virginians to "respond willingly and promptly" to President Truman's food-conservation program.

Tonight the American Veterans Committee will hold a public meeting on the food problem at 8 o'clock in the Interior Department auditorium. Speakers will be Oris Wells, chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Agriculture Department; Fred Bailey, public relations director, National Grange, and Mrs. Margaret D. Thompson, editor of the Consumers' Research Service.

Yesterday the District Chapter of the League of Women Shoppers heard Roderick Riley, former research director of the Office of Price Administration, declare that it was "technically possible to move tomorrow to reestablish price control if Congress so decided today."

He said that claims that "it would take forever and a day to restore price control" were "so much poppycock." The economist said the "general maximum price regulation could be dusted off and used again. It held the line for six months in 1942, and could do so for six months today."

Consumer Group to Fight Milk Price Increase Here

Any increase in the price of milk in the Greater Washington area will be vigorously opposed by the Washington Committee for Consumer Protection, composed of representatives of more than 30 local civic groups, it was learned last night.

Mrs. Sarah Newman, chairman of the committee, said yesterday her group would be represented at a public hearing in Alexandria October 17, when the Virginia Milk Commission will review a request from the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association for an increase which would boost the price of milk by about a cent a quart in the area.

She said the committee not only would protest the price raise, but in the event it is granted by the commission, will urge a "resistence movement" to higher prices by calling on consumers to change over to evaporated and dry skim milk whenever possible.

The proposed increase, Mrs. Newman declared, would come at a time when all other food prices are "rocketing sky high."

The Maryland-Virginia association has asked only for an increase in prices to farmers, but according to local dairy officials the boost would have to be passed on to consumers if approved. The association supplies about 90 per cent of all milk consumed in the Washington area.

Church Group Urges Two Liquorless Days

St. Louis, Oct. 7 (INS).—The Metropolitan Church Federation of St. Louis urged President Truman today to add two "liquorless days" to his food conservation program.

The federation, representing 500 Protestant churches in the St. Louis area, said: "It seems only fair to us to ask the drinking public to make sacrifices comparable to the request you have made in regard to abstaining from certain kinds of foods."

The message, which indorsed the food conservation program, was signed by Dr. Ervine P. Inglis, president of the federation, and Dr. Walker Clark W. Cummings, executive secretary.

Reds Lose in Fight On Press Freedom

Vote Indicates Another Defeat On 'Warmongers'

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Russia's first attempt to win United Nations support for her ideas on freedom of the press was repudiated today.

She lost each of four separate votes by heavy majorities. Then, to underline the revalling opinion, a final vote of 33 to 7 bundled up all the other rejections and the Soviet resolution was emphatically scrapped at a raucous meeting of the Social, Humanitarian and Cultural Committee.

Delegates saw in their victory a clear indication of what will happen when the United Nations gets around to voting on another resolution which Andrei Y. Vishinsky introduced after his outburst against "warmongers."

Today's resolution was similar to many of its proposals. It sought to make it the duty of the press to expose "warmongers" and those who expound the Soviet definition of fascism. It tried to embody these in the subjects to be discussed by the world conference on freedom of the press and information, to be held at Geneva next March.

Not True to Its Name

The meeting today did not justice to the benign title of the committee. It was easily the most undiplomatic since the Assembly convened. At times the language used might have come from the bleachers at a World Series game with the umpire, Chairman Oscar Lange of Poland, smack in the midst of the flying barbs.

When the meeting bogged down to a two-hour wrangle on the procedure for voting, most of it from the Soviet and Yugoslav delegates, Argentina's Dr. Enrique Corominas roared into his microphone:

"This is terrible. We'll have to change the chairman."

He accused Dr. Lange of "vacillating" and "making slow concessions" to the Soviet group which tried desperately through parliamentary tactics to block a vote today after the unpopularity of the proposals became obvious.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, looking directly at the Soviet delegation, demanded an immediate vote instead of the "delaying tactics we're all famaliar with."

Proposed Vote on Preamble

She proposed that a vote be taken only on the preamble to the proposal. This would eliminate the need for long debate on each of the nine points recommended by the Soviets. It would also permit the delegates to avoid voting for or against any of the proposals, for by rejecting the first paragraph, the entire resolution would be rejected.

Making obvious an implied threat of propaganda capital even from rejection of the resolution, Soviet Delegate Valerian Zorin declared, "We would like to know the stand of every delegate on every item."

Zorin accused the United States and Great Britain of trying to "draw a veil" over the vote of the delegates. But he was defeated, despite the support of Dr. Lange.

As the debate grew hotter and more involved in procedural snarls Jorge Illueca of Panama quietly sent several amendments to the chairman. Dr. Lange scanned them briefly and announced he had a few "mild" amendments.

"Opportunity" Proves Bomerange

The Soviet delegate grabbed the opportunity and demanded that the Panamanian proposals be considered also. It appeared obvious that he thought Panama would support the Soviet case. But it proved to be a boomerang.

When read, the amendments hit directly at the Soviet. They proposed a ban against "political infiltration." They sought prevention of "distortion of the truth or propaganda against other governments" in countries like Russia where the press is government-controlled.

Hungary Plans To Soak Rich

Budapest, Hungary, Oct. 7 (U.P.).—A five-point "soak-the-rich" domestic program and a good-neighbor foreign policy were outlined to the new Parliament today by Prime Minister Lajos Dinnyes as the guiding principles of his Communist-dominated government.

Dinnyes promised:

1. Establishment of "workers' courts" to enforce "strong measures against speculators."
2. Thrift in government spending.
3. A new taxation system "to make the rich pay."
4. "Supervision" of large fortunes.
5. A two-price system—one price for the poor and another for the rich.

criticism for last winter's fuel crisis, was dropped to the position of Secretary of State for War, a noncabinet post. His demotion was expected to bring a protest from left-wing elements, particularly from Arthur Horner, Communist general secretary of the National Union of Mine Workers.

Later, Horner promised to work with the new Minister and denied that the miners "ever sought to impose any Minister on the government."

Shinwell, besides having built himself powerful mine union support by his direction of legislation nationalizing the coal mines, is this year's chairman of the Labor Party executive.

He was succeeded by Hugh Gaitskell, former parliamentary secretary in the Fuel Ministry. He will not be a full cabinet member, however, as the ministry was dropped from the cabinet, reducing full cabinet posts from 19 to 18.

Wilmot, most important of the government members who resigned, was succeeded as Minister of Supply by G. R. Strauss, 46, parliamentary secretary for the Ministry of Transport. Strauss, a metal worker known as "Britain's "richest Socialist," wil hold a post responsible for nationalization of the steel industry if the Labor Party goes ahead with that part of its program.

Strauss and Gaitskell, 51, were two of the most prominent representatives of "young blood" brought into the government. Neither will be a full cabinet member, however.

Also brought into the cabinet were Philip J. Noel-Baker, former air secretary and No. 2 man in the Foreign Ministry, as Secretary for Comonwealth Relations, succeeding Viscount Addison, 78, oldest member of the government. Viscount Addison was relieved of his departmental duties, but was retained in the cabinet as Lord Privy Seal and leader of the house of lords.

Arthur Woodburn, formerly parliamenary secretary to the Supply Ministry, also was brought into the cabinet as secretary of state for Scotland, succeeding Westwood.

Arthur Henderson, a former official in the India and Burma office, took over the job of secretary of state for air, and George Buchanan, 57, prominent Glasgow trades union leader, was named Minister of Pensions, succeeding Hynd.

Most important of the "junior Ministries" went to Arthur George Bottomley, 40, former parliamentary undersecretary of state for dominions, who was appointed overseas tradle secretary. The overseas post was vacated last week by Harold Wilson, 31, who succeeded Cripps as president of the Board of Trade and became the cabinet "baby."

Clay, Smith, Douglas, Murphy Arrive Here for Policy Talks

By the United Press

Four high-ranking American officials assigned to European posts arrived here yesterday for urgent talks on Soviet-American relations as well as future United States diplomatic and economic policies in Germany and Austria.

They were Lieut. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, United States Ambassador to Russia; Robert D. Murphy, United States political adviser for Germany; Lewis W. Douglas, Ambassador to Great Britain, and Gen. Lucius D. Clay, military governor of the American occupied zone in Germany.

Smith, Murphy and Clay flew in from Europe. Douglas had arrived from Montreal earlier.

The top-level policy reviews will cover:

1. Russia's attack upon the United States before the United Nations General Assembly, stepped-up propaganda blasts from Moscow on American officials and their policies, and implications involved in the new nine-nation bloc of Communist parties to fight the Marshall Plan and "American imperialism."

2. United States strategy for the November 25 London Big Four Foreign Ministers meeting on the German and Austrian peace treaties. Murphy will attend the Big Four deputies meeting opening in London on November 6.

3. Britain's request for revision of the December, 1946, agreement which provided for the 50-50 sharing of German occupation costs in the combined Anglo-American zone. Those talks got under way today with a British delegation.

Meantime, the American military high command was welcoming the Turkish chief of general staff, Salih Omurtak, and party who also arrived by plane. Greeting them were Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Army Chief of Staff; Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, Chief of Naval Operations, and Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, Chief of the Air Forces.

19 More Nations to Join Talks On Future of Italian Colonies

London, Oct. 7 (AP).—Deputies for the Big Four Foreign Ministers yielded to Soviet pressure and agreed today to hear the views of 19 other nations on the future of Italy's prewar colonial empire.

The decision came as the United States withdrew its proposals to limit consideration to those countries with territorial claims, plus the allies who participated in the African campaign—10 in all. Britain had asked for wide-open participation.

Under the Soviet proposal, supported by France, all the signatories on the disposition of Eritrea, Italian Somaliland, Cyrenaica and Tripolitania.

The Big Four has until September 15, 1948, to decide upon the colonies. After that if they are unable to agree, the colonies will become a United Nations problem.

Signatories to the treaty incl: Australia, Belgium, White Russia, Brazil, Greece, India, Canada, China, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Poland, the Ukraine, Czechoslovakia, Ethiopia, South Africa and Yugoslavia. Earlier the conference had agreed on Italy and Egypt, and at American insistence on newly born Pakistan.

Ferguson to Stick To Hughes Probe

Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) announced yesterday he has postponed a trip to Europe to work on the Howard Hughes investigation, now scheduled to be resumed November 17.

Ferguson, chairman of a Senate War Investigating Subcommittee which held hearings last summer on Hughes' wartime plane contracts, said he also would be engaged in "other committee work."

The hearings concern the 40 million dollars in airplane contracts awarded Hughes.

Stassen Asks New Currency For Germany

Des Moines, Oct. 7 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen declared tonight it was imperative that a new currency be established in Germany, and that the French franc and Italian lire be stabilized if a free economy is to prevail.

He added that a special session of Congress should be called "promptly" to "take this action." He said the United States "has been derelict in its policies" toward foreign currencies since the war.

"It does not seem to be sufficiently recognized that a free economy absolutely requires a reasonably stable currency," Stassen, a candidate for the Republican nomination for President, said in an address prepared for the Iowa Bankers Association convention.

Saying that "we must begin to rebuild the productive industries and trade of these (European) peoples," Stassen suggested creation of "an American agency with outstanding personnel, a peace production board, if you will, to effectively develop orders and channel food and instigate financial policies."

Would Stabilize Money

"We must also give high priority to the stabilization of the French franc and the Italian lire," said Stassen, a former Governor of Minnesota. "Unless we do that we cannot expect to rebuild the economies in Europe regardless of how much aid we pour in."

"Yet this seems to be neglected by the Administration," he continued. "They have talked about grandoise schemes of convertibility of 18 currencies and trade agreements between 18 countries, which are obviously impossible to attain in the chaotic postwar situation, with the cross currents of politics in Europe.

Has Eye on Second Place

Stassen said earlier at a news conference the most significant recent development in his campaign for President is his effort to develop second choice support where he is unable to get first choice support.

He explained that he was not seeking second choice support for any particular person.

After mention of recent speculation whether Stassen would accept the vice presidential nomination with Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, the former Minnesota Governor commented:

"Our relationship to Taft supporters is second choice for first place. It is not a question of being a second place choice."

Montgomery Beret Too Sacred Even to Hang on a British Lion

Sandhurst, England, Oct. 7 (U.P.).—Six contrite cadets were confined to barracks at military college here today for taking Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery's beret when he wasn't looking.

While Montgomery was dining at the school, the culprits snatched the famous tam and hung it on the statue of a lion. The field marshal's worried subordinates searched for 30 minutes before they found it.

Montgomery was not at all amused. He threatened that all cadets would be punished if the guilty ones did not own up, and when the six sheepish culprits came forward he gave them a 28-day confinement to barracks.

To Monty, it wasn't funny

German Writers Applaud for U. S.

Berlin, Oct. 7 (U.P.).—The German Writers' Congress in session in the Soviet sector of Berlin, loudly applauded the American system of political and intellectual freedom today.

An over whelming majority of the writers came to the support of Melvon Lasky, correspondent of the Socialist newspaper, New York New Leader, when the communists tried to shout him down during a speech in which Lasky attacked Soviet totalitarianism.

The Communists tried to break up the speech when Lasky discussed the danger of a "police state" to intellectual freedom. Non-Communists insisted, however, that he had as much right to be heard as the Russians, who yesterday attacked the United States.

The Gallup Poll

Half U. S. Ignorant Of Marshall Plan

Vagueness of Voters on European Aid Presents Backers a Serious Problem

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 7.—The Administration faces a serious problem in winning public support for the Marshall Plan.

The problem grows out of lack of public familiarity with (1) the plan itself, and (2) the situation in Europe which the plan is designed to meet.

Americans who are the most familiar with the plan give it a favorable vote. Those not familiar with it give an unfavorable vote when the plan is explained to them in terms of lending money to help European countries.

The first hurdle is that only about half the voters of the Nation say they have heard or read of the Marshall Plan.

Interviewers for the Institute asked voters:

Have you heard or read about the Marshall Plan?

The vote:

Yes	49%
No	51

Those who have heard of the plan were then asked this question:

What is your understanding of the purpose of the plan?

A great deal of vagueness and confusion is revealed in the answers.

About one in five gave an essentially correct definition—that is, a plan for European recovery which supplements self-help on the part of European countries with needed assistance from us.

The rest varied from those with a very general notion down to those with only a vague idea or no idea at all what the plan means.

When all those groups were asked, "What is your opinion of the plan?" it was found that most of them had a favorable opinion in general, the proportion of favorable answers being highest among the best-informed.

But when the plan is explained in terms of extending loans for billions of dollars to certain European countries, voters with little previous knowledge about the plan express unfavorable views.

On the basis of the this evidence it would appear that the support given by the public to Secretary Marshall's key item of foreign policy will depend almost entirely on how the Government, the press and other mass media explain the plan in the next few months.

This is indicated in answers to the following question:

Would you favor or oppose lending western European countries like England, France, Holland and Norway about five billion dollars a year for 3 or 4 years to improve conditions and help get business going in their countries?

The vote by the various groups follows. Note how the favorable vote drops and the opposition rises according to degree of information of the voter.

	Favor	Opposed	Qualified	No Opin.
Those best informed about Marshall Plan	49%	34%	10%	7%
Those less well informed	40	41	14	5
Those with only vague ideas about plan...	34	46	13	7
Those who don't know what plan is.....	25	54	10	11

Hemisphere Action Urged

Mr. Stalin's announcements and assurances to the contrary notwithstanding."

Thomas added, "I think it is high time that we took direct and positive action beyond mere exposure against the threat of world communism."

He said that he had thought for some time that a unified approach through this hemisphere would be an effective means of combating that threat.

"It is not enough," he told Martin, "that the United States alone become vigilant against the Communists.

"We must recognize the Communist movement for what it is, a foreign-directed world-wide conspirational organization, highly disciplined and well-entrenched, with established cells in all countries of North and South America, everywhere, with the single object of revolutionary subversion. Such a unified legislative program as I have in mind would provide hemispheric insurance against what is happening in Europe."

Thomas noted that Canada already has "struck a body blow" at the Communist conspiracy in its recent spy trials and exposures.

Certain South American countries are also "striking back hard at the Communist enemy," he said, and added:

"But it occurs to me that our attack could be much more effective if it were coordinated."

Thomas said he was aware that his suggestion would have "precedent-making implications."

"But when we consider that the members of Congress are now in countries throughout the world in actual consultation with members of foreign governments on common problems, the suggestion for similar consultation on the specific problem of Communism is very much in keeping with recent practice."

Real Estate Man Assails Truman's Economic Policy

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 7 (U.P.).—President Morgan L. Fitch of the National Association of Real Estate Boards today assailed President Truman as the author of a "cruel political promise" of "prosperity wages and depression prices."

Fitch told the Nebraska Real Estate Association's annual convention the promise could not be paid off.

He advocated increased production, tax "sanity," conservation of resources, a halt to the "growth of bureaucracy" and the end of "political sloganaires" as the step which would prevent a ruinous inflation.

But he maintained that high prices were just as necessary to the Nation's economy as high wages.

"If we wish to maintain today's living standards," he said, "then the fulfillment of that wish means maintenance of high prices as well as high wages. We can no more have one without the other than we can have shadow without substance."

British See Peace Threatened By Renaissance of Comintern

Communist plan was drawn, of A. A. Zdhanov and G. M. Malenkov, both members of the Soviet Politburo, the guiding hand of Russia's ruling Communist Party.

The spokesman said he knew of no British intention to protest the manifesto, which lumped Prime Minister Attlee and Foreign Secretary Bevin among those described as "traitors" to the working classes.

"We find no fault with the creation of this international communist organization," he said. "It is a matter for the Communist parties themselves. Indeed, we welcome the bringing into the open of activities which in the past we believed took place covertly."

Harry Pollitt, head of Britain's 50,000 Communists, declared at a party rally in London tonight that his followers "welcome" the new international organization and asserted "we pledge ourselves to do all that lies in our power in Britain to warn the people of the seriousness of the present international situation."

He followed the theme of the Communist declaration with the accusation that "American imperialists" were actively preparing for war, and hit at British Socialist leaders for having "consistently rejected any serious effort" to reach an understanding with Russia.

In Rome Luigi Longo, vice president of the Italian Communist Party, denied that the "information bureau" constituted revival of the Comintern. He said it was a move to combat the growing danger of war.

Leo Chajn, vice minister of justice for the Communist-dominated Polish government, said in Warsaw that the move was another "guarantee of peace."

His views were echoed in Prague by Vaclav Kopecky, Communist Minister of Information.

State Dept. Principles of Security Given

Text of "security principles" issued by Department of State:

I. Security principles of the Department of State.

A. The Department of State, because of its responsibility for the conduct of foreign affairs, is a vital target for persons engaged in espionage or subversion of the United States Government. Due to this fact and because of the great number of highly classified communications which pass through the department, the security of which is essential to the maintenance of peaceful and friendly international relations, it is highly important to the interests of the United States that no person should be employed in the department who constitutes a security risk.

B. The Secretary of State has been granted by Congress the right, in his absolute discretion, terminate the employment of any officer or employe of the Department of State or of the foreign service of the United States whenever he shall deem such termination necessary or advisable in the interests of the United States. Accordingly, in the interest of the United States, the Department of State will immediately terminate the employ of any officer or employe of the Department of State or of the foreign service who is deemed to constitute a security risk.

C. As used herein an officer or employe constitutes a security risk when he falls into one or more of the following categories: When he is—

1. A person who engages in, supports or advocates treason, subversion, or sedition, or who is a member of, affiliated with, or in sympathetic association with the Communist, Nazi, or Fascist parties, or of any foreign or domestic party, organization, movement, group, or combination of persons which seeks to alter the form of Government of the United States by unconstitutional means or whose policy is to advocate or approve the commission of act to force or violence to deny other persons their rights under the Constitution of the United States; or a person who consistently believes in or supports the ideologies and policies of such a party, organization, movement, group of combination of persons.

2. A person who is engaged in espionage or who is acting directly or indirectly under the instructions of any foreign government; or who deliberately performs his duties, or otherwise acts to serve the interests of another government in preference to the interests of the United States.

3. A person who has knowingly divulged classified information without authority and with the knowledge or with reasonable grounds for the knowledge or belief that it will be transmitted to agencies of a foreign government, or who is so consistently irresponsible in the handling of classified information as to compel the conclusion of extreme lack of care or judgment.

4. A person who has habitual or close association with persons believed to be in categories 1 or 2 above to an extent which would justify the conclusion that he might through such association voluntarily or involuntarily divulge classified information without authority.

5. A person who has such basic weakness of character or lack of judgment as reasonably to justify the fear that he might be led into any course of action specified above.

(d) In the determination of the question wheter a person is a security risk the following factors among others will be taken into account, together with such mitgating circumstances as may exist.

1. Participation in one or more of the parties or oganizations referred to above, or in organizations which are "fronts" for, or are controlled by, such party or organization, "either" by membership therein, taking part in its executive direction or control, contribution of funds thereto, attendance at meetings, employment thereby, registration to vote as a member of such a party, or signature of petition to elect a member of such a party to public office or to accomplish any other purpose supported by such a party; or written evidences or oral expressions by speeches or otherwise, or political, economic or social views;

2. Service in the government or armed forces of enemy countries, or other voluntary activities in support of foreign governments;

3. Violations of security regulations;

4. Voluntary association with persons in categories C (1) or C (2);

5. Habitual drunkenness, sexual perversion, moral turpitude, financial irresponsibility or criminal record.

E. In weighing the evidence on any charges that a person constitutes a security risk the following considerations will obtain:

1. A former course of conduct or holding of beliefs will be presumed to continue in the absence of positive evidence indicating a change, both in course of action and conviction, by clear, overt and unequivocal acts.

2. There will be no presumption of truth in favor or statements of the witnesse sin any hearing on security risk, but their statements will be weighed with all the other evidence before the hearing board, and the conclusion will be drawn by the board.

3. If a reasonable doubt exists as to whether the person falls into one of the categories listed in Paragraph C above, the department will be give nthe benefit of the doubt, and the person will be deemed a security risk.

II. HEARING procedure of the personnel security board.

A. Before any officer or employe of the Department or State or of the foreign service of the United States is summarily removed, under the provisions of the Department of State Appropriation Act, 1948, as a security risk, he shall be granted a hearing before the personnel security board.

B. The officer or employe shall be served with a written notice of such hearing, at least 15 days before such hearing is to take place, and in any event in sufficient time to enable him to prepare for and attend such hearing.

C. So far as possible, without jeopardizing national security, such notice shall state the charges made against him, as fully and completely as, in the discretion of the Office of Controls (CON) security considerations permit. The officer or employe shall be informed in the notice of his privilege to reply to such charges in writing before the date set for said hearing, to appear before said board personally at said hearing, to be accompanied, if he so desires, by counsel or representative of his own choosing, and to present evidence in his own behalf, through witness or by affidavit.

D. Evidence on behalf of the Department of State shall be presented to said board by CON in advance of said hearing, and shall not be presented at said hearing. For security reasons the officer or employe, his representative or coupsel, cannot be permitted to hear or examine such evidence, which shall be classified as confidential or secret, as the case may be.

E. At said hearing the chairman of the board shall preside; the officer or employe shall be permitted to appear personally, and either by himself, his representative or counsel of his own choosing, to present evidence in his own behalf, through witness or by affidavit. The officer or employe and his witness shall not be sworn except on their express request. Members of the board may ask questions of him and his witness as they may desire, but he and his witness shall not be required to answer. A stenotypist record will be made of the testimony.

F. After the record of the hearing has been reduced to writing, the board will convene in executive session to reach a decision. In its consideration the board shall be governed by the security principles of the Department of State. After examination of the evidence and following any desired discussion the vote shall be by ballot, and the decision will be by majority vote. The vote by each member will be recorded, with any statement which he may desire to make as to his reasons therefor.

G. The finding of the board will be either that (1) the board finds insufficient evidence on which to adjudge the officer or employe a security risk; or that (2) the board finds the officer or employe to constitute a security risk. In the event of a finding of insufficient evidence the board may in its discretion recommended further or continued investigation of specific points on which they consider the findings of the board shall be accompanied by a brief analysis of the evidence, and an indication of the reasons of the board for its decision. The record will be classified as secret and transmitted to the Secretary of State, with a copy to the office of controls.

Communism Fear Largely Bugaboo, Weir Declares

Pittsburgh, Oct. 7 (AP).—Steelmaster Ernest T. Weir today characterized President Truman's urgent plea that American financial aid was vital in checking communism's spread in Europe as a "bugaboo . . . without the slightest justification."

The chairman of the National Steel Corp. drew this outspoken conclusion in "Notes on a Trip to Europe" containing his impressions of conditions observed in a month-long trip ended in September.

"I came back fully convinced that in France and England there is not the slightest danager of communism," he wrote. "I am also convinced there is no danger of ultimate communism in the United States. In my opinion, communism, as exemplified by Russia, can only be applied in a country such as Russia, where people are of low standard as a result of centuries of mistreatment.

". . . I think Greece is an outstanding example of a waste of our money without in any way bringing into that country peace and stability."

House Group Calls D. C. Editors on Carpet For Editorial on 'Disloyal Congressmen'

By The Associated Press

R. M. McKelway, editor of the Washington Evining Star, and his chief editorial writer, John H. Cline, were called before the House Expenditures Committee yesterday to explain a Star editorial entitled "Disloyal Congressmen."

McKelway told the committee, headed by Representative Hoffman (R., Mich.), that the Star "has nothing to defend and nothing to explain here." He emphasized that he appeared voluntarily and only as a matter of courtesy to a committee of Congress.

The committee has been conducting an investigation of what Hoffman calls a "smear file" kept by the Civil Service Commission in connection with its investigations of the loyalty of Federal employes. Hoffman has said that some Congressmen's names appear on the list. He has demanded that they be removed.

Civil Service Commissioners have promised to remove any Congressman's name appearing on the list, but have declined to give Hoffman's committee access to the list. Monday the Evening Star ran an editorial saying very few people would "share the reported indignation of certain members of the House at the discovery that the names of disloyal Congressmen may have been filed away by the Civil Service Commission."

"If there are members of Congress who are affiliated with the Communist Party, or with any other subversive group," the editorial said, "it would seem that the people who pay their salaries ought not to be foreclosed from any possibility of ascertaining that fact."

Hoffman questioned Cline and McKelway after Arthur S. Flemming, a member of the Civil Service Comission, reiterated the commission's refusal to let Congressmen inspect the file to see whether they are listed in it.

Flemming explained again that the file was maintained by commission investigators as a "lead" file, and contains information which has not been authenticated. He insisted the commission cannot allow any person to inspect the file.

Hoffman then closed the investigation, telling reporters he may ask President Truman to decide whether Congressmen may inspect the file.

Adm. Stedman Named Shipping Line Executive

New York, Oct. 7 (INS).—John M. Franklin, president of the United States Lines Co., today announced the appointment of Admiral Giles C. Stedman as vice presdient in charge of all Pacific operations of the company. This will include the company's activities on the West Coast. He will make his headuarters in San Francisco.

At the same time, General Franklin announced the appointment of John A. Barthrop as general manager of the company's Pacific operations inluding the West Coast of the United States.

Bees Like 'Little Nip,' Work Off 'Hangovers'

Paterson, N. J., Oct. 7 (AP).—Bees like "a little nip" and then have to work off their "hang-overs," says a spokesman for the New Jersey Bee-keeper Association.

In the spring, bees are reluctant to leave the swarm and go out gathering honey, so beekeepers put some "super-fermented honey" in the hive, he said. The bees make "bee-lines" for the honey, stagger about for awhile, and then go to work to get rid of the "hang-over."

Representative Larcade (D., La.) yesterday became a flying Congressman, taking off in his own two-seater plane for his Opelousas, La., home.

With Larcade on the trip is E. L. Sester, his Washington flying instructor. Larcade purchased the plane Monday but kept arrangements for his flight a secret until a few minutes before he took off.

Diplomat Gets His Man, Loses Him in Court

By Alfred E. Lewis

Post Reporter

A diplomat turned detective Monday night to capture a suspected car looter only to lose "his man" on a technicality in Municipal Court yesterday.

Edmund O. Barker, 27, vacationing in Washington while en route from his old assignment in Siam to his nek job as vice consul in the American Legation at Adis Abbaba, Ethiopia, saw someone trying to open the door of his parked car in the 1700 block of I st. nw.

Barker hid in the shadows and watched the suspect as he tried the door of several other cars parked in the same block.

Motorcycle Policeman Arthur H. Newcomb happened to be passing and Barker hailed him. After explaining the situation Barker climbed in the sidecar of the motorcycle and they headed in the direction of the suspect. They found him standing on the corner of 16th and I sts. nw. Charged at the Third Precinct with tampering with an auto, the suspect gave his name as John W. McDonald, 59, 613 C st. nw.

Before Judge Nadine Gallagher in Municipal Court yesterday McDonald asked the court to appoint an attorney to defend him. Attorney Eugene La Rochelle was named and he asked the judge to dismiss the case on the grounds that no misdimeanor was committed in the officers' presence and that the arrest was illegal.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Richard W. Barton advised Barker and Newcomb to obtain a warrant, but by the time they were able to obtain the warrant, McDonald had disappeared. At a late hour last night he was still missing.

NLRB Rule Is Changed

further arguments of his own, was Abe Murdock, one of the two new members of the board. The other member, J. Copeland Gray, dissented.

Scope Questioned

The decisions were concerned principally with explorations into what Congress meant in the law when it said that the affidavits had to be executed by all officers of the labor union in question "and any national or international labor organization of which it is an affiliate or constituent unit."

The majority concluded that it was impossible to give a categorical answer on whether the AFL was such an "international labor organization," and confessed that the legislative history of the Taft Hartley Act threw little light on the matter.

They said, however, that the term usually has a technical meaning in labor matters and ordinarily refers to such organizations as the IBEW, and not to the AFL.

Secondly, they looked to the major purpose of this section of the law and concluded it was to eliminate Communist influence in the labor movement. But this purpose would not be served, they argued, if an individual AFL union, with clean hands, and whose officers had executed the affidavits, were denied the use of the NLRB services and the protection of the law merely because some top AFL official, not in their union, failed to sign.

If this were allowed to happen, there would be no incentive for any individual union to purge its own organization of Communists; it would gain no advantage thereby.

Gray, dissenting, said he could not conceive how the AFL could be anything else but an "international labor organization." Further, the construction he placed on the law would contribute toward eliminating Communists, even though the process might be more painful.

Overruled, Says Denham

Gray's opinion, Denham declared in a press conference yesterday afternoon, was in accord with his own views. But, he explained, "the board makes the law" on these matters—specifically questions of jurisdiction.

As prosecuting arm of the board, he went on, his job was to appraise jurisdictional requirements. But, he added, the board had the function to appraise its own concepts of proper jurisdiction, and in doing so, overruled him.

Accordingly, he said, he considered himself bound to bring on cases over which the board had conceived that it had jurisdiction.

"As a matter of good administration, to keep the wheels turning, it would be unwise to do anything else," he said.

Dispute War Feared

Until Denham declared his acceptance of the board's ruling, there had been speculation on the possibility of a board-general counsel civil war.

It was considered possible that the board might certify unions, for collective bargaining purposes—a matter in which its word is final—but that Denham might refuse to handle their future complaints of unfair labor practices, on grounds that they had not complied with the law regarding the affidavits.

Denham had been vigorous, in many public statements, as to the correctness of his earlier interpretation. But his acceptance yesterday was complete. He said he would consider complaints from whatever unions the board certified. He said he was issuing instructions to regional offices to this effect.

Acceptable to Taft

In Cincinnati, Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), coauthor of the new labor law, told newsmen the NLRB decision was "certainly not in conflict with the intent of Congress." Similar views were voiced by members of Congress here. Labor leaders generally hailed it as a victory.

AFL Parley Still Wary of Lewis

By Robert E. Nichols

San Francisco, Oct. 7.—John L. Lewis tonight was still the favored candidate for the man most likely to cause trouble at the American Federation of Labor convention here.

He was conceded this distinction dispite news from Washington that the five-man National Labor Relations Board had decided that top AFL officers, notably Lewis, need not sign oaths disovowing communism in order to entitle AFL members to the board's protection.

Both as AFL eleventh vice president and as president of the affiliated United Mine Workers, Lewis has stubbornly refused to sign such an oath, even though the Taft-Hartley Act makes it a prerequisite under certain conditions to using NLRB facilities.

He May Have to Sign Affidavit

Notwithstanding the NLRB's new policy, colleagues of Lewis are fearful that he will continue to block majority opinion at the convention, no win its second day here. Many of them feel Lewis will have to sign an anti-Communist affidavit, regardless of the NLRB ruling, to protect some 292,000 AFL workers belonging to the so-called federal unions.

These small units are made up of workers who lack the numerical strength to form an autonomous "affiliate" union in the AFL hierarchy. Because they lack their own national officers, these unions are governed directly by the parent body of the AFL, the 15-man executive council of which Lewis is a member.

This view was advanced by one of the oldest and most powerful executive council officers, Daniel J. Tobin, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. "For my part," Mr. Tobin said, "I believe the council will be required to file (anti-Communist affidavits) just to protect the federal unions."

Teamsters Won't Bolt

Continued refusal by Lewis to sign would pervent such protection, barring the federal unions and their 202,000 members from board facilities. A nubber of AFL officials contended that small unions are ones needing the NLRB protection most. Lewis has expressed the opinion that the "weak must perish."

[Asked at his press conference here yesterday about this issue, Denham said that the Taft-Hartley section on the non-Communist oaths would apply to the top AFL officers when the AFL was in the position of a parent organization to a union dealing directly with employers. This would be the case, he intimated, with Federal unions directly chartered by the AFL.—Editors note.]

In commenting on the NLRB decision, Tobin told reporters that today's action eliminates the necessity of the teamsters withdrawing from the AFL. Last week he threatened to bolt the federation because the Lewis "veto" was depriving his union of NLRB facilities.

A number of A. F. of L. leaders feel that, whether the Communist question is settled or not, Lewis will force a floor fight anyhow, just to test his power in the A. F. of L. A count of delegates showed today that Mr. Lewis has brought with him nearly 40 more U. M. W. representatives than he needs. The convention has a limit of nine delegates from each affiliate union. Mr. Lewis has more than 59 workers here, many of them officers of the U. M. W. policy committee.

The feeling was that he brought these men along to make possible a quick vote in his own union in case he decided to pull out of the A. F. of L. and set up shop as an independent union, as he did once before.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day!

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Sugar Is Plentiful, So Is Moonshine

Atlanta, Oct. 7 (AP).—Relaxing of federal sugar rationing created a boom last month in the north Georgia mountains—a moonshine whiskey boom—State Revenue Commissioner Glenn Phillips reported today.

State agents set a ten-year record with 1648 raids and seizure of 6450 gallons of moonshine whiskey—made largely of sugar with only enough corn or other grain used to produce malt fermentation. Officers arrested 243 persons and destroyed 171 stills.

Jap Reds Say 'No'

Tokyo, Oct. 7 (U.P.).—The Japanese Community Party will "have nothing to do" with Europe's nine-nation Communist information bureau, Sanzo Nosaka, a leading Communist, said today.

Good News For Folks Who Suffer From

✓ STOMACH GAS
✓ ACID INDIGESTION

Do you feel bloated and miserable after every meal, taste sour, bitter food? If so, here is how you may get blessed relief from this nervous distress.

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment, sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that BSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the BSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, BSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is BSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Homes Stoned, Officers Hurt In Ship Strike

Baltimore, Oct. 7 (AP).—Bricks were tossed through windows of three homes, two policemen on strike duty were injured, and a picket was arrested as the walkout of workers at the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s three Baltimore shipyards entered its 105th day today.

An automobile, hurrying through Gate No. 2 at the Key Highway yard, bounced and knocked down Sgt. Earl Lichtenberg and Patrolman Chares Harris. Both were treated for bruises at the plant dispensary and went back to duty.

A brick crashed through a window at the home of Charles Brewer early today, showering Brewer and his wife, who were sleeping, with glass. Brewer told Patrolman Joseph Litz he had been on strike but had gone back to work.

Bricks were thrown through windows of two other homes, but owners there said there must have been a mistake because they didn't work for the steel company.

The company estimated about 800 workers went back to work last week, and plant police said more were coming back each day.

Charges that the company is attempting to "break" the strike were made by the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America (CIO). The union said the company refused to arbitrate wage increases and other demands.

Top Mergenthaler Swindle Figure Gets 2 to 5 Years

New York, Oct. 7 (U.P.).—Isadore Rappaport, 56, described as the man who "initiated" the sensational $804,000 Mergenthaler swindle, was sentenced today to serve from 2½ to 5 years in Sing Sing.

Rappaport, who was threatened with a 20-year sentence, collapsed on his way back to his cell. His attorney had pleaded for leniency on the grounds that his client suffers from a serious heart ailment.

Leibowitz said that a heart condition did not entitle the convicted man to a suspended sentence. He noted, however, that a lenient sentence was given because Rappaport pleaded guilty, and made a full confession.

Publishers File Complaint Charging Printers Evade Law

Cincinnati, Oct. 7 (AP). — The American Newspaper Publishers Association today filed with the regional National Labor Relations Board charges that the International Typographical Union had violated the Taft-Hartley Act of 1947 in eight instances.

The charges, filed by Cranston Williams of New York, ANPA general manager, said the union's eighty-ninth convention in Cleveland last month adopted "a 'collective bargaining policy' declaring the union's intention to sign no new contracts with employers and restraining members from accepting employment when existing contracts expire . . ."

"This," said the ANPA petition, "was laid down by said convention for the purpose, inter alia, of:

"1. Refusing to bargain collectively;

"2. Refusing to enter into any signed contracts as a result of collective bargaining;

"3. Maintaining the closed shop;

"4. Prohibiting the employment of any foreman not a member of the union;

"5. Maintaining the union's practice of boycotting;

"6. Maintaining the union's practice of featherbedding;

"7. Superimposing the union's own laws and regulations governing the relations between its members and their employers on the Labor Management Relations Act, and

"8. Prohibiting its members from working or accepting employment except in compliance with said policy, all of which purposes and the acts implementing them are in violation of and in defiance of the Labor Management Relations Act, 1947."

The ANPA board of directors, said Williams, authorized the action.

"The ANPA is not engaging in a union-busting program," Williams said, and added:

"This step was taken with utmost regret and only after every effort on the part of the ANPA, through conferences with the executives of the ITU, to develop a relationship in harmony with the law of the land had failed."

Williams said the ANPA represents newspapers having a daily circulation of 46,836,000 and a Sunday circulation of 42,916,000.

"At its Cleveland convention held only a few days before the Labor Management Relations Act of 1947 became effective," Williams said in a statement, "the ITU adopted a policy of open defiance and violation of the law.

"If that policy affected only the ITU, the ANPA would not be concerned with it. But by its precise terms, as spelled out in the resolutions of the convention, and as it has been pursued since the convention, it requires publishers employing ITU members not only to conspire with the ITU to violate the law but to violate it."

Williams said that the penalty for any publisher's failure to conform to the ITU policy would be a strike of his printers.

Mayor, 2 Councilmen Quit Over Firings

Dalton, Ga., Oct. 7 (AP).—The mayor and two councilmen resigned today following a stormy session of city council last night in which sympathizers with five discharged union member municipal employes forced their reinstatement by blocking exits from the chamber.

Mayor Gordon Kettles said he resigned "to retain my self respect."

Joining him in resigning were Councilmen W. H. Bartenfeld and T. L. Shackleford. The other two members of the council, Ed Long and Guy Thomas, did not resign.

Kettles said the workers, members of the United Public Worker, Street and Sanitary Workers of Dalton, Local 731 (CIO), were discharged several weeks ago for "unsatisfactory service."

The union in an advertisement in the Dalton Citizen today alleged the five workers were discharged because of their union affiliation and not for inefficiency. Last night the five discharged workers and an estimated 50 or 60 sympathizers gathered in the council chamber and demanded their reinstatement.

When council refused, the group gathered around the council table and a spokesman said the council would not be permitted to adjourn and leave the chamber until it changed its decision and voted to rehire the discharged workers.

The council then voted to reinstate the employes to their jobs in the sanitary department.

Bartenfeld said today that his life had been threatened several times since discharge of the employes. He gave no details.

Dalton police and firemen recently attempted to organize into a union, but the city council passed an ordinance making such membership illegal.

Manila Official Rebukes Priest For Slur on U. S.

Manila, Oct. 7 (AP).—The comment of Father Honorio Munoz Rector, Spanish priest-educator of San Juan de Letran College, that the Jane Russel film "The Outlaw," could only be made in "a pagan country" like the United States drew a stern governmental rebuke today.

Interior Secretary Jose Zulueta told the priest, "It is ridiculous of you to presume that in a democratic country like ours one man or one religious group has the right to decide matters that affect the public weal.

"I do not at all consider America, which recently gave up 300,000 of her sons in defense of Christian ideals, as a 'pagan country.'"

Travel Ban Relaxed

Two Jewish Ships Head for Palestine

Biggest Shipment So Far Expected; Haganah Says Rate Will Continue

Jerusalem, Oct. 7 (NYHT).—The largest mass shipment of Jews to Palestine so far was reported to be getting under way in the Black Sea today, and an officer of Haganah's immigration division said the Zionist underground military organization intends to maintain illegal immigration without a halt—until and unless, he said, legal immigration is permitted on a "realistic" scale.

The officer, a Palestinian, who uses the pseudonym Jacob, discussed methods of illegal immigration in detail while captured immigrants were taxing British facilities to detain them on Cyprus and while two ships, the Pan York and Pan Crescent, were reported somewhere in the Black Sea, about to tone on 4000 to 5000 passengers each.

They were expected to attempt to get through the British blockade of the Palestinian coast in about a week or 10 days.

The Foreign Office in London was reported here to have said the two ships are being watched, but there has been no announcement in Palestine on what British authorities will do with the large number of immigrants when they arrive.

The Cyprus detention camps already are packed with some 13,000 Jews, the last of whom will stay more than two years if the present rate of legal immigration is maintained.

Two Arabs Are Killed In Haganah Vengeance

Jerusalem, Palestine, Oct. 7 (U.P.).—The moderate Jewish underground army Haganah killed two Arabs in an "eye-for-an-eye" vengeance bombing today, while Arab forces renewed their threats of war in the Holy Land.

The two Arabs were killed by an explosion which wrecked their house in an orange grove near Lydda airport. Two Jews were killed from ambush in the same area last Friday, allegedly by the Arabs who were slain today. Haganah published a communique, admitting responsibility for the act.

Meanwhile, it was reported that numerous Arab "military leaders" were on their way to Damascus, Syria, to confer with Fawzi Kaukji, who led the Arab revolt in Palestine in 1936.

A new, semi-military Arab movement describing itself as the "Arab Jihad"—literally, the holy war—issued a manifesto today taking full responsibility for last week's attack on the Swedish consulate in Jerusalem, and declaring that "the time for action" had come.

Pakistan Hits Holy Land Partition Plan

By John G. Rogers

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 7 (NYHT).—Parkistand assailed the proposed partition of Palestine today as utterly unjust to the Arabs.

It asserted the only fair Holy Land solution is creation of an independent Arab State with full minority rights guaranteed to the Jews.

Speaking in the 57-nation Palestine Committee of the United Nations General Assembly, Parkistand charged the partition plan is a geographic "monstrosity" and "in all other respects it is an inquiry."

"Thin Edge of a Wedge"

Sir Mohammad Zafrullah Khan, Parkistan delegate, accused the Jewish agency for Palestine of regarding partition as "the thin edge of a wedge" for further expansion in the Near East. Such expansion, he said, could lead to war.

Sir Zafrullah spoke for 115 minutes, so long that all other speakers were crowded off today's committee schedule. It was the first pro-Arab speech that the committee has heard from a non-Arab nation.

The core of Sir Zafrullah's contention was this: The United Nations Charter stands for certain high principles, including people's rights to independence and self-determination. Apply that formula to Palestine and the obvious result is a country controled by its 2-to-1 Arab majority.

The Pakistan delegate asserted that there is no reason to waive this formula in the case of Palestine just because extraneous factors have entered the case, factors such as emotion, disputed history, vicious antisemitism in Europe in the last 14 years, and Jewish aspirations in Palestine.

Zionist immigration into Palestine, according to the speaker, was an aggression aimed at making the Arab majority into a minority in the Arabs' own country.

Arab League Meets

Beirut, Lebanon, Oct. 7 (AP).—Delegates representing the Middle Easts' 40 million Arabs convened tonight to organize what the Arab League Secretary General said would be a "counter-force" to oppose the aims of Zionism in Palestine.

Abdul Rahman Azzam Pasha, who will preside at the sessions of the seven-state Arab League, declared:

"We cannot allow the tyranny of a minority to go on in Palestine. We have realized that Jewish terrorism—and the militancy of all shades of Jewry—would one day bring the necessity to repulse force with force."

Fear Keeps Some People Fat, Columbia U. Doctor Says

New York, Oct. 7 (AP).—Fatness due to fear was described to the New York Academy of Medicine today by Dr. Hilde Bruch, of the college of physicians and surgeons of Columbia University.

Some really obese persons, Dr. Bruch said, get that way because they are afraid of jokes about their figures.

The first barbs hit them when they are merely fat children. Later they retain the excess bulk because it comforts them with a feeling of strength, safety and power.

"Many fat young girls, though outwardly very concerned about not getting married, nevertheless persist in remaining fat because it is a protection against men and sex and the responsibilities of adult womanhood which they dread even more than the disgrace of being fat," he said.

Dr. Bruch said "in many fat people whom I have had opportunity to observe, the joviality and often boisterous cheerfulness were nothing but a thin veneer, a compensatory defense against underlying feelings of unhappiness and futility."

Dr. Bruch declared obesity comes from overeating and that there is little if any support for the explanation that endocrine troubles cause it. It could be cured quite simply by diet and exercise, he said, but the fat patient often will not take that prescription.

Ragweed Doomed

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 7 (AP).—Ragweed, bane of three million hay fever victims, virtually can be eliminated from cities in a few years with the chemical 2,4-D, which makes the plants starve to death, the American Public Health Association meeting was told today by New York City health officers.

Within a few years, they said, ragweed virtually will be eliminated in New York City's 300 square mile limits by spraying begun two years ago. Dozens of other cities and towns also have started spraying.

(Auditor A. R. Pilkerton yesterday reiterated his intention of "seizing" such funds for the District if the National Guard refuses to turn them over to the general fund.)

4 Projects on 'Must' List

Fowler said "there are many capital expenditure projects which we consider imperative" but he included only four on his "must" list for fiscal 1949.

They were: to fulfill present contracts for public school buildings, $5,714,089; a garage and shops building for the Refuse Division, $418,500; a new incinerator, $155,000; essential sewer construction, $2,000,000.

His school recommendation would cut almost 50 per cent from the 11 million dollars requested for school construction in fiscal 1949. No mention was made on the "must" list of nearly 6 million dollars asked for hospital construction next year.

Fowler also said he considered a $2,121,965 increase "mandatory" for in-grade promotions, compensation, retirement, and relief funds; and payment for District patients at St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Salaries a Big Item

"Over one-half of all our expenditures are for salaries," Fowler pointed out. The District's financial status will be vitally affected, he added, if there is a drive for "an immediate cost of living salary increase" and a move to institute a 35-hour, five-day week.

High prices are another important factor in District fiscal considerations, he said. A "shocking" example, he reported, is "that a cast iron lamp post shaft in November, 1944, cost $29.42—against today's figure of $140 in lots of one hundred."

"I'm hoping prices will become stabilized and drift downward," he said last night. "I hope it will eventually reach a point where we can reduce the real estate tax to what it was before."

(The Commissioners ordered real estate and personal property taxes increased last July 1 from $1.75 to $2 per $100 assessed value.)

Windsor Sees Brother

London, Oct. 7 (AP).—The Duke of Windsor saw King George, his brother, at Buckingham Palace today. The duke is a guest at the home of his friend, the Earl of Dudley, for a short visit after a season at his Riviera villa. His American-born duchess did not accompany him from France.

U. S. Lines Appoints Adm. Stedman to Post

New York, Oct. 7 (AP).—Appointment of Admiral Giles C. Stedman as vice president in charge of all Pacific operations of United States Lines Co. was announced today.

At the same time appointment of John A. Barthrop as general manager of the company's Pacific operations was announced.

Stedman is vice president of the company and formerly was commodore of the United States Lines fleet and captain of the flagship America prior to World War II. He will make his headquarters at San Francisco.

How to get more heat and save oil!

It may seem a little odd to you for an oil company to spend money telling the public how to save fuel oil! We are doing just that, however, because we think it is acting in the public interest to look forward now to this coming winter, when there may be some shortage of heating oil, especially if the winter is a severe one. Post-war demand for oil products of all kinds is breaking all past records. So is the oil industry's production. But shortages of materials have delayed the building of new producing, refining, and transportation facilities. The race between demand and supply is a close one. That is why we urge you to help stretch the supply, by adopting some or all of the oil-saving steps listed here. And above all...

FILL YOUR OIL TANK NOW!

The industry's heating oil storage tanks are now full. There is no place left to "store up" more oil against winter demands except in users' tanks like yours. You can help by having your tank filled now. Then your supplier can refill his tanks and thus have more total oil stored in your area before winter makes transportation more difficult.

WAYS TO MAKE YOUR HEATING PLANT MORE EFFICIENT

Have your oil burner cleaned, adjusted, and all controls checked, by an expert service man.

Clean furnace and chimney flues. Accumulated soot keeps heat from reaching the boiler and wastes fuel.

Install an automatic stack draft control if you don't have one. Helps reduce heat loss up the chimney.

Be sure furnace and pipes through cellar are insulated. Keep the heat in the steam or water till it reaches radiators!

Insulate hot water storage tank. It's a job you can probably do yourself.

WAYS TO SAVE FUEL WITHOUT EXPENSE

Start burners as late in the season as you can without great discomfort or danger to health.

Keep your thermostat set a few degrees lower than usual. You will be surprised how much fuel you can save without any real discomfort.

Set thermostat down an extra 10 or 15 degrees at night . . . and when you're going out for several hours.

Keep window shades down at night, and on shady sides of the house in daytime.

Watch your cellar temperature. If it's too warm, insulate hot pipes, furnace, hot water tank.

Check radiator valves through the house; repair or replace them where needed.

THINGS TO DO TO YOUR HOUSE

Weatherstrip all outside doors and windows. It's a job you can do yourself.

Insulate your home, at least under the roof. Adds summertime comfort besides saving fuel now. Also adds to value of your property.

Insulate cold walls adjoining garages or other unused rooms.

Calk frames and sills of outside windows and doors—especially in older houses.

Copr. 1947, Esso Inc.

YOURS FREE! No matter where you buy your oil, we'll be glad to send you a booklet "20 WAYS TO SAVE MONEY ON HOME HEATING." This is a handy, permanent record of fuel-saving ideas. Just drop a postcard today to Mr. C. A. Newland, St. Paul Place and Franklin Street, Baltimore 3, Maryland.

Movement to Have General Hawley Drafted To Head Veterans Administration Grows

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A strong boom is under way to get the White House to draft Maj. Gen. Paul R. Hawley, Veterans Administration medical director, as successor to Gen. Omar N. Bradley, VA director, The Washington Post learned yesterday.

Gen. Hawley

The move, initiated two months ago, gained impetus this week after Dr. Hawley intimated to friends he planned to retire about the same time General Bradley leaves VA to become Chief of Staff of the Army.

Sponsored at first by the VA medical staff, the drive to "draft Hawley" has picked up momentum among the Nation's medical school deans and other topflight medical men concerned with the VA program.

The spontaneous boom to make the 56-year-old soldier-surgeon head of the Federal Government's greatest single agency arises from the following factors:

1. The VA medical staff, comprising some of the best brains and talent in the country, fears Bradley's successor as VA boss may be unsympathetic to their progressive program.

2. General Hawley, who raised VA medicine from the doldrums to a standard "second to none" in less than two years, proved to be a fast-thinking, fast-moving administrator within his own autonomous Department of Medicine and Surgery.

3. As chief of VA's medical and hospital program, General Hawley demonstrated that he, like General Bradley, has what it takes to stand up against pressure of politicians and veterans organizations alike.

Disavows Ambitions

No sooner did the Hawley boom get started several months ago—when it became apparent that General Bradley would succeed General Eisenhower as Chief of Staff of the Army—that the VA medical director let it be known he had neither the intention nor the desire to take on the administrator's job.

Hawley wound up 30 years of Army service as chief surgeon of the European Theater, and even before he could be retired for a broken neck—a memento of his polo-playing days—was called upon by General Bradley to help him modernize VA's antiquated medical system. Hawley has told friends he plans to complete his extra tour of duty along with Gen-life and a less arduous job.

Friends and admirers of the gray-haired, portly medical director insist General Hawley isn't as tired as he thinks he is, and that his whirlwind energy is still deep and wide enough to direct VA and its seven-billion-dollar annual operations.

Others Mentioned

Proponents of the VA medical program, in and out of VA, have started writing to "influential" friends around the country to join them in urging President Truman to "draft" Hawley as successor to General Bradley.

Sources close to the White House state that President Truman has not yet taken up the matter of Bradley's successor. Among names mentioned as potential candidates are Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, wartime Selective Service director; Gordon Browning, former Governor of Tennessee and veteran of both wars, and Watson Miller, Commissioner of Immigration and former head of Federal Security Administration.

Evatt Visits Truman on Pacific Peace

Australian Foreign Minister Herbert V. Evatt called on President Truman yesterday and said he stressed the urgency of settling west Pacific problems and writing a peace treaty with Japan.

Evatt told reporters that was the main purpose of his White House visit. He has been attending the United Nations meeting in New York and returned there later in the day.

Asked when there will be a preliminary meeting on the Japanese treaty, Evatt replied:

"That's what we want. We impressed on the United States Government that the urgency in August is even greater today."

The Australian minister declined to say what American reaction was.

The U. S. proposed last August a conference of 11 nations which fought together in the Pacific to work out a peace treaty with Japan. Soviet Russia rejected that plan and proposed that the four great Pacific powers—the U. S., Britain, China and Russia—work out details.

China, meanwhile, proposed the 11 nations draft the treaty but the Big Four retain veto powers over provisions. The U. N. Assembly in New York brought a delay and thus far no date has been set for a conference or other plans made.

Should Not Be Difficult

Evatt commented that the main principles have been worked out it should not be as difficult to put by governments participating in the Far Eastern Commission and these in treaty form as in the case of Germany.

He said Australia has accepted the principle of a two-thirds majority rule for the Japanese peace conference. The Australian said the occupation task in Japan has been "a terribly difficult job" but "we think the job is being handled excellently."

Before going to the White House, Evatt spent a half hour at the Naval Medical Center in nearby Bethesda, Md., with Cordell Hull, wartime Secretary of State.

Presbyterians End Session

Rehobeth, Md., Oct. 7 (AP).—Northern and southern Presbyterians closed a two-day joint session today, a step closer to resolving the differences that have split them since the Civil War.

The meeting in historic Rehobeth church, birthplace of the Presbyterian church in America, marked the first time that the two groups had met in Maryland since the break over the slavery question.

Eight years of negotiations preceded the current conference between 150 clerical and lay leaders of the presbyteries of New Castle (north) and Norfolk (south). The results of the past two days' talks will be submitted to the two churches for a year's study, and a vote on union will be taken at the end of that time.

Most of today's session was devoted to separate business sessions of the two presbyteries, but the groups later joined to hear the Rev. G. C. McHesney of Suffolk, Va., emphasize their "common goal and common heritage."

Teapot Tempest

The furor which Representative Hoffman has raised over the alleged presence of Congressmen's names in the so-called "disloyalty" files of the Civil Service Commission cannot be regarded as anything more than a tempest in a teapot. Whatever data the commission may have on members of Congress has been casually assembled in the process of investigating the loyalty of employes and prospective employes in the executive branch. It is absurd to suppose that the commission would so step out of its legitimate role as to investigate members of Congress as such.

Apparently officials of the CSC agreed yesterday to discard whatever data they may have on Congressmen and their wives. That will probably be no serious loss to them. Congress would certainly be ill-advised, however, to order the CSC to eschew all lists of subversives on which the names of one of its members might happen to appear. Especially when it is ordering widespread investigations as to the loyalty of Government employes in the executive branch, it cannot afford to be allergic to every action that might serve to bring the records of its own members under scrutiny.

Neither the FBI nor the Civil Service Commission, however, can properly make any public or private use of information as to noncriminal conduct bearing upon the qualifications of members of Congress. Both are nonpolitical agencies and ought to remain so. Investigation of the records of Congressmen is the business of the public. Some men of questionable loyalty have been elected in spite of public knowledge of their records. But that is the responsibility of the electorate in their districts. It is not the function of the CSC or any other official agency to influence the choice of representatives at the polls, and we haven't the slightest idea that the CSC ever had any thought of using for that purpose any of the miscellaneous data on Congressmen that may have found its way into its files.

Armstrong Plan

Any reason for hesitation in acceptance of the "Armstrong Plan" has disappeared, in our opinion, with the announcement of the new international Communist organization to fight American policy in the United Nations and elsewhere. By this move Moscow has virtually abandoned the U. N., and of course, the Kremlin would be delighted if it could contain American policy within the U. N. where the Soviet veto frustrates action that is not in line with the interests of aggressive international communism. It was to meet precisely this sort of situation that the founders of the United Nations at San Francisco adopted Article 51, making it possible for nations to act collectively or singly in self-defense, pending action by the Security Council.

Hamilton Fish Armstrong, editor of Foreign Affairs, has proposed, as we have previously pointed out, that the United States take the lead in building up a defensive alliance which would be tied to the principles of the U. N. but which could act to apply those principles by less than a unanimous vote. Mr. Armstrong suggested that a two-thirds vote among the signatories of the proposed pact be sufficient to bring its forces into action against an aggressor. It must be taken for granted that the USSR would not sign such a pact, although signature would be open to her. The natural signatories would be, in addition to the United States, the members of the British Commonwealth, France, Italy, the Scandinavian countries, Greece and Turkey, the countries of Latin America and others interested in the collective maintenance of peace against the increasing threat of Soviet aggression.

Establishment of such a bloc of peace-seeking nations would by no means destroy the United Nations. On the contrary, it would afford means by which the principles of the U. N. could be kept alive in this transition period when the Security Council is moribund because of Moscow's veto. Nor would such a treaty constitute any threat to the Soviet Union or any of its satellites so long as they refrain from aggression. The only effect would be to create a new instrument for defense of the democratic world against concentrated Communist attacks. The danger of that instrument being abused would be small because it would be guided by the Charter and it could be brought into operation only by a two-thirds vote of a large number of nations with varied interests and types of government.

American sponsorship of this plan may await the outcome of the proposals of Secretary Marshall before the General Assembly. But we hope that this forward move will not be too long delayed. For collective action to thwart the U. N. has already been organized by Moscow. The United States would be false to its world responsibility if it did not provide the leadership necessary to overcome the U. N.'s paralysis in the face of this critical situation.

Commission-Made Law

Beneath the hot words of Justice Jackson's dissenting opinion in SEC vs. Chenery, released on the first day of the Supreme Court's new term, is a fundamental conflict of views as to the nature of the administrative process in a democracy. Justice Jackson, with Justice Frankfurter concurring, accused the court of upholding "administrative authoritarianism" or the power to make decisions outside of the law. Obviously that is a charge of the gravest character. Indeed, it is so grave that we wish Mr. Jackson had not detracted from the weight of his opinion by quoting from Mark Twain and using language that occasionally burst through the customary bounds of judicial restraint.

The question really boils down to how much authority Congress gave the SEC, or how much authority it may properly exercise under our system of government, to control the affairs of citizens where the matter is not specifically covered by any law, administrative rule or judicial decision. A majority of five, with Justice Murphy as spokesman, decided last June that "the very breadth of the statutory language precludes a reversal of the commission's judgment save where it has plainly abused its discretion . . ." In other words, the majority seems to have given the SEC carte blanche to carry out its edicts within vague guidelines of general policy approved by Congress. Justices Jackson and Frankfurter would hold the SEC to a much more rigid accounting for their legal authority.

What the SEC did was to order 16 directors and officers of the Chenery Corp., a holding company, to surrender to the corporation at cost, plus 4 per cent interest, about 7½ per cent of the company's preferred stock which those officers had bought on the open market while reorganization proceedings were pending. This preferred stock was to be converted into common stock, and the purchases were admittedly made for personal profit and to enable the officers to retain control of the corporation. However, the commission and the court admit that there was no deception or fraud. No law or any SEC rule was violated. Nor has any rule yet been laid down on the subject. The SEC simply asserts the power to govern stock purchases by corporate managers during a reorganization in accord with its own discretion in each case.

In 1943 the Supreme Court upset a previous SEC order in this same case. At that time the SEC contended that judge-made law condemned stock purchases of the kind in question. The court could find no such judge-made law. Thereupon, in the language of Justice Murphy, "the commission reexamined the problem, recast its rationale and reached the same result." What this means in layman's language is that the SEC, having failed to find any law made by Congress or the courts on the point at issue, made a special law of its own and applied it retroactively to the officers of only one company. The court now upholds that commission-made law on the ground that the SEC is especially competent to act in this sphere of policy-making.

This is not our conception of the prerogatives of an administrative agency under our constitutional system. We doubt that Congress ever intended to vest such power in the SEC, and if it did so we think it made a serious mistake. Our basic idea of government is that public agencies will act in accord with law that may be known in advance by citizens. It is difficult to read the court's decision in this case without getting the impression that, within broad spheres of regulatory power, it now regards administrative agencies as laws unto themselves.

Taxes Vs. Depression

A good deal of constructive thinking on how to avoid a "boom-bust" sequence in our economic development is reflected in the current report of the United States Chamber of Commerce's Committee on Economic Policy. In the opinion of the committee, business, industry and labor as well as the Government have much to contribute to long-range stability. When the demand for goods threatens to fall off, for example, prompt price reductions will tap lower levels of demand, thereby mitigating the tendency to recession. Another suggestion is that wartime experience in the making of new products be turned to good advantage when the next depression threatens. In other words, the slackening of demand for old-line commodities ought to be the signal for accelerated research and market testing activities, so as to introduce new products more quickly and thus resist lay-offs and production cut-backs.

There will be much applause for the committee's conclusion that "competition should be enforced and relied upon to pass the benefits of progress on to labor and others as consumers." Major interest naturally centers, however, in the steps which these business experts would have the Government take to ward off depression. Most important, they suggest that taxes be reduced in depression years to stimulate buying and improve the cost-price margin of business and increased in prosperous years to insure our national solvency and reduce the national debt so that freer spending will be feasible in the next period of hard times. Likewise, "postponable public works should be hoarded for periods of depression."

We think this reasoning is sound. The committee recognizes, however, as we think every realist must, that "a contracyclical public works program requires a high order of statesmanship and administration." The same is true of a policy of boosting taxes in prosperous times and lowering them in depressions. For people clamor for tax reduction in good as well as bad times, and vote-seeking legislators are inclined to heed such appeals, if it is at all feasible, regardless of long-range fiscal policies. It is interesting to remember in this connection that the United States Chamber of Commerce was one of many organizations that favored the tax reduction bills passed by Congress and vetoed by the President in this piping year of full employment and inflation.

Efforts to curtail public works in good times also meet with formidable resistance, as in the case of the Western reclamation projects this year. The real question about governmental action to tone down "booms" and avoid "busts" is whether Congress and the public will have the restraint to keep tax rates high or raise them and to hold back desirable public works when jobs are plentiful. We have plenty of evidence that Government spending can be "turned on" when depression strikes, but little evidence that it can be "turned off" in time of prosperity.

House Of Orange

In these days of turmoil the anti-monarchical sentiments of the American people have undergone a subtle change. No longer is the feeling encountered that the last word in reaction is a monarchy. It has come to be realized that there are worse, much worse, systems of government than a system topped by a King or Queen. Perhaps the behavior of some of the remaining majesties has contributed to this metamorphosis. Notably there is the example of Queen Wilhelmina, who is retiring from the throne in favor of a Regency headed by her only daughter, Juliana. Wilhelmina has been a Queen since she was 10, and she is now 67. In her long reign she has held the affection of the Dutch people because she typifies all the Dutch virtues.

It was Wilhelmina's bearing during the time of adversity that befell her country after war descended on Europe that won general admiration. Not for her any exemption from sacrifice when the people in the early days of the war were deprived of comforts and conveniences. She felt that the higher the position, the more should be the sense of responsibility and of example. To her, privilege consisted in the denial of privilege. Noblesse oblige! is the obligation so noticeably absent among the new police rulers in Europe, so habitual in most of the surviving royal households. So Wilhelmina rode a bicycle when the people were called upon to be sparing with gas. No wonder the House of Orange has thriven on this kind of "leadership principle."

Nor is there any wonder in these circumstances that Holland has become great. With few resources, the Dutch drew upon their strength of soul, and brought up their lebensraum from the bottom of the sea; no land is better cultivated than this created soil. But the sea provided Holland's main sustenance; it was the tiny herring that enabled her to develop one of the highest living standards in Europe. When Holland was liberated, the people went to work again, and their comeback has been sure if not rapid, with a political direction toward the unity of Europe. In these undertakings and with this forward look, Holland has been inspired by Queen Wilhelmina. Juliana, according to report, is in the same tradition as her mother.

Grain Margins

Grain exchanges have answered President Truman's stinging blast at speculators by voting the requested increase in cash margins to 33 per cent. This is the minimum cooperation due the food conservation program. It would have been more gracious had it followed the similar plea made by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson last week. Even now, exchange officials hedge their "reluctant" acceptance of the President's proposal with another slap at Government buying for foreign relief as the cause of the high grain prices.

If the President's figures are accurate, speculation is by no means the insignificant factor exchange officials make out. According to Mr. Truman, nearly half a year's wheat crop was traded at Chicago in a single month. Whereas normal trading in wheat on the Chicago exchange is three or four million bushels daily, the September average was 30 million bushels. Trading in wheat futures rose 75 per cent in September. Similarly, 90 per cent of the transactions in corn were found to be speculative. If this is not gambling on a grandiose scale, what is it?

As we have noted before, the effect of Government purchases is undeniable. But that buying cannot be stopped without defeating our purposes abroad. Undue speculation can and should. We sympathize with the desire of exchange officials to preserve the market liquidity necessary to attract capital. As the President himself observed, hedging is a legitimate function, but the present efforts are directed not against these operations but against those who are trying to make a killing by profiteering on world scarcity. Even though some legitimate bidders may be inconvenienced, it would be unthinkable to allow our aid program to run aground by permitting what is in effect uncontrolled trading in misery.

IN TIME OF SWALLOWS,

The pear is weighted now with more than fruit—
In hordes they come, a winged avalanche,
Descending on the tree from tip to root,
Shaking the leaves, bending each silver branch.
They overflow the meadows for miles around
In multitudes, spilling their liquid song;
This is the time of swallows . . . along the ground,
On fence posts, bushes, these living beads are strung.

And then, in thousands, they reclaim the sky,
Sailing across the soft blue sea of air,
A bright, light-winged armada; we watch them fly
To what far destination . . . suddenly aware
Of the year's waning, as the quick eye follows

Olympic Park Lumber

On September 22 you printed a communication from Lester T. Parker of Aberdeen, Wash., under the heading, "Olympic Park Boundary Revision." Mr. Parker clearly wants to see the magnificent trees on the 57,000 acres that it is proposed to take away from the park cut up into lumber.

From an economic point of view, a national park such as the Olympic will pay a greater return to the neighborhood and the State in which it is located than could possibly be matched by the lumber interests if they are allowed to satisfy their gluttony. I have talked with so-called statesmen from Wyoming who have so bitterly opposed the establishment of the Jackson Hole National Monument, and without exception they have admitted that Yellowstone National Park has produced local and State revenue and livelihood for citizens of the State of incalculable value. In other words, Yellowstone National Park, merely as a dollar and cents investment, has probably done more for the economy of Wyoming than any single enterprise in the State. Perhaps it has more value than all of the other industries of the State put together. Moreover, its value will increase with the years.

And so with Olympic. Its economic value to the State of Washington, if left as it is, as the years go by will be greater by a thousandfold than the present exploitation of the park by the lumber interests. Wisely, Mr. Parker does not attempt to explain what will become of the communities that now depend upon lumber on the Olympic Peninsula for their sustenance after that lumber is gone. They will have to readjust sometime, so why not now, leaving this immensely valuable asset to bring money into the State throughout all of the years to come? HAROLD L. ICKES.

Raedy Case

As a subscriber who has devoted 25 years and more to practicing law before the courts of the District of Columbia, including those presided over by Judge Ellen K. Raedy, I take vigorous exception to your recent editorial, " Raedy Case."

Does not Judge Raedy, or any other judge for that matter, have the same right to forfeit collateral as any other citizen? Have not there been thousands of forfeitures without so much as one word of publicity? In forfeiting $200 collateral in this "nickel and dime" traffic case, may it not well be that Judge Raedy was persuaded by some other person who was involved in this trivial traffic case to make this forfeiture in his or her behalf? Is it not logical to conclude that anyone of means would prefer the loss of $200 than further publicity in such a small matter which was magnified beyond all proportion to its importance?

No amount of printer's ink can take away from Judge Ellen K. Raedy her fine judicial record of many years. Judge Raedy is admired and respected by the members of the bar, by the judiciary of the District of Columbia, by the citizens who have served on juries in her courts, and by litigants and defendants who have witnessed her work and her judgments.

EMMETT LEO SHEEHAN.

Washington.

It seemed as though the Raedy case was to be passed by with callous indifference and it was a relief to read your editorial indicating so clearly the scrupulous honesty and integrity that should without question, be the attributes of a judge.

If Judge Raedy is not guilty, as she says, is she protecting the one who was? Someone was guilty. Would an attempt to defeat the law be permissible in a judge?

Judge Raedy should resign and face the situation as any other citizen would be expected to do.

Taxing Tenants

Many years ago when I studied civics in public school I was taught that property taxes are paid by property owners in return for municipal services rendered, such as police and fire protection of their property.

Now Mr. Cogswell, with the approval of The Washington Post, comes along and says that increased real estate taxes, necessitated by the higher cost of rendering municipal services, are to be passed on completely to the tenants occupying one-to-eight-family houses. In other words, the property owners, per se, don't have to pay a red cent extra for the additional expense involved in giving their properties the police and fire protection furnished by the city.

How about revising the textbooks to agree with Mr. Cogswell or, better still, how about revising Mr. Cogswell to agree with the textbooks? S. H.

Return To Rationing?

Some recent cartoons and editorial comment in The Washington Post are disappointing to many of us who still cherish the ideals and traditions that made America. I refer particularly to suggestions that rationing may be the only answer to the food problem.

"I want what I want when I want it," and "He'll give you the shirt off his back, if you don't try to take it by force," are American idioms with the force of slogans. They whipped Prohibition and postwar OPA. They have resulted in our giving more aid to more people than any country has ever done in history.

We have a pressing need to help Europe. We will do it to the extent that we are convinced that Europe needs help. Any effort to force rationing on a free people can only mean regimentation—and regimentation for what purpose? To save Europe from communistic regimentation? Is regimentation in America any sweeter than in Russia?

We have just so much food and so many people. Tell us how to buy less, eat less, and waste less, so we can curb inflation and help our less fortunate European brothers. But don't try to substitute force for logic or ration cards for reasoning. And don't forget that attempts to regiment people will soon be followed by a regimented press. J. A. O.

Disarmament As An Antidote

Events in the Assembly of the U. N. give increasing importance to Walter Lippmann's detailed criticism in his columns of George Kennan's now famous policy of "firm containment" of Russia. Concerning the impracticability of this particular policy, I think that Mr. Lippmann has made an impressive case. The general fear of that policy among our natural allies in Europe underlines Mr. Lippmann's point.

But his own constructive policy of peace through balance of power, his restatement of his former argument for the organization of an Atlantic community of nations as over against a Russian "orbit" is equally dubious.

Apparently, Mr. Lippmann rests his hope on the belief that the primary fact in Russian imperialistic expansion is "that the Soviet Union is the successor of the Russian Empire." Unquestionably, Stalin so regards it, but the evidence is very strong that the Politbureau's revival of Russian imperialism is still in the service of the Stalinist version of world revolution. It is amazing that so many Americans persist in ignoring the fact which the Communists have never really troubled to conceal: namely, that there can be neither final victory nor assured security for the Soviet Union and its satellite states until the goal of one-Communist-world has been achieved. To this end, a revival of Russian imperialism and pan-Slavism is definitely useful at present.

Mr. Vishinsky's almost hysterical attack upon American and British imperialism is only understandable in terms of the Stalinist thesis that there must be a conflict between the "socialism" of the Soviet Union and the "capitalism" of all the rest of the world, including even British socialism. Vishinsky prosecutes his enemies at Flushing Meadows much as he did the Bolshevik heretics in the infamous purge trials at Moscow. He uses the same strange mixture of truth, half-truth and falsehood, all subordinated to the same preconceived conception of inevitable conflict until the universal triumph of communism as interpreted by the men in the Kremlin. It is fantastically unlikely that the men in the Politbureau would accept any such balance of power as might have satisfied mere Russian imperialists.

In this desperate situation, the only possible hope of peace lies in such an actual or potential alienation of the peoples of the world from Stalin's leadership that of necessity he and his associates will pause in their drive for empire. And the one basis for winning the peoples of the world, even to some extent the Russians themselves, to any sort of cooperative for peace, is through American sponsorship of a proposal dramatically and obviously in the interest of all peoples of every nation.

The one proposal of universal value in terms of immediate relief to desperately hungry peoples, as well as the prevention of war, is the absolute end of competitive armament under effective international control such as no nation has yet proposed, except in the case of the atom bomb.

Alas, Stalin and the Politbureau are all too likely to reject effective control. Nevertheless, this rejection is not absolutely certain. And an American appeal for so rational a course might profoundly alter the attitude of the peoples of the world, including, sooner or later, the Russians themselves. If the Kremlin's intransigence necessitates two worlds, let the principle of division be the attitude of the nations toward a release of the billions they now spend to make war certain for that economic rehabilitation which otherwise cannot be achieved. At the very worst, the nations which accept comprehensive national disarmament with international provision for security may make common arrangements for their own safety in or out of the U. N., always leaving open the door for every nation to come in.

Secretary Marshall appears to hold that disarmament cannot even be discussed until there is more evidence of effective cooperation in the United Nations. Is it not more probable that a ringing appeal for disarmament as essential to peace, would arouse peoples and governments to the absolute necessity for more effective cooperation? By no means in proposing this appeal for disarmament under effective international control or limited world government am I suggesting another impotent Kellogg-Briand Pact. I am pleading that the one hope of peace lies in bringing home to the nations the fact that disarmament under genuinely effective international control is its essential condition.

European Matriarchy

By Malvina Lindsay

German Powder Keg

WOMAN IS AGAIN the stake in a great conflict. But now, not her personal, rather her political, favor is battled for. The chief arena of this struggle is Europe.

Western democracy is lagging in this contest, particularly in Germany, and this is alarming some American women leaders. Hence a movement is developing among them to have their sex do something about the German woman problem.

For one thing, they believe more American women officials—not stenographers and typists—should be used in the American occupied zone. They would also like to see created a department there devoted solely to women's affairs. Need of such action is keenly felt by State Department officials in Germany, but the economy drive on Capitol Hill has nipped the project in the bud.

The British have such a setup in their zone. They also use British women as MPs. The Soviet Union uses Russian women as traffic officers as well as in many other roles in the zone, and is now actively organizing German women into a strong political unit similar to the Russian state-sponsored Women's Anti-Fascist League.

BECAUSE of their preponderant power of numbers, women throughout Europe are the object of an ideological courtship. One bait dangled before them is "economic rights." These include means of making more bearable the double jobs at which most of them must now work in the rebuilding of their countries. Time off with pay to have babies or to look after sick children, community services of all kinds, and family benefits, such as bonuses for children, are part of the programs of political parties and of governments. More direct indoctrination takes place through the state-sponsored one-club system now becoming the pattern of organizations in eastern Europe.

In Germany women probably hold the greatest balance of power since they comprise 70 per cent of adults. There are six million more German women than men, and this produces both economic and sexual problems. These women are the most potentially dangerous group in Europe because their hunger, fatigue and hopelessness are coupled with a long background of political docility, and complete lack of interest in affairs outside their homes. They helped materially to put Hitler in power, and today many of them long for a new fuehrer as the answer to their plight. Nazi women have generally been found to be more bigoted and fanatic than Nazi men.

Appeal to these women is being made by typical Soviet and American techniques in the respective zones. Soviet officials are doing a thorough job of organization through the Democratische Frauenbund, directed from Berlin. Women are brought together in community sewing rooms, where sewing machines and materials for their urgently needed clothing repair are provided. Lecturers drop in and instruct them in political matters. Officers were elected at a convention in Berlin from one list of candidates.

In the American zone German women are encouraged to form their own organizations through their own leaders—provided these are anti-Nazis. The military government sends representatives to their conferences and encourages them so far as its personnel and money will permit.

GROWTH OF the Democratische Frauenbund is disturbing American officials in Germany, who regard its methods as totalitarian, and who have banned it from their zone. One reason it appeals to German women is that it operates similarly to the political regimentation of Hitler's national organizations for women, in which all private groups were liquidated. The one-club system is also operating in Communist Bulgaria, where a Women's Union, under direction from Sofia, embroiders, knits, studies sanitation and yells in unison at anti-Fascist rallies.

The German woman problem has had some attention from educators and social workers from this country, but more needs to be done through encouraging free organization in small communities and in developing democratic German leaders for this. Women's organizations of this type have given great vigor to American democracy. The more of these that take firm root in Germany, the better the chances of developing in German women the self-expression and initiative needed to preserve and promote human freedom.

German women leaders particularly need the encouragement of American women. And there are other phases of German women's difficulties that call for the discerning study and understanding of American women.

A start toward meeting this problem might be made if the War Department would send some outstanding American women organization leaders to Germany to survey what needs to be done. This could be the means of getting the American public aroused to the need of a department of women's affairs in a country that consists so predominantly of bewildered, desperate femininity.

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

France And The Marshall Plan

PARIS, FRANCE.—Here in the capital of western Europe the currents of opinion move in mysterious and contradictory ways. The winds that blow so hard from Washington and Moscow keep the atmosphere in a state of turbulence.

Childs

The feeling is growing, however, that the only hope for France is to manage somehow to avoid becoming more deeply involved in the quarrel between the U. S. A. and the U. S. S. R. This is particularly true of men of moderation who are neither of the extreme Left nor extreme Right. They foresee the fatal consequences for the world if everyone everywhere is to become embroiled.

This colors the French attitude toward the fate of the Marshall Plan. While it is widely recognized as essential to recovery, or for that matter to the very existence of western Europe, there is nevertheless a certain fatalism in the approach to the much-discussed, much-controverted plan.

From the American point of view the doubts about the plan are already obvious. They will be expressed with noise and vehemence in the debate to come this winter, ranging from old-fashioned isolationism to genuine distrust of the practicability of the project.

Congressmen returning to America have taken back some of these doubts. This is true not merely of junketeers who brought their prejudices with them and went home with the same prejudices. It applies also to such conscientious students as Representative Christian Herter of Boston, who sought in a month of intensive work in a half dozen capitals to learn all of the truth he could.

Doubts exist about the figures presented by the 16 nations covering their needs and capacities from 1948 through 1951. They would seem to be rather generously inflated. The experts of each country jealously eyed their colleagues, wanting to make sure that no one claimed the lion's share.

NATIONAL suspicions and rivalries kept down the community of interest. A community of purpose is expressed throughout the plan. But too often it has the sound of pious hope rather than practical intention. This is merely to suggest some of the flaws Congress is certain to dwell on.

From the European point of view, the plan has quite a different look. Of course, it is flawed. It is a compromise. Any one of the planners will tell you that. And how, he will ask, could you expect complete cooperation and community of purpose in view of the ancient roots of European nationalism? That cannot come overnight, even though the need for it is so desperate.

The doubts that Europe has are also of another kind. The debate in the United States, as Europe is slowly coming to understand, promises to be bitter and protracted. The fear here is that in the course of that debate such large chunks of the original plan will be chipped away as to alter its nature and objective.

This can happen. If it is pared down too far, then it becomes scarcely more than a relief measure. The participating nations probably would accept it as a relief measure, but with the despairing realization that as such it would solve nothing.

Another source of doubt concerns the restrictions that Congress may or may not put on the way the plan is to operate. For example, the plan envisages the purchase of raw materials in Argentina, Brazil and Canada. If Congress were to restrict such purchases with American dollars, the handicap would be considerable.

THE PLAN contemplates a considerable trade between western Europe and eastern Europe. The hope is that the coal of Poland, for example, can be exchanged for the manufactured products of the west even though Poland is a so-called satellite of Russia and as such was unable to participate in the plan.

Any attempt to prohibit such trade, as a consequence of the widening split between the two great powers, would seriously impair the operation of the plan. The fact is that raw materials from the East are essential to any lasting European recovery.

In addition, such a prohibition would be regarded as an encroachment on sovereignty. It would be a propaganda weapon that Russia would seize on at once. The parallel with the arbitrary action of the Soviet Union in forbidding the satellites to participate in the Marshall Plan would be painfully obvious.

To those who must chaperone the Marshall Plan through Congress it will be a temptation to use the tactic of belaboring Russia. This can be counted on to gain conservative votes.

But such tactics serve to keep Europe in turmoil and thereby diminish the hope of any permanent recovery. Even the most conservative newspapers here reacted against Secretary Marshall's speech at the opening of the United Nations proposing to bypass the Russian veto. The speech was regarded as merely another stratagem in the cold war between the two giants.

An almost despairing fear of another shooting war comes to the surface in talks with the average Frenchman. He fears it, he dreads it. If in coming into being, the Marshall Plan takes on the appearance of another and grander move in the struggle for supremacy, the chances of final success will be small. The ordinary man, who has endured so much, wants to believe that it represents the hope of a better world.

Migrant Labor

By Agnes E. Meyer

N. Y. Helps Workers Help Selves

(Third of a Series)

"In New York State, we are not merely trying to do things for the migrant workers. Chiefly, we are helping them to help themselves," said Dr. T. N. Hurd, chairman of the State Interdepartment Committee on Migrant Camps which I attended in Albany.

"Legislation and force are not the best tools," he continued. "Education and cooperation are the only proper methods, as all lasting improvements will have to be made by the farmers and the workers. In some cases compulsion may be necessary and the legislative power to use it as a last resort must exist. Only in one case have we been obliged to threaten to close down a camp for deliberate violations of our sanitary code. But the solution of the migrant workers' problem lies not only in providing satisfactory housing, welfare and health protection. Any real solution lies in the improvement of their economic and social life. Therefore the educational approach is the most satisfactory. It may be a slow process but in the long run it will be sound."

Production Increased

Even during the war, New York's farm labor program was characterized by cooperation rather than legal duress—cooperation between Federal and State governmental agencies and farmers, between food processors and farmers. The effectiveness of this democratic approach was demonstrated by a constantly rising total tonnage of food produced on New York farms for the past five years.

Since the passing of the war emergency, emphasis has been put by Dr. Hurd's committee on replacing the subsidized emergency farm labor program with a State cooperative program which will enable farmers to handle their labor requirements competently and independently.

Hard-Hitting Team

Can this be done on a State basis when the disappearance of the Federal Extension Service on December 31 marks the end of the interstate program for recruitment, routing and effective utilization of migrant workers?

What I saw of the excellent results achieved by New York State's farm labor program is proof that its hard-hitting team of Government agencies can go far to solve agricultural labor problems.

The first day of my tour began in Buffalo at 5:30 a. m. to inspect the day-haul which leaves that city for surrounding farms every day. Over 1000 workers found their trucks in orderly fashion. About three fourths of them were high school pupils recruited through a joint campaign conducted on a State-wide basis by the Extension Service and the public school administrators. None of these youngsters was under 14, as all the officials concerned have insisted upon enforcement of the child labor law. Last year 75,870 day-haul workers in New York State were checked by 25 day-haul assistants. This year the number has been greatly increased.

In a highly populated State like New York, the day-haul is important as 90 per cent of the fruits and vegetables are within a 50-mile range of the New York Central tracks and 80 per cent within a 25-mile range. The total day-haul and other local year-round residents now provide at least three times as much labor as the migrants.

Turn to Migrants Again

It is indicative, however, that Erie County, where industry is in sharp competition for labor, the farmers are again turning to migrants as they have no great confidence in the permanence of the day-haul system now that the war is over. Another labor source, much used in Erie County and now endangered, is the so-called family system. This is a system whereby the wives of city industrial workers move into the private labor camps of producers with all of their children while the man of the family remains on his job in the city. I saw two farms that harvest all their crops with such labor. On the one, 16 mothers had an average of four children, of whom 20 per cent were under 14. On the other, 30 per cent were under 14. In the many farms in Erie County working less than 10 people, the average of under-age children is said to be even higher. One mother told me her three children, aged 12, 8 and 6, at the height of the bean season can earn as much as $30 on a good day. The present New York child labor law prohibiting the employment of youth under 14 has been on the books since 1928. As in other States, little or no attempt has been made to enforce it.

Farmers who have for years depended upon this family system for the harvesting of their crops have recently been reminded by a State Department of Labor bulletin that they are breaking the law. The State authorities have countenanced agricultural child labor for years even before the war. They now feel that they can no longer afford to ignore their own statutes and that it may be necessary to "crack down" on offenders. As the proportion of illegal employment among youth workers in the field in 1946 was 23 per cent in the Hudson Valley, 30 per cent in the western area, and 37½ per cent in the central area, enforcement of the child labor law would undoubtedly create a crisis for many New York producers, and necessitate, at least temporarily, a greater need for migrant workers. The elimination of foreign labor will also accelerate the need for native migrants in New York, Michigan, Connecticut, Illinois, Idaho and especially in California, where most of the remaining foreigners are employed.

(Tomorrow Mrs. Meyer tells of New York's Farm Labor Cooperatives.)

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

Try, Try Again

PRESIDENT Harry S. Truman, the State Department, and the Administration advisers have decided to try again. They will try to find some way to squeeze a few millions of dollars out of the vast sums which Congress has appropriated for other purposes to keep western Europe ticking until Congress is ready to act. Already, a thorough job of combing over the various possibilities has been done. As a result it has been reported to the President that only congressional action could provide the necessary dollars. But now, the order has come from the White House to start the combing process again, and to comb more thoroughly. The reason is simple. Congressional action will almost certainly come too late. And the President and his advisers know it.

The present schedule of congressional action was established at last week's White House meeting between the Administration and congressional leaders. It calls for completion of the Harriman report by the first week in November; the hearings of the Senate and House Appropriations Committees to be finished by the first of December; a special session to be called in the first week of December; and the necessary appropriations for France and Italy to be voted by Christmas.

This is more a catalogue of hopes than a schedule. For one thing it assumes that the bull-headed Representative, John Taber, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, can somehow be persuaded that the European crisis is something more than a plot to wreck Republican tax and budget plans. This in itself would be something of a major miracle, since Taber has already implied that the Europeans are in fine shape, but just lazy. It was hoped that first-hand experience of Europe might force Taber to face the facts of the European situation. Thus Taber's recent statement, which seemed to indicate that nothing short of visible mass starvation would persuade him of the need for action, has filled the Administration policy-makers with gloomy forebodings.

YET EVEN if Taber, who almost succeeded single-handed in wrecking American policy in the Near East, is somehow hypnotized into realizing the real meaning of the European crisis to the United States, only the first of a series of hurdles will have been crossed. As Senator Arthur Vandenberg is reported to have pointed out to President Truman at last week's conference, as few as six or seven Senators, opposed to the interim aid appropriation, could easily delay it indefinitely. There would be no need to filibuster. They could merely present themselves in the role of defenders of the right of the American Senate to debate any major issue thoroughly. The debate might last well into the new year. Moreover, the die-hard Senators would find a useful ally in the creeping domestic inflation. Many politicians, busily seeking a scapegoat for high prices, are increasingly tempted to point the finger of blame at foreign spending.

Yet assume that the hoped-for best comes to pass. Assume that by December 25, the Congress has appropriated the 580 million dollars for which the President asked. This figure itself is believed to be hardly a quarter of what Undersecretary of State Will Clayton cabled from Europe would be necessary to do the job, and it is certainly some hundreds of millions of dollars less than the State Department estimate. There is some disposition in Washington to suspect that President Truman pulled the figure out of his natty gray fedora. Yet even if the amount appropriated is not too little, the action taken will certainly come too late.

UNLESS something is done very soon the pipelines to Europe would already have been empty for a month by December 25, as Undersecretary of State Robert Lovett has acknowledged. They could not be filled again overnight. Thus, even if President Truman's congressional schedule is adhered to, the two grimmest months of the European winter, December and January, would usher in mass unemployment and something close to starvation. The slowly recovering economies of Italy and France would receive a setback from which they might never recover. And the political results in western Europe would be almost mathematically calculable. The inclusion of France and Italy with the Soviet puppets in the Kremlin's new international reveal how confidently the Kremlin is calculating on these results.

That is why the Administration's lawyers and experts have been told to go back and try again to find some means—almost any means—of getting dollars to Europe without preliminary congressional sanction. To this end a new series of conferences is about to start. The Export-Import Bank, the Commodity Credit Corp., the frozen holdings of European nationals in this country, these and other possible sources of dollar aid will again be carefully scrutinized. Possibly informal congressional sanction will be requested before anything is done. Even so, as one Administration adviser remarked, "it will take a lot of pulling and stretching of the original congressional intent." Certainly, if ever before in American history, a bit of "pulling and stretching" can be justified.

Hearing Explodes at Charge Farm Home Is Mousy, Filthy

A joint Senate-House Agriculture Committee hearing erupted into a first-class row yesterday over a Department of Agriculture description of a "typical farm home."

The committee was hearing department officials outline their recommendations for a new, comprehensive farm program, which the two congressional comittees plan to offer soon after the new year.

Another red-hot session is expected today, when department officials will present their program for a "modernized parity formuli" and also their ideas about the explosive price support program.

In a statement prepared for the committee the Department will urge a floor under food consumption, using food stamps or other means. In other words, it will call for food subsidies to assure low-income families of a substantial diet at all times, as a means of avaiding surpluses of food products in periods when many persons are without sufficient food.

The parity formula to be submitted would raise parity prices for livestock and dairy products and lowgr it for grain and cotton.

Here is the description of the typical farm home that set off the TNT yesterday:

"The typical farm family," the Department said, has "mice in the kitchen and rats around the barn.

"They live in an old house, either in serious disrepair or perhaps unreparable. The are without running water, telephones, central heating, or a bathtub.

"If they have electricity, it is still new enough to seem an innovation. The windows and doors are poorly screened. Flies attend every meal, spring and summer."

The description was made by Charles F. Brannan, assistant secretary of agriculture, in an appeal to Congress to improve rural living standards.

"Deliberate falsehoods, downright lies," shouted Republican Representative Chester H. Gross (Pa.).

"An unwarranted indictment of the American farmer," declared Representative Charles B. Hoeven of the great farm state of Iowa.

Supporting the Department's picture was Democrat Representative W. R. Poage of Texas, who asserted that "half the people in some rural sections live in tumble-down shacks."

"It seems to me," Poage shouted at Gross, "if conditions on the farms in Pennsylvania are as good as you say, then the Pennsylvania farmer is living in Utopia and doesn't need any help."

Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) suddenly demanded of Brannan:

"How do you reconcile your description of farm living conditions with your secretary's activities in trying to break the grain market?"

Later Thomas declared: "It seems to be the attitude and desire of the Department of Agriculture to drive farm prices down and keep them down.

"It is injurious to the grain farmer to beta his prices down right here at harvest time. The Agriculture Department seems to represent the consumer instead of the producer."

Montgomery Officials Fail To Settle Park Bonds Row

Republicans and Democrats in Montgomery County were still at odds last night over whether the county's commissioners should approve bonds issued by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Following a meeting Monday with the Democratic officials of the planning commission, the all-Republican State legislative delegation yesterday restated its assertion that final authority over land purchases by the commission should be vested in the county commissioners.

J. Bond Smith, planning commission counsel and chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, said yesterday the commission was flatly opposed to the delegation's proposal.

The commission, it was explained, wants the present law which places a $1,200,000 limit on bonds the commission may issue, changed to raise the limit to 2 million dollars.

Offering to sponsor legislation raising the limit provided final authority is vested in the county commissioners, the Republican lawmakers said present laws required the county commissioners to guarantee the park and planning bonds and, hence, they "should have the right to say how the money should be spent."

Anders R. Lofstrand, jr., chairman of the legislative delegation, said a second meeting between the two groups had been set for Monday night.

Montgomery Board Votes 2 Million in School Funds

Two million of a proposed five-million-dollar school construction program in Montgomery County slated for 1948-49 won approval yesterday of Montgomery County commissioners.

The board also approved an $800,000 bond issue for road construction.

Both the school and road bonds will be part of a seven-million-dollar bond issue authorized at the last session of the State legislature.

School officials tentatively have proposed to use $1,251,425 of the two million for new construction, $190,000 for land purchases, $39,000 for land options and $449,000 for reconditioning which includes modernization of equipment ($71,000), building improvements ($253,000) and site improvements ($125,000).

The new construction program, according to the tentative proposal, calls for new construction as follows: North Four Corners Elementary, $30,345; Potomac Elementary, $75,000; Glenmont Elementary, $70,000; Westbrook Elementary, $195,000; Rockville Elementary, $18,900; Kensington Elementary, $100,000; Takoma Park Junior High, $100,000; Parkside Elementary, $19,080; Gaithersburg High, $37,100; Bradley Elementary, $30,000; Sherwood Elementary, $40,000.

Also: Colesville Elementary, $30,000; Flower Avenue Elementary, $80,000; Montgomery Blair Shop, $50,000; Damascus High, $100,000; Alta Vista Elementary, $30,000; Montgomery Hills Jr. High School, $50,000; a Negro elementary, $40,00, a Negro High school, $40,000; Bethesda-Chevy-Chase temporary gym, $42,400; Lincoln High School temporary gym, $31,800; Junior College Building, $31,800, and Woodlin Elementary, $10,000.

Land purchases contemplated include: Western Suburban Junior High, $97,500; Flower Avenue Elementary, $17,000; Negho high school site, $40,000; Nego elementary school, $30,000; Gaithersburg High (addition), $3500; Laytonsville Elementary (addition), $2800.

Of the $800,000 slated for road and bridge construction, $517,000 will be spent next year on 18 rural roads and $282,500 for repair and maintenance of existing roads and bridges. The roads are:

Cloppers connection and bridge, $65,000; Brookeville-Brighton, $32,500; Plyers Mill rd., $45,000; Kemp Mill rd., $30,000; Jones Bridge rd., $50,000; Charles Burdette rd. to Clarksburg, $35,000; connecting Laytonsville and Unity rds., $32,000; complete Goshen rd., $20,000; Brink to Goshen, $16,000; connection of two highways at Goshen, $15,000; John King rd., $25,000; Sugarland rd., $25,000; Ice House rd., $40,000; Martinsburg-Dickerson rd., $25,000; relocate River rd. (Old Hersberger House to Willard rd.), $25,000; Cloppers Road near Old Germantown, $10,000; Sunshine to Brighton, $15,000, and Shady Grove rd., $12,000.

A Revealing New Novel of WASHINGTON AND GOVERNMENT LIFE
"But Not Yet Slain"
by Benjamin Appel

Here is a book that has a special appeal to government workers and all Washingtonians alike. The story deals with the last act of a historic and exciting drama that is played behind the marble facades of Washington's classic structures. One by one the idealists and liberals who helped change the complexion of Washington and America under Roosevelt have been replaced by hard-boiled politicians. "But No Yet Slain" is written with a passion and sincerity which grows out of the author's personal experience.

Franco Takes Title Of Chief of Kingdom

Madrid, Oct. 7 (AP).—The government-controlled Spanish press referred to Generalissimo Francisco Franco today as "chief of the kingdom," rather than as chief of state.

This caused new rumors that Franco planned to reshuffle the government soon and make himself regent. It was reported, without confirmation, that the "Council of the Kingdom" which was authorized by the recently adopted law of succession to advise Franco and choose his successor, would be created October 12.

D. C. Sailor Aboard Lost Pacific Craft

A District radio operator was identified yesterday as one of three seamen missing for two weeks aboard four powerless minesweepers in the central Pacific.

William B. Hopkins, jr., 27, 218 11th st. sw., signed on in May to serve as radioman on board a tug hauling partially dismantled surplus Navy craft from Charleston, S. C., to Manila, in the Philippines.

Hopkins, with Horace Crosby and Leonard Metts, Charleston, volunteered to remain with the tow after Capt. Kenneth Ainslie of Sydney, Australia, was forced to cut the line when his tug, the Grimm, was running low on fuel 300 miles out of Palmyra.

Captain Ainslie refueled at Palmyra, 1000 miles south of the Hawaiian Islands, and returned to the spot where the minesweepers had been cast adrift, to find they had disappeared.

Six Army and Navy long-range patrol planes took off from Palmyra yesterday in the sixth day of air search. The Hawaiian Sea Frontier said that 11 radar-equipped planes covered 16,000 square miles in squally weather in Monday's search without sighting the mine sweepers.

Hopkins, a chief electronic's mate, was discharged from the Navy in November of last year, after eight years' service.

He was commended at Midway, where as a crewman of the Yorktown, he was one of a small group of volunteers who boarded the stricken vessel to attempt salvage operations. He is a native of Houston, Tex., came to Washington in 1943.

His wife, Mrs. Verita Louise Hopkins, lives at the 11th st. address with two children by a former marriage. Hopkins has a mother, father, and two brothers, all living in Houston.

Deaths at Hiroshima Now Officially 78,150

Tokyo, Oct. 7 (AP).—The death toll in the atomic bombing of Hiroshima was considerably less than was at first reported, headquarters officials said today, discounting the possibility that a large number of victims might still be in unlocated graves.

The latest official estimate at Hiroshima is 78,150 dead, instead of the 100,000 reported immediately after the bombing, Col. Crawford F. Sams, head of the Public Welfare Section, said.

Liquor Men Forced Compromise on Grain

By Drew Pearson

Newspaper headlines made it appear that reducing the grain used by distillers was easy. But in the backstage bargaining, some of the big whisky boys didn't yield easily. Here is what happened in the secret meeting of the President's Food Committee:

Luckman

The distillers were first asked if they would discontinue the use of grain for two months. They were reminded that they had huge reserve stocks already on hand, estimated at from 468 million to 595 million gallons, and that counting whisky, brandy, rum, gin and neutral spirits, reserves have increased about 100 million gallons over last year.

Distillery spokesmen, however, led by Joseph A. Engelhard, president of Glenmore Distilleries; R. E. Joyce, vice president of National Distilleries; Fred Lind of Seagrams, Robert Carr of Hiram Walker, and others, argued that a two-month stop-order on the use of all grains for spirits would work too great a hardship on their industry.

Engelhard and his colleagues pointed out that many distilling plants would be forced to close down entirely during the moratorium, with employes thrown out of jobs, and the risk of having key employes find permanent jobs elsewhere.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson and Charles Luckman, head of the Citizens Food Committee, countered that the distillers did not need to close if they used potatoes and other grain substitutes for alcohol.

"You gentlemen should curtail production in your own interests, aside from any conservation needs," Anderson warned the whisky men. "With the big reserves you have on hand, you are heading for a certain price war within the industry if you maintain your current rate of production. So you ought to clamp down for your own good."

Distillery spokesmen agreed that this was true, but doggedly held out against a complete moratorium.

Potatoes are not a good substitute, Engelhard and his colleagues argued, because they are 90 per cent water. Hence the industry can get only 1 gallon of alcohol out of 5 bushels of potatoes, whereas 1 bushel of grain gives 5 gallons of alcohol.

The distillery leaders insisted that they wanted to do everything possible to help the President's food-conservation program. But when it came to the real pinch—cutting out the use of grain—they balked.

So finally, after a day-long session, the best Luckman could squeeze out of the distillers was a compromise, whereby they banned all wheat in the manufacture of liquor and cut corn and other grains 30 per cent.

NOTE—Actually, corn and other grains are going to be needed almost as much as wheat, because of the shortage of cattle feed. United States dairy farmers, faced with the zooming cost of feed, will soon require another increase in the price of milk.

"Prisoner" Truman?

One Republican barb that always riles the Democrats is the charge that President Truman is a "prisoner of the left wing and the PAC."

Asked to comment on this charge the other day, former California Attorney General Bob Kenny, who heads the anti-Truman "Wallace for President" movement, said:

"It may be so, but from the looks of things, Truman's certainly been out on parole the last two years."

Secret Argentine-Russian Deal

Here's the inside story of the USA-USSR voting deadlock at the United Nations last week over seats on the all-important Security Council.

Real fact was that Russia's Vishinsky made a secret deal with Dr. Jose Arce, the Argentine delegate, whereby Argentina agreed to throw 12 Latin-American votes behind the Ukrainian Republic. In return, Russia supported Argentina's membership.

Secretary Marshall and the British delegation threw their support behind India. Result was a nine-ballot deadlock during which the Russian group got 33 votes to 24 votes for the Anglo-American group.

In the middle of the deadlock, the Arab delegations offered Vishinsky their eight votes if Vishinsky agreed to vote with the Arabs on Palestine. For some mysterious reason, Vishinsky turned down the deal—though it would have meant certain election of the Ukraine to the Security Council.

From the Diplomatic Pouch

Assistant Secretary of State Jack Peurifoy, who was refused a visa to visit Russia, now tells friends he's thinking of writing a book called "The Failure of My Mission to Moscow" . . . President Truman is considering the following as successors to Assistant Secretary of State William Benton: Wall Street Banker Frank Altschul, brother-in-law of Herbert Lehman, and Tom Finletter, head of the Air Policy Committee, an A-1 man.

British intelligence reports still indicate that Russia's Foreign Minister Molotov will stage a dramatic appearance at the United Nations later this month, making a surprise demand for immediate world disarmament. After this, according to uncensored dispatches, Molotov will head for the Big Four Foreign Ministers Conference in London, where he will come up with a new plan for unifying Germany.

Sumner Welles will make an important address at the Nation Associates dinner in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel next week . . . Robert Butler, the big Minneapolis shipbuilder, now United States Ambassador to Australia, may become Ambassador to Mexico . . . Secretary of State Marshall has received a letter from Paul Porter reminding him that, while the Freedom Train is touring the country preaching our basic freedoms, the State Department is trampling on one of those freedoms by not permitting employes fired from the State Department to face their accusers.

Mysterious Missiles Reported in Sweden

Stockholm, Oct. 7 (AP).—The newspaper Aftonbladet declared today mysterious cigar-shaped missiles were seen flying high over the city of Hudiksvall, in northern Sweden.

The objects emitted a sound similar to a motor noise, and streaks of fire from the tail, Aftonbladet said. They came from the north, and disappeared at a slow speed in the southwest.

Ex-Immigration Head In Reich for DP Study

Frankfurt, Germany, Oct. 7 (AP).—Ugo J. A. Carusi has arrived in Germany on a special assignment by President Truman "to make a three-month study of all phases of the displaced persons situation," United States Army headquarters said today.

Carusi is former commissioner of the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Divorce Voiding Stands

Los Angeles, Oct. 7 (AP).—The District Court of Appeals upheld today a ruling of last week which voided an interlocutory divorce decree obtained by Actor Brian Donlevy from Marjorie Lane Donlevy, former singer.

'The Winslow Boy'

A Stirring Play Opens at National

By Richard L. Coe

(Reprinted from yesterday's final edition)

AFTER SEVERAL FALSE starts here and in New York, the British stage has given us one of the events of the season in "The Winslow Boy."

Last night's performance of the Terence Rattigan drama was the first in this country. Impeccably acted, it is a surprisingly stirring story of an individual's triumph over apparently hopeless odds.

Rattigan's unlikely material is a father's fight for his 13-year-old son's honor. Because he has told it in terms of sharply drawn characters, with humor as well as integrity, it becomes a story with which each member of his audience identifies himself.

Inevitably one asks whether a British schoolboy's honor can have much appeal to an audience, 3000 miles away in space, 35 years away in time. In the course of his play, Rattigan's characters ask much the same question, but as you watch them you realize that it certainly can.

The Winslow Boy himself doesn't really much care. Only three of the play's eleven characters do care. His father, a dry, stern but infinitely witty parent, recognizes that his son has become simply representative of the wrong a system can do the individual. His sister, symbol, perhaps, of the dawning feminism of the late Edwardian era, also sees that a wrong has been done which must be righted. And a coldly astute legal mind recognizes that the law must, above all things, protect right. "Justice," he says, "is an easy thing. Right is much more difficult."

Ronnie has been expelled from Osborne, Britain's naval school, for having stolen a small amount of money. His father is convinced that he did not steal it. After spending much of his savings and health, the father manages to push the case into prominence—a difficult matter since a member of His Majesty's navy cannot sue the crown. Finally the land's most ruthless lawyer takes a hand and, as an M. P., is able to introduce the subject in the House of Commons.

No Courtroom Scenes

These things do not happen in the courtroom. The action is skillfully unrolled in the Winslow living room and only occasionally are you aware of the stage tricks the playwright uses to keep his story within so unexpected a frame for a legal trial. He has cleverly introduced eight disbelievers.

The boy's mother sees the endless litigation simply as one more aberration of her demanding husband's sense of ethics. The lad's brother, mildly miffed that the expense of the trial keeps him from finishing at Oxford, soon gets over it and becomes equally mildly amused at his own reflected glory. The daughter's fiance, an army officer, views it as an attack on the services, then alert to the growing lusts of the Kaiser's ambition. An unwanted suitor, a lawyer, goes along with the suit because he loves the sister, not for any conception of the question involved. And the boy himself soon busies himself with his new school or with sleep, unconscious of the storm about his head.

Rattigan got the idea for his play from a historical case, a cause celebre of the Edwardian era. He has pointed out that he in no way has attempted to dramatize the Archer-Shee case and that any relationship between the family and Lord Carson is "only by accident." What he has done is to construct the situation with characters of his own imagination.

Finely Directed Cast

How successful he has been in his insistence on character is the secret of "The Winslow Boy's" stirring appeal. Last night's audience thoroughly captured his uniquely timely plea for a freedom that seems on the wane—the inherent right of the individual.

The company—which closed only a few days ago in London where the play won the Ellen Terry award as the season's finest drama—is splendid, a finely directed cast which plays to each other superbly.

So well integrated, in fact, has been Glen Byam Shaw's direction, that to pick one of these players above another is presumptuous. In the lengthy, demanding role of the father, Alan Webb is finely effective, proud but intensely human. Frank Allenby's icy lawyer, the play's richest part, is a triumph of astute playing and Valerie White's daughter has scenes of genuine pathos.

Sixteen-year-old Michael Newell, in the title part, is exactly right and so are they all, a splendid company.

"The Winslow Boy," in short, is a play to see and relish, certainly one of the finest the year is likely to bring.

TOMORROW: Richard L. Coe reviews "The Long Night," Keith's new film.

Radio's Morgan Kind to Hollywood

Janet Blair

I asked if his week of picture making changed any pre-conceived notion he'd had of our industry. He replied, "I had no pre-conceived notion about it. The stuff I've read about the business made so little sense, I just discounted it all. It's obvious that people as stupid as motion picture personalities are made to appear couldn't turn out intelligent pictures. And occasionally Hollywood does make a good film."

Round two: "Were you nervous the first time you appeared before the camera?" asked I. "Not at all," he replied. "I figured that if anybody should be jittery, it should be the cameraman. It was his job, not mine, to see that I was transferred to the screen properly."

Round three: "Do your jibes on the air ever get you in trouble?" asked I. "Rarely," said he. "But strangely 'nough, I had a lot of kickbacks when I started battling high rents and the housing situation. People called me a lefty. But when a kid like Audie Murphy, the greatest hero World War II, produced, winds up sleeping on an army cot in a gym, it's time we did something."

Not Complaining

I left Mr. Morgan and wandered over to the Paramount lot, where Audie's doing his first picture, "The Long Gray Line." He was not bitter. "I could get an apartment for $130 a month," said he, "but I can't afford to pay that much. At least, I'm warm. During the war my hair froze to the ground so much when sleeping in the open that the back of my head was practically bald. When I raised my head, I always left some of my hair in the ice." He now, at least, has a nice soft pillow in a grateful postwar world. . . . Audie wants to work; and I don't understand why our producers haven't given him the breaks he has more than merited. In Jimmy Cagney's next picture, "Only the Valiant" there's a part of a young army bugler which would fit Audie like a glove. How about giving him a crack at it, Jimmy?

Red Gets the Brush

Red Skelton will have Janet Blair as his leading lady in "The Fuller Brush Man." She'll play the secretary who moves Red into the brush business after he loses his job as a street cleaner. This means that "Let's Fall in Love," for which Janet is also set, will have to be postponed. . . . Stuck my head into Bob Hope's dressing room and found him all done up in buckskin and feathers for his "Pale Face" role. He had a telephone in one hand, a script in the other, and was managing to talk to a couple other people at the same time. "I'm a tired guy," said he. "So I'm asking Paramount to delay the start of 'Sorrowful Jones' for at least three months." In that picture, Bob will play a straight role. It's a remake of the Damon Runyon story, "Little Miss Marker," which starred Adolphe Menjou and Shirley Temple some years ago.

A Lonely Lady

Ann Todd writes from England: "Nigel [her husband] and I feel lost since I finished 'So Evil My Love.' I never enjoyed making a film so much. I adored my part—and why not? I'm off the screen for hardly a minute. Before the Hal Wallises and Ray Millands left for America, we gave a party. David Niven, Cary Grant, Margaret Sullavan, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Elizabeth Allen, the Lewis Allens, Alex Korda, and Roger Livesey—all your friends—were present. The party wasn't as grand as the one we had in Beverly Hills, but God was merciful, and there was no rain. So we used our back yard, which we now lovingly call the 'patio' . . . we miss your sunshine and oranges. I also miss appearing with you on the radio. Practically all the cars are off our roads now. Getting on a bus or train is next to impossible. We're off to France for a last flip to see a play which Gilbert Miller wants me to do in England. I start my new film in January. Our love to you and California."

Havana Slum Is 'Not the Type'

Hollywood.—There is one shot in "To the Ends of the Earth," Columbia's Dick Powell - Signe Hasso picture, for which authenticity had to be set aside.

The scene shows Dick Powell in a tenement room in Havana. But actual slum dwellings in the Cuban capital couldn't be used, because they are all in an old, aristocratic part of the city, in which marble tables, marble fireplaces and velour drapes are still in evidence. Otherwise, they're squalid enough.

Physicians Hear Rice Diet Defended

Originator Calls It Best Treatment Found for High Blood Pressure Cases

Physicians in assembly here yesterday heard defense of the controversial rice diet for high blood pressure, a progress report on sex stabilization procedures, and condemnation for "inept" diagnosis of heart ailments.

The papers were delivered by specialists in their fields at the second of three daily sessions of the eighteenth annual scientific assembly of the District Medical Society. Nearly 2500 physicians are registered for the meetings.

Dr. Walter Kempner, originator of the rice diet for hypertension, an assistant professor of medicine at Duke University School of Medicine, Durham, N. C., termed his diet system "the best we have found" for treatment of high blood pressure.

Not a Pleasant Diet

Admitting his diet, consisting mainly of ungarnished rice, is "most unpleasant" and "difficult to get patients to follow," he argued that it be taken before sympathectomy, surgical operation on the blood vessels. He cited numerous cases where patients benefitted by the diet "where orthodox treatments previously had failed."

The diet, which is supplemented by some fruit and vitamins to forestall deficiency diseases, "is dangerous, if not properly controlled," he warned the physicians.

Some beneficial effects of the diet, he said, had been noted after four days, but the average time lapse before benefit is apparent is "several months." With some patients, he said, it was 11 months before beneficial reduction in blood pressure was noted.

Report on Sex Experiments

Dr. Meyer M. Melicow, instructor in urology in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University, gave the physicians a progress report on sex stabilization measures.

Dr. Melicow told of "some successes" through injections and operations on adrenal glands in maladjusted sex cases where patients had developed mixed gender.

Most of the successes, he said, were among children where developing transition of sexes was arrested in early stages. One 18-year-old woman, however, was among those restored to her proper sex by treatment, he reported.

Dr. Melicow laid much of the blame for such mistakes of nature to malfunction of the adrenal glands. He stated however, that the limited number of the treatments given ,was insufficient to base "proper conclusions."

Dr. John T. King, associate professor of medicine, Johns Hopkins Medical School, told doctors attending a morning session of the scientific assembly that too many physicians are using the term "pseudoangina" as "a catch-all diagnosis."

"The term pseudoangina is a diagnosis reflecting the inability of the physician to arrive at a more specific conclusion," he declared. "Advance in diagnostic methods is permitting more accurate diagnosis of cases previously thrown into the catch-all diagnosis of pseudoangina."

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Oct. 7 (AP).—Nervous tendencies marked the grain futures trading today, with all grains spurting following the opening in active trading and then falling back to a mixed closing in Wheat and oats.

The nearby contracts recorded the sharpest advances, responding to reports that the Government had made heavy purchases of wheat yesterday. The Commodity Credit Corporation announced purchase of 5,833,000 bushels yesterday.

Traders also had reports of a dust storm in Liberal, Kans., but a five-day Government weather forecast promised badly needed rain over the winter wheat section. The forecast of rain and an attractive advance led to profit cashing.

At the close wheat was ¾ lower to 6½ higher, December 2.85½. Corn was 1 to 3¼ cents higher, December, 2.24@2.24¾. Oats were ⅝ lower to 3½ higher, December 113@1.13⅝.

Brokers said they saw little effect of the increased margin requirements which became effectiv today. At th request o the Government the directors of the Board of Trade ordered all margins for initial trades placed at 33⅓ per cent o the price of grain at the time any delivery was purchased. There were indications that the volume of trading was not up to that of recent sessions. The exact amount dealt in will be made known tomorrow before the start of trading.

New York Cotton

New York, Oct. 7 (AP).—Cotton futures lost practically all of their early gains of $2 a bale as heavy profit-taking came into the market in late dealings. New lows for the day were made near the close with final prices 50 cents a bale higher to 35 cents lower. Broad trade and outside buying was stimulated by lower private estimates crop forecasts, expectations for the continued strong statistical position in cotton, and the optimistic outlook on farm commodities taken by the Department of Agriculture at hearings before the Senate-House Agriculture Committee.

Newsprint Supply From Canada Nearing Demand

Toronto, Oct. 7 (AP).—Canadian newsprint producers told a United States congressional committee today newsprint supply for United States consumers next year would be within 5 per cent of maximum demand.

The information was given by Robert M. Fowler, president of the Newsprint Association of Canada, to a special House newsprint committee here for three days of round-table discussions on the paper situation.

Fowler estimated the probable shortage for season 1947-48 between 235,000 and 245,000 tons against maximum demand of five million tons. The current year shortage is 435,000 tons against a demand of four and three quarter million tons.

In the next three years, Fowler said, Canadian mills will increase production by an estimated 300,000 tons.

Fowler blamed the present shortage on idle productive capacity, claiming an association survey showed existing machine capacity at about 500,000 tons in excess of current demand. But more than 1,500,000 tons of machine capacity is idle, He said, due to lack of raw materials and necessity of repairs.

Clubwoman Brands 'New Look' Dangerous

Chicago, Oct. 7 (AP).—The "new look" was called a "fashion hazard" today by the safety chairman of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, who suggested laboratory research on the length of skirts.

Said Mrs. George W. Jaqua of Winchester, Ind.:

Class 1 Rails Show Lower August Net

By S. Oliver Goodman

August net income of Class 1 railroads was estimated yesterday at $52,300,000, compared with $53,400,000 in August, 1946.

The Association of American Railroads, reporting this yesterday, added that the carriers' net income for the first eight months this year is estimated at 294 million dollars against $65,400,000 in the like 1946 period. The AAR pointed out that net income represents the amount left after payment of operating expenses, taxes, interests, rentals and other fixed charges.

The gain over last year was due primarily to a distorted comparison, because the first six months of 1946 "included a period of industrial disturbances, work stoppages and railroad wage increases resulting in "abnormally low" railroad earnings.

The rate of return on property investment averaged 3.33 per cent for 12 months ended August 31, 1947, compared with a 1.47 per cent return rate for the previous 12 months, the AAR noted.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Tom Bell of Alexandria, Va., has been named public relations manager in Washington for Trans World Airline. He will continue to serve as TWA news bureau director here and will handle public relations over an area extending south to Florida. John J. Corris has been added to TWA news staff here . . . F. S. Cresswell, manager of National Clay Pipe Manufacturers of Alexandria, Va., has been appointed a member of a special nine-man committee of the United States Bureau of Standards to draft final specifications for an improved type of vitrified clay perforated pipe . . . A. Ford Hinrichs, economist of Kiplinger Washington Agency, will address a Chicago convention of Controllers Institute of America later this month.

NEW MEMBER: George R. Galleher of Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Bean yesterday was admitted to the Washington Stock Exchange as a member. He takes over the seat relinquished by George A. Garrett who became United States Minister to Ireland. Galleher, native of Prince William County, Va., attended George Washington University and graduated from the American Institute of Banking. Associated with the Merrill Lynch firm for nearly two years, he formerly served three years in the Navy and was associated for 10 years with Lincoln National Bank.

KAMAN'S PROGRESS: Young Charles H. Kaman of Washington is in the midst of his biggest experiment. He's built an amphibious helicopter which after its first flight is being developed further. His Washington friends remember Kaman as an aircraft engineering expert who won many model airplane awards. Born in Washington in 1919, he graduated from Roosevelt High School and Catholic University. After working five years with United Aircraft Corp., he resigned in 1945 to found the Kaman Aircraft Corp. At present he is president and chairman of the board of the firm in West Hartford, Conn. Initial flight of the Kaman helicopter, Model K-125-A, took place at Bradley Field, Conn., on January 15, 1947. Since, the corporation has concentrated on engineering flight development of this model and design and construction of a prototype K-190-A.

PURELY LOCAL: Columbia Federal Savings & Loan Association, observing its fortieth anniversary today, reports resources of $13,600,000, savings share accounts of $12,300,000, and loans of 11 million dollars . . . Members of auditors section of District Bankers Association will hold first regular meeting of season tomorrow night at Burlington Hotel. Mrs. Margaret McClure, chairman, will preside . . . Twenty members of Washington branch of New York Life Insurance Co. will attend convention at Savannah, Ga.

ODD LOTS: Instead of the Communist-desired tailspin toward which our economy is currently supposed to be headed, North American free enterprise continues to flourish under the incentive of profit motive, said Earl O. Shreve, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, in an address yesterday at Quebec. . . . G. C. Murphy Co. reported September sales of $9,234,163, an increase of 18.3 per cent over like 1946 month. . . . General Motors Corp. opened new assembly plant in Wilmington, Del., capable of turning out 640 new autos daily. . . . Commerce Department reported August sales of independent wholesalers declined about 3 per cent from July to lowest level so far this year.

EARNINGS: Spencer Kellogg & Sons, producer and refiner of vegetable oils, reported net earnings for fiscal year ended August 30 of $12,382,838, equal to $10.13 a common share, compared with $2,593,950, or $2.12 a common share, in preceding fiscal year. Other income reports yesterday included:

Railroads Allowed Freight Rate Hike

Increase in Passenger Fares Granted Many Lines in South by ICC

The Nation's railroads yesterday were granted a 700-million-dollar annual freight rate increase, while many Southern roads were authorized to increase their basic passenger fares both in coaches and in sleeping and parlor cars.

Faricy

Both actions were taken by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The freight rate ruling was on a petition by the roads for a 10 per cent emergency increase pending completion of hearings on increases that will average about 27 per cent.

The ICC specified exceptions to the 10 per cent increase in the case of coal, coke and iron ore, on which boosts of 10 to 11 cents per ton were granted.

Three Days' Notice

The higher rates may be made effective upon three days' notice to the general public by each railroad.

The emergency boost was sought to cover recent wage increases and higher materials and operating costs.

The commission also authorized freight forwarders, who assemble small lots of freight for consolidated shipment, and water carriers competing with the railroads to make the 10 per cent increase.

President William T. Faricy of the Association of American Railroads said in a statement that:

"Although the temporary increase will be helpful in tiding the railroads over the immediate critical period that lies ahead because of the recent wage increase, it is essential that the railroads be given as soon as possible further and adequate increases in freight rates. It is essential because unless the railroads can make ends meet and earn a fair and reasonable return on the money invested in their properties, they will not be able to keep financially and physically strong, which is so vital to the Nation's prosperity and security."

The increases granted were approximately what the railroads asked during two weeks of hearings last month. At that time diverse shipping interests protested that a further freight rate increase now would give impetus to "the rising spiral" of higher living costs.

The full 11-member commission concurred in the increase granted.

Further hearings are to be held shortly in the East, South, West and Far West on the long term rate adjustments proposed by the railroads.

U. S. Population Gain for Year Sets Record

The population of the United States increased by 2,279,000 last year for its biggest gain in history, the Census Bureau estimated yesterday.

The January 1, 1947, total of 142,673,000 was about 11 million above the 1940 census.

Latest available figures for the District show a civilian population of 815,195 as of July 1, 1946, a reduction of 8549 from July 1, 1945, and 78,805 from July 1, 1944.

However, District figures of July 1, 1946, showed a 23.9 per cent increase, or 157,177, in the six years since 1940.

The bureau said that a net immigration of about 251,000 was a negligible factor in last year's "striking" national increase. It attributed the gain primarily to "the large rise in the birth rate following demobilization and the continuation of the death rate at a low level."

Alexandria Council Plans Budget Check

Alexandria City Council, preparing for a "fresh start' 'on the city's 1948 budget, will meet in closed session tomorrow night with city officials whose salaries are paid in part by the State.

The meeting was called after a special session Monday night at which the council rescinded appropriations amounting to about $235,000.

The funds represented special appropriations for improvement projects not yet started.

Col. Everett A. Hellmuth, chairman of the council's finance committee, said the appropriations, which were not listed in the city's budget, created a "theoretical debt" despite the fact the city now faces no shortage of funds.

Among projects for which funds were withdrawn were a proposed aerial map survey authorized last year in connection with proposed annexation proceedings against Fairfax County, repaving of Commonwealth ave., covering of part of Booths Run, and a city-wide traffic survey.

At tomorrow night's meeting, the council will seek to determine how much money the city will have to put up for the partly State-paid employes to match State appropriations.

State officials who have been asked to meet with the council include Commonwealth's Attorney Howard W. Smith, jr., City Sergeant Robert H. Cox, City Treasurer Roger C. Sullivan and Commissioner of Revenue Aubrey Callahan.

Wholesalers Pledged To Battle Price Rises

New York, Oct. 7 (AP).—Joseph Kolodny, reelected today as president of the National Association of Wholesalers, said the group would move to mobilize all wholesale trades in support of the Government's battle against inflation.

Kolodny, president of the Jersey City Tobacco Co., said the association pledged "resistance against any further upward spirals in prices" and proposed "to so improve the efficiency of wholesale distribution in all trades so that operational savings will be reflected in lowered prices to the consumer."

Bluege Named Head of Nats' Farm System; Topping Succeeds MacPhail as Yanks' Boss

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

WHEN OSSIE BLUEGE walked into Clark Griffith's little stucco office at Griffith Stadium, it was scarcely a social call, despite their long friendship. Bluege wanted to discuss a little business matter, specifically, who was going to manage the Washington Ball Club next season?

POVICH

Bluege was curious to know if the club's manager in 1948 would bear the name of Ossie Bluege? His two-year contract had ended on September 30, and Griffith said he would discuss his 1948 managerial plans after the World Series. Well, the World Series was over, Griffith was in town again, and Bluege had never left the city.

At Griffith's first words, Bluege knew that the Washington manager for 1948 would not be Bluege.

"I'm going to tell you something you might not like," said Griffith.

"Shoot," said Bluege grimly.

"I want you to be the supervisor of our farm system," said Griffith. "We'll get a new manager. I want you to take an upstairs office near me. Do you want this new job I've planned for you?"

BLUEGE TOOK IT. In fact, Griffith was dropping into Bluege's lap the job the manager had long planned for himself. Half apologetically, the Nats owner was offering Bluege a position the latter had been trying to create for five years. "I spoke to Griffith so often about his haphazard farm system that I guess I talked myself into the job," said Bluege later.

The Nats six-team farm system was without direction. Chiefly it was supervised by Vice President Calvin Griffith, who had numberless other duties. Scout Joe Cambria was virtually the only contact between the head office and the minor league clubs. Not in a half dozen years had the Nats come up with a player from their farm teams who has made good. Bluege repeatedly impressed Griffith with the need for closer contacts.

"We're not going far with what we have," said Bluege. "We're up against it trying to strengthen our club by trades. We don't have trading material. The only ball players we can get are those we might develop on our own teams. It's time now to face it, after struggling the way we have been the last few seasons. It's the job that I've wanted for a long time.

BLUEGE'S TRANSFER to the front office is fresh evidence of the tight little corporation that Griffith conducts as his Washington Baseball Club, Inc. The Nats take care of their own. Griffith's former ball players get a nice deal from him. His three coaches, Sammy West, Rick Ferrell and Clyde Milan have their jobs because they wore Washington uniforms.

For the past 23 years, all of Griffith's four managers—Stanley Harris, Joe Cronin, Walter Johnson and Bluege—were guys who formerly played ball for him, and the suspicion is that the new Washington manager will also be a former player of Griffith's.

In the front office, it's the same way, with Griffith gathering about him executives who have long been of the Griffith Stadium family. His business manager, Edward B. Eynon, jr., moved in 28 years ago when Griffith bought control of the Nats, and there never has been a change in that post. The club's vice president is Calvin Griffith, a nephew and former bat boy. Johnny Morrissey has been the chief ticket seller for 25 years. On the gates are the septuagenarians who used to play ball with Griffith in the 80s.

GRIFFITH CALLS Bluege's new post "the most important job in a baseball organization." He said, "it's even more important than my job as president. Our team can only go as far as our players from the farm system take us. The day when you could buy or trade for good players is over. There are no clubs that need money.

"It used to be that teams could make big profits selling players, but now they know that the most profit is to be made at the gate, on attendance.

"About 12 years ago, we came up with Cecil Travis and Buddy Lewis from our Chattanooga farm team. They were great players and for 10 years we didn't have to worry about two positions on our team. We lost hundreds of thousands of dollars operating Chattanooga, but Travis and Lewis compensated us. We've been letting our farm clubs rock along without smart supervision. It's a big job we're giving Bluege."

Pick the Grid Winners

Win a free trip to the Army-Navy game.

CERTAINLY YOU would like to see the University of Pennsylvania and Columbia, two of the East's leading college teams, meet in Philadelphia, October 18.

Here is your chance to attend that game by winning this week's Pick-The-Winner contest. The person submitting the most accurate entry will receive four (4) tickets to the Penn-Columbia game.

One winner will be determined each week with the Pick-The-Winner contest continuing through the week of November 16-22.

There will be six winners in all. At the end of the contest, each winner will receive two (2) tickets to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia, November 29. The entire party of twelve 12 persons will be guests of The Washington Post on an all-expense paid trip to Philadelphia for the big game.

Send in your entries as early as possible each week.

Larry Sells Stock for $2,000,000

By Bob Considine

New York, Oct. 7 (INS).—Larry MacPhail, the eccentric genius of baseball and president of the New York Yankees until they won the 1947 World Series yesterday, officially bowed out of his job tonight for a reported two million dollars.

MacPhail's share of the Yankee organization stock was bought up by Dan Topping, who succeeds MacPhail as president, and Del Webb, Phoeniz, Ariz., contractor who joined with MacPhail in arranging for the purchase of the club in 1941.

George Weiss, heretofore in charge of the Yankee farm system, was announced as the club's general manager at a news conference tonight formally removing the bellicose MacPhail from the Yankee empire.

Under the new alignment, Topping is president of both the football Yankees of the All-America conference and the Yankee baseball team. He has held the football post all along, but has been vice president of the baseball interests.

Officials did not announce terms o fthe purchase of MacPhail's stock, but according to reliable reports the man who built the Dodgers into prewar pennant winners and the Yankees into postwar world champions was bought out in full for two million dollars and will retire from the scene of action.

He went out with fists swinging and with a hoarse roar of farewell in the general direction of all listeners at last night's Yankee victory banquet.

He previously had announced his resignation yesterday afternoon in the Yankee clubhouse.

Webb, Topping Take Stock

Topping and Webb said that MacPhail's resignation yesterday came as a "complete surprise" to them and they first learned of it from reporters.

They had assumed that he would continue as president and general manager until 1950 at $50,000 a year.

They declined to reveal what they paid MacPhail for his one-third interest in the Yankees, but said the stock had been purchased "at a pretty definite increase over what he paid for it," and added that the stock would be retired.

It was made clear that friction developed among the three officials when MacPhail made plans to sell part of the stock to the public without first offering the stock to his partners in keeping with an agreement under which they worked.

Brawl Is Decisive Factor

They also made it clear that his demonstration last night, when he threw punches at sundry people including Topping, according to reports, deprived him finally of any chance to remain with the Yankee organization.

The fist-swinging former head of the vast Yankee empire went to the opera tonight.

In his resignation he said simply:

"I have this day resigned as president, treasurer, director and general manager of the New York Yankees." The resignation was dated today and followed by an emphatic MacPhail signature.

Topping, former husband of Sonja Henie and heir to tin plate millions, and Webb, who parlayed a carpenter's hammer and saw into a contractor's millions, will share equally in ownership of the club henceforward. Webb remains vice president.

Their statement said:

"Resignation Accepted"

"We wish to announce that this corporation has purchased L. S. MacPhail's interest in the American League Baseball Club of New York, Inc.

"His resignation has been accepted, effective today.

"At a meeting of the board of directors held this afternoon, Dan Topping was elected president of the American League Baseball Club of New York, Inc., and George Weiss, who has been vice president in charge of minor league operations, was elected general manager to be in charge of all baseball operations.

HE DIDN'T FORGET—Joe Tereshinski, (right) rookie end of the Redskins, pays one of his regular visits to a former teammate at the University of Georgia, Capt. George Poschner. An All-American end selection with Georgia's 1942 Rose Bowl team, Poschner is now at Walter Reed Hospital recovering from World War II wounds which caused the loss of both lower legs, paralysis of his left arm and the loss of fingers on his right hand. George is one of Joe's severest critics, and Joe likes that. "After all," he says," George taught me everything I know about football"

Veeck Gunning For Pennant

Cleveland, Oct. 7 (AP).—"To me," Cleveland Indians President Bill Veeck was quoted as saying today, "nothing on this earth is more important that winning the pennant."

Cleveland News Writer Ed McAuley quoted Veeck on that statement, and said Veeck's considered deal to swap Tribe Manager Lou Boudreau for St. Louis' Vern Stephens "still is definitely red hot."

In a story from New York, McAuley said the fiery tribe chief gave this version of his relations with Boudreau:

"Lou and I had a difference of opinion over the length of his contract, so too many people believe that's why I am thinking of trading him. The contract matter is inconsequential. I am thinking of trading Lou for one reason only. I think it would improve our chances of winning the pennant."

Veeck explained that it would be necessary to swap a first class player to obtain the athletes who could bring Cleveland its first pennant since its sole flag winner in 1920, McAuley said, quoting Bill further:

"I'd do anything to win a pennant. I'd trade (Bob) Feller and (Joe) Gordon, and (Bob) Lemon and everyone else on the club if I were convinced that by doing so I'd wind up with a real contender. I'm going to have one. If this Boudreau deal should fall through, you may be surprised at what I'll try as an alternative."

Tereshinski Happy With 'Skins —'Skins Happy About Ends

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Joe Tereshinski, the enormous Redskin end who was once introduced as the guy "who liked to knock people down," yesterday expressed a considered opinion.

"I'm glad to be with the Redskins," he said in his pleasant voice, a cross between a Pennsylvania clip and a Georgia drawl.

Joe's sentiment, in reverse, is expressed in much stronger terms by the Redskin front office. The Redskins are over-joyed to have Tereshinski as an important member of the finest group of young ends ever to turn up here. It took a lot of waiting . . .

For year the local pros went begging for ends. Ever since Wayne Millner and Charley Malone were active. Even then they had no such flood of talent as now sports itself in the burgundy and gold.

They've got six (count 'em) top flight wingmen, plus big Jim Peebles who is working now at tackle. It's the best group, the Redskins think, ever to play in Washington and perhaps anywhere.

Tereshinski himself is called the greatest defensive possibility of all time. Hugh Taylor, with four touchdown passes caught so far, is the best pass catcher. And every one of the others—Joe Duckworth, Doug Turley, Paul McKee and John Lookabaugh — contributes greatly to the stellar lineup.

None of the seven, including Peebles, is under 6 feet two or 200 pounds. All are fast capable pass catchers and tacklers. Duckworth and Lookabaugh sparkle on pass defense and if you've ever seen a sneakier guy than Taylor at getting around the oppositions' aerial defense, you must have been looking at Don Hutson.

Students Asked To Take It Easy On Gamecocks

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 7 (AP).—University of South Carolina and Clemson College students were asked today to take it easy on chickens "and other animals" at the annual Carolina-Clemson football game here October 23.

The plea, from the Richland County Chapter of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, was made to Presidents Norman M. Smith of the University and R. F. Poole of Clemson and asked for student "cooperation . . . in seeing that no harm befalls any gamecock, or any other animal, in connection with this year's game."

At last year's game, two spectators twirled a gamecock, university athletic symbol, by the neck until the head was twisted off.

The Battle Begins

Haight Tightens His Belt, Remembering Japs Had Diet

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

WHEN PRESIDENT TRUMAN said we would have to tighten our belts, I tried and what happened—a broken belt.

Now you don't find size 48 belts growing on clothes trees. Suspenders are out. I couldn't ask so much to depend on so little.

And I don't enjoy those wisecrackers, like the sales girl who, after dragging out all the belts in the store, remarked, "Mister, you don't want a belt. You need a leash."

Perhaps it was a coincidence but seems darned funny to me that one night the President asks for food conservation and the next morning my boss phones and says, "Haight, you're on a diet."

I'll have to admit I felt a bit flattered.

It would be untrue to say that my stomach hasn't been prominent. But now, all of a sudden, it takes on international importance—like Stalin's mustache or Churchill's cigar.

IT'S ALL ON account of a woman, too.

As if they don't have enough trouble of their own letting out those hems one has to come along and write a diet "For Men Only."

Perhaps she's forgotten the Japs had a diet and look what happened to them.

The first thing I did was to consult my doctor. He asked two questions (1) when are you going to pay your bill (2) what do you like in the third at Laural?

(Editor's Note.—Please see Diet for Men in women's section.)

Mont, Pacewic In Redskin Deals

Tommy Mont, quarterback pride of the University of Maryland, yesterday was sent to the Washington Redskins' farm club in Wilmington for "seasoning" at the same time Vince Pacewic, fullback, was recalled.

While Tackle Johnny Adams was idle with his foot in a cast, a former Redskin tackle who asked to be placed on the reserve list, was back in town seeking a contract. He is John Koniszewski, 250-pounder from George Washington.

Joe Fulks Absent At Warrior Drill

Philadelphia, Oct. 7 (AP).—Joe Fulks, individual scoring champion of the Basketball Association of America last season, will be the only player absent today as the Philadelphia Warriors begin workouts.

Griff Ducks Queries About New Manager

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Ossie Bluege's five-year term as manager of the Washington Baseball Club came to an end yesterday with an announcement by President Clark Griffith that Bluege would take a new post as supervisor of the club's farm teams.

Griffith attempted to cut short speculation as to Bluege's successor as manager with the statement: "I won't talk about that. I will announce my new manager in a couple of weeks."

The Nats owner ducked all questions aimed at identifying Bluege's successor.

Asked if he would follow custom by appointing a Washington player from the ranks, he said, "I might."

To the suggestion that Second Baseman Gerry Priddy might be given the job, Griffith shook his head.

"I'm negotiating with three or four men," said Griffith. "Perhaps in eight or ten days I'll have an announcement. I can't talk about it until then."

Griffith's statement announcing Bluege's transfer to the office post read:

"In a conference between Manager Bluege and myself it was agreed that Ossie would forego the management of the club and take charge of the expanded farm system. The Washington club intends eventually to have a farm system second to none, and I figure Bluege is just the man that can perfect such an organization.

"Bluege will occupy an upstairs office at the ball park and take over his duties in this field the first of the year."

Griffith declared that he had found no fault with Bluege's management of the club this season despite the seventh-place finish of the team.

"He's now taking on the most important job in the organization—supervising our various farm clubs—and I can think of no man better fitted for it," Griffith said.

The flare-up of last month when Bluege swung punches at a Washington baseball correspondent and reportedly put down a revolt of the players against his management, had no bearing on the transfer of Bluege to the front office, said Griffith.

"He had my support in that matter," he said.

Seven clubs now comprise the Washington farm system, and Griffith declared: "We hope to add a club in a Triple-A League and two or three more in smaller classifications. Bluege already has control over nearly 200 minor league players who are our property."

Chattanooga, in the Double A Southern Association, thus far is Washington's most important farm. Griffith has two B League clubs, Charlotte in the Tri-State and Bridgeport, Conn., in the Colonial League. He owns the Class C Havana club in the Florida International League and three D-League teams, Orlando, Fla.; Kingsport, Tenn., and Brewton, Ala.

Bluege's new post marks his twenty-seventh year of service with the Washington club, after being bought from Peoria in the Three-Eye League in 1921. He blossomed as the top third baseman of the American League and played on the 1924-25-33 pennant winners, retiring as a player in 1935 to become a coach under Bucky Harris.

Bluege succeeded Harris as manager in 1943 and in his first season finished second. A year later he saw his Washington club finish eighth for the first time since 1909, but in 1945 he took the Nats into second place, only a game and a half behind the pennant-winning Tigers and was acclaimed as Manager of the Year. The Nats finished fourth in Bluege's fourth season, and seventh in 1947.

Rick Ferrell Heads List of Possibilities

Four names were advanced yesterday as possible successors to Ossie Bleuge as manager of the Washington Baseball Club following Bleuege's transfer to supervisor of the club's farm system.

Heading the list was that of Rick Ferrell, veteran catcher and coach of the Nats part of the past season.

In the expectation that President Clarfi Griffith would follow precedent by naming a former Washington player as his new manager, it was presumed that he also is giving consideration to Sammy West, another coach of the Nats, and Buddy Myer, former Nat second baseman.

Joe Kuhel, former first baseman of the Nats, also was suggested as a possibility.

It was learned that Griffith would not promote any man from his playing ranks as his next manager. A source close to the Washington owner declared, "He does not like playing managers."

As between Ferrell and the others mentioned, Griffith is said to favor Ferrell who has been close to the Washington club's strategy for a long period.

Ferrell has been with the Nats off and on since 1937, and has been looked upon as one of the headier players.

The report that Myer was under consideration stems from his presence at the World Series where he met Griffith.

Mrs. Bower Wins Platter

Mrs. A. B. Bower of Indian Spring won low net honors with 76—2—74 yesterday in the President's Platter Tournament at the [illegible] Golf and Country Club.

Low gross laurels went to Mrs. Betty Meckley of Kenwood with 80. Trailing in the low net parade were Mrs. M. H. Dinneen of Washington, 89—11—78; Mrs. Walter Stokes of Manor, 82—2—80, and Mrs. Walter R. Keifer of Chevy Chase, 108—28—80.

Duck Hunters Open Season

New York, Oct. 7 (AP).—Sportsmen will have 110 million wild ducks for targets, Ducks, Unlimited, estimated today as the Nation's abbreviated hunting season got under way at noon in 12 States.

Shooting started at noon today in Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, Idaho, Wyoming, Maine and New Hampshire. The bag limits, as well as the season, have been trimmed sharply this year. You are now allowed four ducks a day with a possession limit of eight. A year ago hunters were allowed 7 and 14 and two years ago the limits were 10 and 20.

Sexton, Sharkey In Title Bout

Wrestling Champion Frank Sexton, unbeaten since he became the titleholder in January, 1946, collides with Babe Sharkey, a former champion, tonight at Turner's Arena, in a one-hour time limit bout with Sexton's title at stake.

Two girl wrestlers, June Byers of Dallas, and Mae Weston of St. Louis meet in the semiwindup. Other matches, the first at 8:45, find Wladislaw Talun opposing Henry Kulkovich; Ken Ackler facing Farro Rinaldo and James James of the District meeting Steve Gob.

Local Teams In Tie for Runnerup

Professional W. W. Rapley and Amateur A. B. Thorn, of Lancaster, Pa., took down top honors yesterday in the annual pro-senior golf tournament at Chevy Chase, a net 146 winning by two strokes.

Two local teams, one from the United States Naval Academy and one from Rolling Road in Baltimore wound up in a tie for second.

A sub-par 68 stole the show for individuals, Baltimore's Otto Greiner scoring for a stroke lead over Charlie Bassler and Andy Gibson.

Thorn's score, a 77 which matchedd his professional partner's effort, was second low for the amateurs. First belonged to John Brawner of Bonnie View Club, with 74.

USLTA Drops Guernsey

New York, Oct. 7 (AP).—Frank Guernsey of Garden City, N. Y., who holds the national indoor doubles tennis title with Don McNeill, has forfeited his right to compete in tournaments sponsored by the United States Lawn Tennis Association by joining a sporting goods firm, the ULSTA said today.

National Weather Summary

Copyright 1947 by Edw. T. A. Wagner

INDIAN SUMMER will continue over the East except for the New England States. Balmy winds will continue to hold temperatures relatively warm northward from the Gulf States. The same air, however, will furnish the moisture for clouds and rains East of the Mississippi. The dotted affected areas on the Fotocast show rain and showers will occur in the Middle Atlantic States, along the Gulf Coast, the central Mississippi Valley, the southern Rockies and the Northwest. Some rain and snow are indicated for western Montana.

Saturday Parking Hours to Be Cut

For Efficiency

Relief Unit Cooperation Is Urged

If private welfare agencies are to survive—along with "our democratic way of life"—they must act immediately to increase their efficiency.

The warning was sounded yesterday by G. Howland Shaw, former Assistant Secretary of State and a recognized authority on welfare matters.

Addressing a luncheon meeting of the Civitan Club in Hotel Mayflower, Shaw said:

"Unless private agencies can produce efficiency and cooperation, inevitably public agencies will push i non them." Such a development would constitute a "disaster," he added.

Shaw, a trustee with the local Community Chest federation, linked the conflict between the two types of agencies to the current battle between "our democratic way of life" and "an alternative way of doing things" which so far has proven "an efficient way."

As a solution to what he termed "timidity" in many of our social agencies, he urged a "strong organization to do research and planning work in the health and welfare field." He came out solidly in favor of the proposed merger of the Washington Community Chest and the Council of Social Agencies.

"I am defending the role of the Council of Social Agencies," Shaw said. "Unless you have an effective council, there is no guarantee contributions to the Community Chest will be well spent."

Shaw dubbed cooperation now "reasonable" but made clear "there is need for improvement." He lambasted "complacency" of many persons interested in welfare work.

Limits to Be Same As on Other Days, Starting October 11

Saturday shoppers will be restricted to short-time parking hours the same as weekday shoppers starting this Saturday, Traffic Director George E. Keneipp announced yesterday.

The one-hour and two-hour parking limits, now effective daily in zones one, two and three, will be effective Saturdays as well, he said.

He recommended the move because of the numerous complaints from businessmen, the Police Department and the Public Utilities Commission that unrestricted parking on the heaviest shopping day of the week caused too much traffic congestion and too little turnover of existing curb parking spaces, he explained. The move has been approved by the District Commissioners.

The following parking rules will be enforced:

Zone one will have one-hour parking between 9:30 a. m. and 4 p. m. on Saturdays as during the week. The weekday regulation of no parking between 8 and 9:30 a. m. and 4 and 6:30 p. m. will not be observed Saturday, Sunday or holidays. Zone one extends from 7th st. to 15th st. and from New York ave. to Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Rule For Zone Two

Zone two will have one-hour parking from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. Saturday, the same as on weekdays. This zone extends from the outer boundaries of zone one, along Constitution ave. to 6th st. nw., up 6th st. to I st., east to 4th st., north to I st., west to 18th st., south to G st. and east to 15th st. nw.

Zone three will have two-hour parking from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. Saturday, the same as weekdays. Its boundaries, roughly, are from the outer limits of zone two north on 14th st. to N st., west to 20th st., south to F st. and east to 17th st. nw.

Signs in this area allowing no parking at all between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m. or 7 a. m. and 6:30 p. m. will be effective Saturday as on weekdays.

Meters Within Time Limits

Parking meters in these areas will be in operation for the time limit and between the hours stated on the meters only.

Parking regulations, except those which prohibit parking at any time, will not be effective Sundays and holidays. The regulations, however, for such locations as taxi stands, bus stops, within 40 feet of an intersection, alleys, etc., will remain in effect every day of the week.

Also effective every day will be the restrictions on parking hours at commercial loading zones.

Part-time one-way traffic, enforced during the weekday rush hours, will not be used Saturdays, nor will the weekday rush hour no-parking and no-standing signs be effective Saturday.

Drunkenness Among Youths At Low Point

Drunkenness among Washington's juveniles is at its lowest point in recent years, a police department official said yesterday.

Notwithstanding this, official steps were taken yesterday to reduce adolescent drinking here still more.

Figures released by Lieut. William T. Murphy, head of the Police Juvenile Bureau, showed that during the war years and until 1945, approximately 75 persons under 18 were arrested for drunkenness each year. In 1946, this dropped to 42 juveniles. This year there have been only 19 such arrests.

Meanwhile, Police Inspector Walter H. Thomas issued an order for police to make every effort to ascertain where the intoxicants were obtained whenever a person under 21 is arrested as drunk.

In addition the arresting officer must submit the name, age and address and other pertinent information to Police Headquarters. Where justification exists, said the order, a report must be sent in if it appears that a dealer in liquors has violated Alcoholic Beverage Control regulations.

Lees Ridge Estate Sold to Florida Man

Warrenton, Va., Oct. 7 (Spl).—Randle Estates, Inc., in the Lees Ridge section near Warrenton, has been sold by its owner U. S. Randle to William E. Schlusemeyer of Framingham, Mass., and Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Schlusemeyer will move his stable of race and show horses to the 350-acre property about the first of the year.

In another recent sale, W. W. Hanback of Arlington bought 155 acres owned by the Rowe heirs on Warrenton-Orleans rd.

Naval Architects Confer at Langley

Langley Field, Va., Oct. 7 (AP).—The Langley Field laboratory of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics was host today to a group of leaders in the fields of naval architecture and hydraulics who are on the peninsula for the two-day, seventh American towing conference of directors of the model towing tanks of the United States and Canada.

Edgewood Army Facility May Move to Alabama

Baltimore, Oct. 7 (AP).—The Baltimore Sun said tonight the huge Army Chemical Center at Edgewood, Md., may be moved to Huntsville, Ala.

The newspaper said it had learned the War Department "has issued a directive to the chemical corps to make a detailed study to ascertain the cost of moving in to the sprawling . . . facility on which over the last 30 years upwards of $100,000,000 has been invested."

General at Annapolis

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 7 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Edward B. McKinley of the Industrial College for Armed Forces, will visit the Naval Academy tomorrow. He will be a luncheon guest of Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., superintendent, then tour the grounds.

Board Would Restrict Violator School to D. C.

Plans for a traffic violator's school here should be amended to include only District violators, the Commissioners told the Traffic Advisory Board yesterday.

The original plans, recommended by the board September 18, would give all traffic violators their choice of attending a traffic school or paying a fine.

At a meeting with board officials yesterday, the Commissioners said it would be impractical to have non-Washington drivers go to a violator's school.

They also asked the board to permit only courts or the Board of Revocation and Restoration to refer drivers to the school.

Transit Firm Fights Union 'Fringe' Costs

Capital Transit Co. officials said yesterday that "fringe" demands of its AFL employes, excluding overtime, holiday and sick leave benefits, would cost $562,661.

Isaac B. Goad, superintendent of schedules, told a three-man arbitration panel hearing company-union arguments at the Hotel Raleigh, that the figure covers proposed changes in preparatory time, and travel time, meal time, swing time, turn in time and "spread" penalties.

Taking issue which union demands for a night differential, company officials estimated the proposal would cost the utility more than $300,000 annually.

The union, division 689, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes, has urged a 5-cent hourly differential be paid for all runs ending after 4 p. m., and a 10-cent bonus for runs ending after midnight.

The company inserted in the record an exhibit which placed the total number of operators on present schedules at 2523, union requests at 3158, and company requests at 2423. A further breakdown in the same order was given as follows:

Soldier-Casualty—Victim of a Hit-and-Run Driver

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

STRUCK DOWN IN THE NIGHT—Before dawn yesterday, Army Pvt. Frank Blaker, 19, of Fort Myer, Va., stepped off the curb at 10th and N sts. nw. A black Buick rounded the corner, struck him down and didn't stop. Pvt. N. Peterson and Bill Moore of Fire Rescue Squad No. 1, lift the unconscious soldier from the pavement to a stretcher. They are aided by Police Pvt. M. W. McClanhan and William Versis (right), a McKinley High School student, who rendered first aid until police and firemen arrived. Blaker was taken to Emergency Hospital, where his condition was called "serious." Police are searching for the hit-and-run driver

Bandit Gets Clerk Change, Then Robs Her

Courteous Holdup Man Flees With $31 From Laundry Store Till

The clerk of a dry cleaning shop was robbed of $31 in cash at 4:20 p. m. yesterday after the bandit obligingly went down the street first to get her change.

Victim of the courteous holdup man was Miss Beatrice Gussin, 17, of 5332 Illinois ave. nw., a clerk at the Aristo Cleaners, 1454 P st. nw. She was alone at the time.

She told police the man declared: "You have read about one in the newspapers. This is a holdup."

Grabs Cash From Till

He placed his hand in his right side pocket as if he had a gun and grabbed the money from the cash register, she said.

He answered the description of the holdup man who has preyed upon Washington laundries and dry cleaning stores for the last few months.

When the man first entered the store he asked for a dollar's worth of change.

Miss Gussin, was able to give him only quarters and remarked that she herself needed smaller change. He left and returned a few minutes later with 20 nickels, which h gave her for a dollar bill, Lee Smith, store manager, said.

Then the man remarked "Now I haven't any change," and left a second time to return a few minutes later with a paper bag. At that time, he grabbed the money and fled on foot, according to Smith.

Miss Gussin chased the man as far as 15th and O sts. nw., where he disappeared, police said. She then returned to the store to call police. She said she did not actually see a gun.

Description of Bandit

She described the bandit as a Negro, about 20 to 22 years old, about 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighing between 155 and 160 pounds. He was wearing a blue shirt, blue trousers and a gray coat, she said.

Two prowlers early yesterday entered Mrs. Louise Seidell's apartment at 25 Kennedy st. nw., knocked her unconscious and fled with $65 taken from her pocketbook.

Mrs. Seidell, 25, told police she heard someone trying to unlock the door to her basement apartment. She opened the door, she said, and the men forced their way in.

Gov. Lane to Attend Virginia-Harvard Game

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 7 (AP).—Governor Lane said today he would attend the University of Virginia-Harvard football game Saturday at Charlottesville, Va., as a guest of Governor William M. Tuck of Virginia and Colgate Darden, president of the university.

Governor Lane is a graduate of the university's class of 1915, of which he was president.

Accompanying him will be his daughter, Dorothy, Judge William L. Henderson of the Court of Appeals, who was graduated with the governor, and George Blakiston, Baltimore banker.

Auto Bureau Backlog To Be Eliminated

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 7 (AP).—The Department of Motor Vehicles will eliminate its backlog of work by January 1 under a $21,000 program approved today by the Board of Public Works.

Motor Vehicles Commissioner W. Lee Elgin had asked the board for $51,736 from the emergency fund to take care of office work which needs to be done in the bureau.

Traffic Victim Knocked Unconscious . . .

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

FELLED BY MOTORCYCLE—Members of a Health Department ambulance crew remove a man from the sidewalk on 14th st. between F and Pennsylvania ave., yesterday. Witnesses said he was struck by a motorcycle operated by a Federal Government messenger. Dick Barkey (left), a Washington Post copy boy, who was passing by, lends a hand. The man was unconscious. Police identified the victim as Julius Johnson, 45, 5354 Holmeade st. nw.

Plea to ICC Scheduled on Bus Fare Hike

Arlington's Public Utilities Commission gained majority support of the county board yesterday for an appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission to reconsider fare increases granted Arnold Bus Lines last week.

After a conference with three of the five board members, the PUC announced it had the board's authority to file a brief with ICC stating its opposition to the increase.

The brief will ask:

1. That the ICC establish, prior to granting any fare increase, a time limit in which the company would be required to eliminate all "objectionable financial features" of the company's operation.

2. That the bus line be ordered to provide "reasonably adequate service on all routes on which it operates" as a condition under which any fare increase would be granted.

3. That, if the ICC should find any increase necessary, it should provide a more equitable distribution of rates as between the respective zones.

A member of the PUC said the "objectional financial features" to which the brief will refer had been reported by an ICC examiner who inspected the company's financial records early last summer when the line first aplied for an increase.

The examiner criticized the firm's bookkeeping and listed "excessive" expense accounts which he said included liquor bills and the expenses of company officials' wives on out-of-town trips.

The county board's indorsement of the proposed appeal was given to Chairman Basil DeLashmutt and members F. Freeland Chew and Harry Cuppett.

Independent Board Member Dan Dugan did not attend the conference, but said later he agreed fully with the action taken. He said he refused to attend because the conference was not open to the press or the public.

Leo Lloyd, a fifth member, was unable to attend because of illness.

The fare increase would boost rates in one zone by 10 cents and provide for five-cent increases in four other zones. It was opposed by the county government, Arlington Bus Riders Association and other groups.

The ICC approval requires the company to give 10-day notice before putting the higher rates in effect.

2 New Cases

Army Major And Boy Die Of Polio

The death of two persons from polio was reported to the Health Department yesterday.

Both occurred at Walter Reed Hospital.

The death of Maj. Ivan C. Johnson, 28, of 1507 D. st. ne., who died September 29, was the city's first attributed to polio this year. He was admitted to the hospital September 25.

The second death was that of eight-year-old David Hartman, of 3034 S. Buchanan st., Fairlington, Va.

Yesterday also saw two new District cases reported—those of a 2½-year-old boy and a 22-year-old woman. They are patients at Gallinger Hospital.

The year's total of cases in Washington rose to 17, but the number of patients reported in the surrounding area remained at 27. The Greater Washington total at this time last year was 102.

Guilty Plea Seen as Test By Lotteries

A "feeler" was put out yesterday to determine whether Judge Walter Casey is going to crack down on numbers writers brought into Municipal Court.

The "feeler" was in the form of a plea of guilty to possession of number slips. Municipal Court attaches, who so described the plea, pointed out that Judge Casey succeeds Judge George D. Neilson on the Municipal Court bench. Judge Neilson took over the jury branch of the court shortly after announcing in Municipal Court that he would give both fines and jail sentences to numbers offenders brought before him.

As a result, those accused of writing numbers subsequently asked for jury trials. Now they face Judge Neilson again.

Yesterday, Pasquale Crescenzi, 28, 629 Massachusetts ave. nw., charged with possession of numbers slips, did not ask Judge Casey for a jury trial. Instead, he entered a plea of guilty. Judge Casey referred the case to the probation officer for a report. He will impose sentence October 17.

Court attaches believe numbers writers will be interested in what Judge Casey has to say.

11 Churches Join In Albin Conference

Winchester, Va., Oct 7 (Spl.).—Auxiliaries of 11 churches in the Shenandoah district of the Winchester Presbytery will be represented at a conference at Burnt Presbyterian Church at Albin, near here, tomorrow.

The morning session will include an address on world evangelism by Mrs. P. Smith Brewer of Huntington, W. Va., and in the afternoon Mrs. Vernon L. Dyre will speak on "A Challenge."

D. C. School Report Pictures Crowding

Pupils' Attendance Increases in Year 99,365 to 101,617

The problem that the District public schools have in crowding an increasing number of pupils into available school buildings is shown in the annual report of the Board of Education to the Commissioners.

This report, released yesterday, indicates that the number of students taught in District schools reached 101,617 during the fiscal year ending June 30. The previous year the total was 99,365.

To house these students there were 176 school buildings in use in the period July, 1946, to June, 1947, compared to 174 the previous year.

The report reflects the trend of teachers to remain with the profession. The number of teachers who resigned their jobs in 1945, was 340 while last year the number was reduced to 219.

More Teachers Join Up

Three hundred and twenty-six teachers entered the service last year, nearly doubling the number that sought teaching as a career the previous year.

The section of the report dealing with school attendance showed an increase in the number of students in all divisions except junior high school and ungraded classes.

Junior high school enrollment dropped from 21,052 in 1946 to 20,562 in 1947. Total ungraded enrollment decreased from 2997 to 2861.

Enrollment in the two teachers' colleges jumped from 925 to 1,089; in the senior high schools from 16,412 to 18,288; in the vocational schools from 2029 to 2173; and in the elementary schools from 58,947 to 59,505.

Training for Deaf

The school board reported that last year 76 District students were trained at the Columbia School for the Deaf, and 17 students at the Maryland School for the Blind at Overlea, Md. District schools which have no facilities for these children pay for their training at the two institutions. The number of students cared for over the two-year period remained constant, the report showed.

Both summer school and night school attendance was up last year, according to the report. Night school courses drew 15,646 men and women in 1946, compared to 13,350 the previous year. Summer school attendance was up from 8570 to 10,464.

A section dealing with nonresident students showed that 3645 out-of-town pupils attended District schools last year, an increase of 307 over the year before.

Reporting on expenditures, the school board showed that it was meeting the need for school buildings by spending more money on building sites and on construction.

$1,104,324 Spent in 1947

In 1947, the board reported, $1,104,324 was spent on capital outlays. Of this amount $110,676 was for building sites; $961,485 for school construction, and $32,163 for furniture and equipment.

The previous year a total of $298,152 was spent for capital outlays.

Suit Names Owner Of Runaway Horse

Frederick, Md., Oct. 7 (Spl.).—An accident at the 1946 Frederick Fair in which a man was injured by a runaway race horse is the basis for $15,000 damage suit filed in Circuit Court here yesterday, naming the Frederick County Agricultural Society, sponsor of the fair, as defendant.

The plaintiff is Lewis A. Bartley, Staunton, Va., who was a spectator at the fair October 4, 1946, when a racehorse belonging to W. G. Morrison, Carlisle, Pa., ran away on the track. Bartley asserts he was injured when the animal broke through a draw gate in the back stretch wher a number of people were congregated.

Gov. Tuck to Hear Bench Nominations

Richmond, Va., Oct. 7 (AP).—Governor Tuck announced today that he plans to reserve such time as may be required on Tuesday and Wednesday, October 14 and 15, to hear delegations and individuals who may wish to present recommendations to fill the vacancy on the bench of the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals caused by the death of Chief Justice Henry W. Holt, of Staunton.

Governor Tuck will name a new associate justice for the interim period ending 30 days after the convening of the General Assembly in January. The legislature then will elect a justice for the remainder of Justice Holt's unexpired term which ends January 31, 1955.

Continuance Asked On Appeal Hearing

Richmond, Va., Oct. 7 (AP).—Judge John J. Parker of the Fourth U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals had under advisement today a Government motion for continuance of an appeal hearing of seven of nine persons convicted of aiding and abetting in misapplication of funds of a Fredericksburg bank.

The motion was filed yesterday as one of two developments in the case which consumed 53 days in Federal Court earlier in the year.

D. C. to Help

Education's Door Opened To Blind Girl

A legal decision by Acting Corporation Counsel Chester Gray yesterday opened the door to education for an 11-year-old partially blind and totally deaf girl.

The Commissioners approved Gray's ruling that it would be legal for the Board of Education to sign a $1200 contract to send the girl to the New York Institute for Education of the Blind.

The proposed contract would call for the expenditure of $600 by the District and $600 by The Family Service Association, 1022 11th st. nw.

Four years ago, the girl became totally blind, her guardian, a great aunt, said last night. She regained partial use of her eyes two years ago, but as her sight improved, her hearing was lost.

Although the child has been taught to read Braille and can now do a little reading with special glasses, no local school is equipped to give adequate educational service, the Board of Education said in its request for a legal opinion.

The Commissioners also approved these five opinions submitted by the office of the corporation counsel:

1. That parents whose gross income exceeds $2600 a year are not eligible t osend their children to the District's six day-care centers.

2. That optometrists are not exempt from the District's unincorporated business tax.

3. That retail liquor dealers may sell their rights to buy liquor from a New York wholesale firm without obtaining a license from the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

4. That more evidence is needed to determine whether dancing schools and restaurants need a special license to show free entertainment.

5. That coal license regulations be amended to eliminate requirements that coal truck compartments be measured. The recommendation would make coal load weight the only legal consideration under the regulations.

Gypsy Uses Rose to Bilk Housewives

The irate and considerably-bilked wives want the woman's definition of good luck and their money back.

All they have so far is the rose's thorny stem.

Police reported the woman, apparently a Gypsy 35 to 40 years old, has reaped an estimated $3000 harvest since January 1 from housewives to buy good luck, good health and blessings.

She has been working a house-to-house beat, offering the roses for sale. She even offers to bless the money and frequently pays a return visit to pick up and bless money which was not available on first call.

The woman has been described on more than one cmplaint as an American Indian type, 5 feet 3 inches tall, 110 punds with a rugh, brown birthmark frm temple t left cheekhree t 3gfEg,fivec ple to left cheek. Victims noted her "small feet"—certainly not more than a size 3 or 4, shod with gray suede, two-tone slippers, cuban heels and black leather strap.

She manipulates the money under a cloth, places it in a crinkly sack and then pins the sack and rose on the starry-eyed housewife's bosom or to a bed pillow, with instructions to open it in 48 hours.

Presto!

Fisheries Group Denies Knowledge Of Boat Shooting

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 7 (AP).—A spokesman for the Tidewater Fisheries Commission today denied knowledge of the shooting into a Maryland dredge on the Potomac River described by Virginia fishermen at Colonial Beach, Va., as the possible renewal of the shooting "oyster war."

He said shots are fired occasionally to warn boats which attempt to escape, but added that the commission had "heard of no unusual incidents lately."

Oyster dredging on the Potomac is illegal under Maryland law, although Virginia permits the use of dredges along a 40-mile stretch of the river.

Meanwhile John E. Mayo, secretary of the Potomac River Oystermen's Association, confirmed the report that a dredge was lying in Monroe Bay today with 11 bullet holes in its sides.

"She is shot up all right," Mayo said. "But that is nothing new after all. They're always shooting out there."

Area News in Brief

Plan to Reduce Noise Of Planes Charted

Airline representatives and officials of the Civil Aeronautics Administration and of the Air Transport Association yesterday came up with what may be the answer to the "noise problem" created by incoming and outgoing aircraft here.

Going into operation immediately, a spokesman said, is a plan which raises the minimum altitude for a landing approach to 1500 feet. Formerly, planes came in at 1000 feet.

The spokesman also announced that landings and takeoffs will be made over the Potomac River as often as possible—another means of lowering noise complaints.

Chief coordinator of the plan, which has CAA approval, is Trow Sebree, director of operations for Capital Airlines. It was estimated two weeks will be necessary to "educate" all pilots of airlines operating into and out of Washington to the noise-reducing plan.

Mice Trap Selves

Charles N. Bohn of Union Bridge, Md., figured mice feasting on corn in his store here could make their own trap and they did. The rodents had been enjoying corn in a large washtub. So he just added several inches of water and the next day counted 19 drowned mice.

To Talk on Taft Tour

Three Washington correspondents will give off-the-record impressions of Senator Robert A. Taft's Western tour today at 12:15 p. m. in the Roger Smith Hotel at a meeting of the Press and Radio Wing of the American Veterans Committee. The speakers are Charles Van Devander, head of the New York Post Washington Bureau; George Doying of Business Week and Miss Doris Fleeson of the Bell Syndicate. Nomination of officers also will be held.

U. S. to Pay Hurt Boy

Judge Albert V. Bryan, of Federal District Court, Alexandria, yesterday ordered the United States Government to pay $3628.80 in damages and medical expenses to a boy struck three years ago by an Army jeep.

Awarded $3000 was John Henry Mackey, who was injured when struck by a jeep driven by military police on April 13, 1945, near Fort Belvoir. He was 4 years old. The boy's father, Henry W. Mackey, who brought the suit, won $628.80 for medical and other expenses resulting from the accident.

58 to Take Lie Tests

Approximately 45 civilian and 13 military employes of the Army War College's post exchange this week will voluntarily undergo lie detector tests, it was announced yesterday.

The tests, an experiment undertaken by the Military District of Washington, are not being given because any shortages exist, a spokesman said. But should they disclose employe defalcations, a warning will follow.

The Military District plans periodic lie detector spot checks of the eight post exchanges in this area after initial testing gets under way. Lie detector testing by civilian chain stores, the spokesman said, has resulted in large savings.

Heads Barrister Club

Herbert M. Bingham has been elected president of the Barristers Club, it was announced yesterday. Bingham supplants outgoing President Roger Robb. Other officers elected were William J. Burrows, vice president; John R. Wall, secretary, and John E. Powell, treasurer.

Elected to the club's executive committee were Oliver H. Gasch, James Francis Feilly and John J. Wilson. Outgoing President Robb automatically became a member of the committee. Approximately 125 local lawyers attended Monday at the Mayflower Hotel.

Tub Tale Has Old Ring

A bathtub at northern Baltimore district police headquarters has been nothing more than an ornament for at least 20 years.

So while the building was being remodeled it was decided to get rid of it. George Meyers, 67-year-old plumber, was called, took one look at the tub and said:

"I installed that tub right after the war." The Spanish-American War, he meant.

Cab Driver Robbed

Cab driver General Stonewall Jackson (his real name) was held up by two bandits early yesterday who stole his eyeglasses and $25 and his cab, and also made him help push when the vehicle wouldn't start.

Jackson, 49, of 1242 11th st. nw., told police he was hailed by two men at 2 a. m., and told to drive them to 51st and M sts. ne. On arrival, police said, one of the bandits shoved a revolver against Jackson's back, while the other searched his pockets. Then they instructed him to get out and begin walking.

But when the cab failed to start, the bandits called Jackson back and made him push. Later the cab was found abandoned in the rear of 635 49th st. ne., police said.

Fight at Park Brings Suit

An Army lieutenant and his wife, who claim they were beaten by two men during an altercation at Marshall Hall, Md., amusement park yesterday filed suit in District Court for $10,000 damages.

The plaintiffs, Lieut Orville Daniel and his wife Jimmie of Arlington Farms, asserted in the suit they were assaulted by Carl Cook, 1451 Monroe st. nw., and Casper Gregory, 1834 Park rd. nw. on August 8. Daniel is in the Air Weather Service stationed at Gravelly Point.

Rent Hikes Sought

Average 25 per cent rent increases were sought yesterday for 49 units in two District apartment houses, the Rent Control Administration announced.

William F. Mansfield, rent control secretary-docket clerk, said the following petitions had been filed:

D. H. Johnson & Co., owners' agents, sought hikes for 24 units of an apartment house at 1918 18th st. nw. The proposed increase would raise $19-a-month apartments to $23.75; $45-a-month apartments to $56.25.

G. B. Mullin Co., Inc., owners of 25 apartment units at 4027 13th st. nw., asked increases to raise $40-a-month apartments to $50; 50-a-month units to $62.50.

Both owners, Mansfield said, indicated the boost was necessary to cover higher taxes and increased operating and maintenance costs.

Injections Set Monday

Diphtheria immunizations will be given children of Arlington County schools next Monday, Dr. Paul W. Bowden, school medical director, announced yesterday. All children who have not been immunized within two years, and whose parents sign a consent slip, will be given a booster shot.

Methodist School

LaPlata, Md., Oct. 7 (Spl).—A leadership training school will be held at LaPlata Methodist church beginning October 16. Charges from Indian Head, Shiloh, Waldorf, and LaPlata will participate.

Courses in teaching children, the Testament, and Methodist fellowship will be offered. The Rev. Harold Milstead, pastor of the Waldorf charge, will act as dean, and teachers will be Mrs. Thomas Baker, Miss Dorothy Ordwien, and the Rev. Thomas Baker.

Bishop Dun to Visit

Indian Head, Md., Oct. 7 (Spl).—The Righ Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, will make his annual visit to St. James Episcopal Church here October 12. At the 11 a. m. service he will confer the apostalic rite of confirmation.

Guard Team Qualifies

Five members of the rifle team of the 163d Military Police Battalion, D. C. National Guard, have qualified as experts with the small bore rifle, it was announced yesterday. They are: Ernest Gonzales, William Hann, Harry Andrews, Ira Baker and Carleton Tinkham. An Army instructor is training the team at the University of Maryland's armory. Competitive matches are planned.

Smoke Hearing Proposed

A public hearing to discuss means of preventing a railroad smoke nuisance in Northeast Washington was proposed yesterday by Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young.

Following a meeting with six railroad representatives, General Young said he would ask the Commissioners to hold a hearing "in the very near future."

Complaints against the smoke nuisance were made to General Young September 15 by representatives of five citizens associations.

Maryland 'Cowboy' Sues

A Maryland "cowboy" who operates a riding stable in Prince Georges County, yesterday charged Ken Maynard, now performing at Uline's, and Rodeo Inc., with using his picture for advertising purposes without authorization.

The Marylander, Johnny Weese, operator of the Red Top Riding Stables, filed suit in District Court asking $250,000 of Maynard, Rodeo Inc., and Larry Sunbrook, named as principal stockholder.

Weese asserted his picture appeared in advertising matter under the name of a "Joe Evans" on one occasion and that of Ken Maynard at other times. He declared he has no connection with the rodeo.

Auto Financing Studied

The National Capital Used Car Dealers Association yesterday disavowed "alleged usurious practices of auto finance companies" as being a direct concern of used car dealers but went ahead with plans to make a study of auto financing here.

Association Attorney Bruce Quigley yesterday disclosed he and Morris Blum and Francis M. Winn had been appointed by the group to "study the situation and do all we can to prevent usurious practices."

Quigley said the committee would offer any suggestion it may have to the Corporation Counsel's office, which is now drawing up regulations.

The association, Quigley said, also has adopted a five-point safety program which would offer no car for sale until the brakes, horn, windshield wipers and lights had been checked.

One Bite to a Dog

The issue of more stringent control over "roaming" dogs which have reportedly attacked several school children in Montgomery County apparently no longer was an issue yesterday.

F. Bernard Welsh, counsel for the Montgomery commissioners, who discussed such action at their regular meeting in Rockville, ruled "Every dog is entitled to one bite."

He explained that it was an unwritten law dating back in American history that every dog has his day biting one person before he becomes vicious.

The commissioners failed to enact more strongent laws governing the dogs, a move which had been advocated in some quarters, since the children, pupils of Bethesda Elementary School, had been bitten.

In Prince Georges

Funds Sought To Buy Road Machinery

Purchase authority for $150,000 in road machinery to inaugurate the Price Georges County roads program will be asked at the forthcoming special session of the Maryland General Assembly.

Prince Georges County commissioners have directed Waldo Burnside, attorney to the board, to contact the county delegation and request that the measure be included in the special session's agenda.

The commissioners' program calls for purchase of snow plows, trucks, scrapers and other equipment.

The commissioners yesterday concurred in award of two roads contracts to low bidders by the State Roads Commission. The low bidders are the Hopkins Farm rd. in F. L. Houser, College Park, $12,369, for the Hopkins Farm rd. in the Vansville District, and James Gibbons & Co., Relay, Md., $6772, for Wheeler rd. in the Oxon Hill District.

The board authorized advertisement for bids on the proposed new wing for the courthouse at Upper Marlboro. The wing will house an additional circuit court room, the trial magistrate's court and the police department. Advertisement for bids on a new building in the rear of the courthouse to house the Board of Education offices also was authorized.

Paul H. Kea Associates, architects, said the courthouse addition will cost approximately $172,408 and the education building $154,074. A bond issue of $500,000 has been authorized by the General Assembly for the work.

County Policeman Arnett W. Cord, suspended several weeks ago for alleged assault on a prisoner, submitted his resignation, and it was accepted. Neither the commissioners nor Cord made any comment.

The commissioners extended the permit of the tourist camp near Camp Andrews until January 1 after representatives of the Department of Justice requested the extension to permit Camp Andrews officials to provide quarters for the enlisted men and their families now residing there. Neighbors had objected to the camp and it had been ordered closed by the board.

Richard Robinson Asher, jr., offered a bid of $1.50 per house with weekly collection except in July, August and September when weekly collections would be provided for Special Improvement District 26, Hillside. The commissioners referred the bid to the property owners for decision.

David Edward Randall, jr., of Forestville, was approved as a deputy forest warden for that area. The commissioners received a letter from the Citizens Bank of Riverdale commending the vigilance of County Policeman Emmett Gray and stating that credentials will be furnished the bank janitor, who was stopped by the policeman and asked for identification as he left the bank.

Airport Suit Retrial Asked By Baltimore

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 7 (AP).—Hamilton O'Dunne, assistant Baltimore City solicitor, seeks retrial of a condemnation suit which cost the city $81,700 in a verdict last week for owners of property in the Friendship Church area comprising the proposed new municipal airport.

Judge William J. McWilliams called for the hearing on a motion for new trial filed by O'Dunne and Solicitor Simon S. Sobeloff. The motion will be disputed by George Woelfel, Annapolis attorney who represented the Hammond family in the condemnation proceedings.

The motion asserted the amount of the verdict was excessive and "contrary to the weight of evidence."

A jury decided on the price for the Hammonds' 135-acre improved property after hearing estimates ranging from $42,500 to $92,00. Harry U. Riepe, testifying for the city, gave the lowest evaluation, and C. E. Hammond, one of the owners, claimed the high worth.

The greatest evaluation offered by an appraiser questioned for the owners in court was $80,000 by Charles Pumphrey of Baltimore.

Price War Brings Coffee Down From 7 to 0 Cents

Lost Angeles, Oct. 7 (AP).—The price of coffee took just about its last drop today. From 7 cents a cup a week ago, it had slumped at one fountain chain to exactly nothing, with any purchase of food.

Two big drug chains have been the leaders in a price war which sent it first to 4 cents, then to one and yesterday to free with doughnuts (9 cents) or coffee cake (10 cents). Today, at the other chain, it's free even with a nickel doughnut.

The slashing hasn't spread to the night clubs, however. There you can still pay a quarter and up.

Sentence Delayed On Former WAA Men

Richmond, Va., Oct. 7 (AP).—Judge Sterling Hutcheson said from the bench in Federal District Court today he wanted "to consider for a few days" the case of two former War Assets Administration officials who pleaded guilty to a charge of attempted bribery, before passing sentence on them. He added: "I feel some sentence should be imposed."

The judge took the case under advisement after hearing testimony in court concerning Herbert D. Tinker and Lawrence D. Bryan, who were indicted by a grand jury yesterday on a charge of seeking a $25,000 bribe for renegotiating a WAA bid.

$93 Million Sought for Va. Schools

Richmond, Va., Oct. 7 (AP).—The State Department of Education today called on Governor Tuck and his advisory board on the budget for more than $93,680,000 in State funds for 1948-50.

The funds would be used to finance substantial increases in teachers' salaries, a State-operated transportation system, and expansion of other educational activities.

The record-breaking request was submitted by G. Tyler Miller, State superintendent of public instruction, as public hearings on budget requests continued in the Senate chamber of the State Capitol.

Total Is 119 Million Dollars

Miller's request brought the total of pleas heard yesterday and today from 21 State agencies to nearly 119 million dollars from the general fund for 1948-50—more than actual appropriations from the general fund for 1946-48 for all activities of the State government combined.

The school superintendent coupled his request for funds with a blunt comment that "if the people of Virginia wish to have an improved school system, they must be willing to pay the bill."

The school superintendent said Virginia will need 21,593 teachers in 1948-49, some 2500 more than were in the class rooms in 1946-47. He said only an additional 1000 were in sight and based his budget on securing them.

Second largest item asked by the department was $12,225,000 for 1948-50 to finance a State owned and operated pupil transportation system.

Under the proposed plan, counties would participate on an optional basis. Those who came in the system would turn over to the State all locally owned buses. Those who stayed out would be reimbursed for their actual expenditures to provide their own systems.

Miller said a State-operated bus network would facilitate needed school consolidations and would provide better service to the pupils "through reducing long waits on the roadside and at the schools before the opening in the morning and after the closing of schools in the afternoon."

Liquor Board Ex-Aide Denies Fee Charge

Baltimore, Oct. 7 (AP).—Charles T. LeViness, 3d, denied from the witness stand today that he had received a $2500 fee for securing a liquor license for a hotel while he was head of the Baltimore Liquor Control Board.

The Baltimore attorney, who held key posts in the administration of former Governor O'Conor, also denied wilful income tax evasion. He is on trial before Judge William C. Coleman and a jury in Federal Court on charges of evading almost $9500 in income taxes for 1943 and 1944.

Meyer Davis, an insurance man who formerly held part interest in a downtown hotel, testified yesterday he paid LeViness $2500 in cash for services including that of getting him a liquor license.

Leviness has pleaded innocent to the charges. He also denied taking cash fees from anyone in the liquor business.

He laid discrepancies in his tax returns for the two years to the rush of work as a public official and attorney and to his own "inadvertent omissions."

His testimony had not been completed when court was adjourned for the day.

Judge Mitchell Declares War on Gambling in Va.

King William Courthouse, Va., Oct. 7 (AP).—Judge J. Douglas Mitchell of Walkerton, has declared war on gambling, especially at fairs and carnivals, in the five Virginia counties of the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit over which e presides.

Disclosing to a special grand jury at King William Court House that a King William citizen who "inherited a half million dollars, recently got to drinking and lost $40,000 to gamblers in a single night," Judge Mitchell said he had ordered all Commonwealth attorneys and sheriffs to "strictly enforce all antigambling laws in his circuit."

Meeting to Discuss Master Zoning Plan

Residents of Landover, Landover Hills, West Lanham, Radiant Valley and nearby areas have been asked to a meeting at 8:30 tonight to discuss the proposed master zoning plan of the Maryland - National Capital Park and Planning Commission. The meeting will be held in the Landover Hills firehoues.

Discussions of the suggested zonings will be led by Irwin I. Main, commission chairman, Herbert W. Wells and Robert M. Watkins, Prince Georges County members of the planning group, and Fred W. Tuemmler, the commission's director of planning.

Churchmen to Meet

A number of church dignitaries will attend the solemn high mass to be held at the National Cathedral at 11 a. m. tomorrow morning as part of the Washington Catholic Congress of the American Church Union of the Episcopal Church.

O'Conor Denies 1946 Surplus Overestimate

Baltimore, Oct. 7 (AP).—"It is erroneous to state that the (Maryland State) surplus was 'overestimated' in 1946," Senator Herbert O'Conor asserted today in denying a statement to that effect submitted to the Legislative Council.

O'Conor's denial was made in a letter to council Chairman Joseph A. Byrnes "in order that you should have accurate information as to the then existing fiscal situation." O'Conor ended two terms as Governor of Maryland in December last year.

Last week, Hyman A. Pressman, Baltimore attorney, told the council:

"We were told that the general fund surplus of June 30, 1947, would be $16,389,000. When the Legislature met early in 1947 the surplus had dwindled to $11,906,327.57.

"In election years, surpluses and revenues are overestimated. In off-election years, they are underestimated."

O'Conor agreed with Pressman's surplus figures for the end of the year, but pointed out $4,618,560 in emergency appropriations were made by a special session of the Legislature.

Neither O'Conor nor Pressman referred to the other by name in their statements to the council.

Approval Seen For Islands' Power Plans

Baltimore, Oct. 7 (AP).—No objection was voiced today at a Public Service Commission hearing on a proposal to bring electricity to Smith and Tangier Islands in Chesapeake Bay, and a spokesman indicated that the commission would approve the plan.

Engineers for the Chesapeake Island Electric Cooprative, Inc., estimated that a $207,000 power plant project for the two islands would be ready for operation by the end of 1948.

Commission Secretary Frank Harper said that the commission "won't pass on the matter" for another week or more, but that "no objection was voiced."

An estimated 349 islanders now are using kerosene lamps and stoves.

Va. Co-ops Authorized To Borrow From REA

Richmond, Va., Oct. 7 (AP).—The State Corporation Commission today authorized two Virginia electric cooperatives to borrow funds from the Rural Electrifiction Administration to provide new services to their subscribers.

A loan of $137,000 was approved for the newly organized Chesapeake Islands Electric Cooperative. Proceeds are to be used for the purchase of a new electric plant lot on Tangier Island, to purchase a generating unit from the Shenendoah Valley Electric Cooperative and to build 21 miles of new lines.

Luray Folk Festival Scheduled for Oct. 25

Luray, Va., Oct. 7 (Spl.).—The Fall Folk Festival at the Singing Tower in Luray has been tentatively set for October 25.

Charles T. Chapman, carillonneur, will present a half hour concert, and will play for a program of folk games on the lawn. The folk games program will be directed by Richard Chase, Virginia representative of the Country Dance Society.

Chase will visit schools in the Luray area and train groups for participation in the festival.

Union Plea Denied

Richmond, Va., Oct. 7 (AP).—A request of Local 432, International Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers, AFL, that Governor Tuck name the State Corporation Commission to arbitrate the union's contract negotiation difficulties with the Petersburg-Hopewell Gas Co., was declined today by the chief executive.

Groveton School Wins Well Plea

The Fairfax County School Board yesterday authorized a new well at the Groveton Elementary School to relieve an acute water problem.

F. N. Hagmann, Vienna, Va., contractor, was engaged to dig the 350-foot shaft. He said work would start immediately and the well probably would be in operation in 30 days.

A delegation from the Groveton Parent-Teachers Association had appealed to the board to increase the school's water supply.

The board also received a petition from 720 Groveton residents, asserting children at the Groveton School, which is beside Beacon Hill Airport, are subjected to danger from possible plane crashes. The airport owners will be asked to reply at the next board meeting.

Rev. Cowan, 68, Long a Priest

The Rev. John Aquinas Cowan, O. P., assistant priest for the last 38 years at St. Dominic's Church, 515 6th st. sw., died Monday in New York City. He had been ill for the last month.

Fr. Cowan

Father Cowan was born in New York City July 5, 1879. He was educated in the public grade schools there and at St. Francis Xavier High School and College.

On October 23, 1900, he received the habit of a Dominican friar at St. Rose's Priory, Springfield, Conn. He pursued philosophical studies at St. Joseph's Priory, Somerset, Ohio, from 1902 to 1905, when he entered the Dominican House of Studies here as a student of theology.

Father Cowan was ordained in the Cathedral at Baltimore June 21, 1907. His first assignment was at St. Antoninus Church in Newark, N. J. He was assigned to St. Dominic's Priory here in February, 1909.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Mary Mahoney, and a nephew, the Rev. Richard Mahoney, both of New York City.

A high requiem mass for the parishioners will be offered today at 8:30 a. m.

Fellow priests will chant the Divine Office in St. Dominic's Church tonight at 8:30.

Solemn high requiem mass will be sung tomorrow at 10 a. m. at St. Dominic's Church. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Dr. Morris A. Birely

Frederick, Md., Oct. 7—Funeral services for Dr. Morris A. Birely, for 50 years a general practitioner at Thurmont, will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. at St. John's Lutheran church, Thurmont, the Rev. Charles H. Corbett officiating. Burial will be made in Blue Ridge Cemetery in Thurmont. Dr. Birely died of cerebral hemorrhage at his home shortly after listening to the World Series broadcast on Sunday. He was 75.

Howard Knight

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 7 (AP).—Howard Knight, 58, secretary general of the International Conference of Social Work and general secretary of the National Conference of Social Work, died of a heart attack today.

Dies of Injuries

Frederick, Md., Oct. 7.—Mrs. Annie Agnes McCleaf, 77, who was struck by an automobile near her home in Emmitsburg last Friday, died of multiple injuries at Annie Warner Memorial Hospital, Gettysburg, Pa., last night. Mrs. McCleaf, according to State Trooper Kenneth Bond, stepped from behind a parked car into the path of a car operated by William Sanders, 18, Emmitsburg. Funeral services will be held Thursday morning at St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Emmitsburg.

Mrs. A.C. Smith Funeral Rites Set for Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret Louise Smith, 75, longtime Washington area resident, who died at her home on Monday, will be held at 2:30 p. m. today. Interment will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mrs. Smith

Mrs. Smith, who lived with her husband, Amos C. Smith, retired blacksmith, at 5100 Berwyn, Md., was a native of Fredericksburg, Va. She attended schools there and came to Washington early in her adult life.

She was active in the Birmingham Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star, and also in the Berwyn Baptist Church.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by five daughters, Mrs. May D. Valtz, Mrs. Helen R. Duvall, Mrs. Ethel V. Dwyer, Mrs. Dorothy E. Neitzey and Mrs. Margaret L. Catloth, all of the Washington area, and two sons, Maurice C. and Roger Dickinson.

George E. Slaybaugh

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 7 (AP).—George E. Slaybaugh, 67, city auditor and oldest certified public accountant here, died at his home today.

Mr. Slaybaugh was a director of the Hagerstown Trust Co. and of the Dunn Woolen Co. of Martinsburg, W. Va. He also served as treasurer of the Antietam Paper Co.

He is survived by his wife. Funeral services will be held Thursday.

Harry Benson Dies; Adventist Missionary

Harry Farmer Benson, 65, who spent more than 35 years in Japan and Korea as a Seventh-Day Adventist foreign missionary, died Monday at his home, 128 North Park rd., Arlington. He had been ill for more than a year.

Born in Norwalk, Ohio, Mr. Benson graduated from the Seventh-Day Adventist Academy and College at Mount Vernon, Ohio.

Mr. Benson went to Japan in 1906, accompanied by his wife, the former Miss Helen Boggs of Butler, Pa. He was in charge of the Adventist Mission Schools in Japan, Korea and Penang.

For eight months prior to Pearl Harbor, Mr. and Mrs. Benson lived in Penang following evacuation of Americans from Japan.

After returning to the United States in February, 1942, Mr. Benson was employed by the War Department with the Army Signal Corps in a civilian capacity.

In addition to his wife, he leaves two sisters, Miss Ethel Benson, of 503 Tulip ave., Takoma Park, Md., and Mrs. Fern Jacques, 215 Spring ave., Takoma Park. A stepmother, Mrs. May Benson, of Clyde, Ohio, also survives.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m., tomorrow, at the Seventh-Day Adventist Church, Takoma Park. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

For Men Only—

Let's Pare Pop Down to Fit Weskit He Wore to Wedding

By Lucia Brown

MAYBE he doesn't yet take up a whole seat on the bus or break down the neighbor's antiques when you go calling—

Maybe he can still tie his shoelaces without groaning and sit at a table without wearing out the front of his vest—

But if he's accumulating extra inches around the waist, a pad on the back of his neck, and a second chi in front, your dream man may be well on his way to becoming a fat man. It's half past time for him to start—quick—on a diet such as the one The Washington Post will print in this section for the next 10 days.

The idea of dieting shouldn't scare him too badly. After all, weren't you on Ida Jean Kain's 10-day diet last week, shedding 5 pounds in the interest of health and beauty? He could see with his own eyes that your suffering wasn't too acute—and that the results made up for every piece of chocolate pie and hot roll you turned down.

THIS diet isn't really a tough one. It allows him 1400 to 1500 juicy calories every day, and even includes such things as apple pie and ice cream (once each).

Eating at this rate, a moderately active man can lose as much as 5 pounds in 10 days if—and it's a big IF—he takes a brisk walk 30 minutes each morning and 30 minutes each evening.

If he doesn't do the walking—or its equivalent in golf, bowling or bending exercises—he'll still lose, maybe as much as 4 pounds. But exercise will help get rid of fat faster, tone up his muscles and restore that glamorous, out-doorsy look he had when you first met.

IT WOULD have been nice to suggest a diet for him like the one Clark Gable went on several months back. That consisted mainly of steak and tomatoes. Times have changed, however, since Clark lost his 20.

True, we've tossed one piece of steak (small, thin one) into this diet on the first day to encourage the man. But we've tried to keep in mind high food prices, starving Europe and the President's conservation campaign.

So this diet will give your better half the extra dividend of knowing he's helping to improve the world food situation.

Here's the diet. And here's to healthier, handsomer, happier husbands! The first few days may be a bit rugged for him, but after that—it'll be a breeze.

Shorter K.P. Hours Promised by New Aids

Five and a half billion hours a year can be saved from dish washing tasks, figures Dr. Richard Wood, a researcher in a New York laboratory.

He bases his figures on the time to be saved by new mechanical dish washers, soaps and detergents in the country's 38 million homes.

Between one third and one half of all time spent in dish washing can be eliminated, he says, by use of new products on the market.

The detergents, which work both in hard and soft water, cut through the greasy film on plates, pots and pans and eliminate the drying of dishes by hand.

The British Viewpoint

"Your 'New Look' Looks Dreadful"

By Peggy Preston

WE MAY think ourselves quite chic in our new long skirts, but we look downright funny to a visitor from Britain, where fabric is too precious to waste in lengthening the hemline.

Miss Valerie White, a member of the cast of the "Winslow Boy," current production at the National Theater, got her first glimpse of the "New Look" when she arrived in New York last Thursday. She lunched at the Ritz, high palace of fashion, and she was not impressed.

"Maybe I shouldn't be quoted on this," says newcomer Miss White. "But, honestly, I think your 'New Look' is dreadful—those skirts, trailing around the ankles even for street wear!" She hastened to add, however, that it was only in New York that she noticed a wide acceptance of the new fad. "Washingtonians are wearing much more reasonable skirts."

Hemlines Were Surprise

New York's drastic hemlines came as a great surprise to Miss White and other feminine members of the "Winslow Boy" cast. They had heard rumors of a new American whim for long skirts, but they had no idea it had reached such proportions.

"In England the new clothes look exactly as they did last year—like mine," and Miss White motioned to her classic, tailored suit of green wool, with a straight skirt cut 16½ inches from the floor.

They could hardly look other, the blond actress pointed out, considering there is less fabric available in England this year than last. Clothing is still rationed and even though one may have sufficient coupons, one hesitates to spend money on new clothes.

"We've learned not to be too interested in fashion," said Miss White, who was a fashion designer before becoming an actress. "There are too many other problems on our mind. Such as how to get an extra egg."

But just wait until pay day! "It will be so wonderful to go into a shop and buy something without counting coupons. Almost as much fun as going into a restaurant and ordering ham and eggs!"

The Washington Post

Valerie White, British actress appearing in Washington in the "Winslow Boy" at the National Theater, indulges in a window-shopping spree along F street. But despite the current fashion decree, Miss White says she will continue to wear short skirts, such as the one above, which is cut 16½ inches from the floor

New Whistle Models Seen At Luncheon

More than 500 members and their guests attended the event which took place in the club's ballroom and on the terrace. It was the first in the fall series of fashion show luncheons, others being scheduled for October 28, November 18 and December 16.

Costumes for yesterday's showing were from an F street specialty shop and they were definitely in the "high fashion" category. Almost every coat featured the "whistle" silhouette—a wrap-around skirt with big, dolman sleeves. This is the type garment that many designers, including Anthony Blotta and Maurice Rentner are favoring over the popular swing-back coat.

Irene Castle Recalled

One outfit that set many a feminine spectator to dreaming about the era of Irene Castle was a black satin afternoon dress with a long, tight skirt, slightly shorter in front. Over this was worn a short wrap-around coat with big bands of black fox around the hem and at the cuffs. Topping this was a head-fitting cloche, trimmed with a single straight feather.

A wrap-around mink coat was worn over a silver and gold lame cocktail dress and another coat of this make was a long black broadcloth with flounced back cut from the same piece as the wide dolman sleeves.

Suit Is in Navy

Less dramatic were the other clothes in the collection which were more or less traditional in line. There was a cunning navy wool suit with collar, lapels and cuffs of ermine; three classic suits by Anthony Blotta all done in the same shade of orange-red, which he calls Capricio.

There was a handsome wool coat of turf tan, shirred at the waist and worn with a brown leather belt. Also notable was a red tweed dress with pockets of matching plaid which was used in the topcoat. Both these ensembles were recommended for country club wear.

The Washington Post

Shades of Irene Castle! This costume was one of several shown at a fashion show luncheon yesterday at the Congressional Country Club. The long black satin dress has a tight, long skirt, reaching almost to the ankles. Over it is a short wrap-around coat with huge dolman sleeves. Hem and cuffs are banded with black fox. Topping the ensemble is a small black cloche, with stand-up feather. Available at an F Street Specialty Shop

Another Turk Bachelor Comes To Capital

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

TURKISH WOMEN must be slipping! The Turkish Ambassador is a bachelor, two secretaries are ditto, and now it appears that Salih Omurtak, chief of the Turkish general staff, matrimony-wise, has never been snagged.

The general—dark, blue-eyed, in his fifties—arrived yesterday as an official Government guest. His visit is a sort of return gesture for hospitality shown the United States survey group which went to Turkey last May. He is accompanied by a staggering amount of brass—14 officers, most of them generals, admirals and such impressive pooh-bahs.

After a Washington run around, they'll take off on the regulation Army look-see of our military establishments. The Washington workout includes a Blair House reception today and a full dress reception at the Turkish Embassy Thursday. It's a double-decker affair, combining a party for the generals with a celebration of the Turkish national holiday, which falls on October 29.

Symphony Opening to Be Gala

OCTOBER 15, Washington's own orchestra, the National Symphony, will open its seventeenth season, playing more than a thousand times. The vigorous baton will be held by Dr. Hans Kindler. The Symphony opening is the first really top-hat event of the Washington season, and the boxholder list reads like a combination of Who's Who, Social Register and diplomatic list.

Soloist of the evening will be Tossy Spivakovsky, who'll play the Sibelius violin concerto. Mr. S is one of those remarkable creatures, an infant prodigy who made good. Thirty-seven years ago he was born in Odessa, at 10 he made his debut in Berlin. He quit Nazi Germany in 1941, went on a prolonged concert tour through Australia and New Zealand.

In kangarooland he picked up a red-haired, blue-eyed bride, who had earned a Ph. D. in romance languages. Artur Rubinstein, the pianist, heard him play, suggested him as first violinist for the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra.

Later Rodzinski, conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, invited him as soloist, and biddling a Bartok Concerto he brought down the house. Since then he's made two transcontinental tours, played with 15 major orchestras including a Washington appearance last year. Most sensational incident of his career was when an anonymous Chicagoan presented him with the "Macmillen," one of the most famous of Stradivari's violins. Breathing spells between tours, Spivakovsky hides out in New Hampshire, spends his evenings playing for an audience of two, his wife and their 7-year-old daughter who's already intent on a violinist career.

Back Bay Humor

ROBERT KENNY, California's former attorney general, has been enlivening the Washington scene these past few days. Tubular, jovial Bob is spearheading the Wallace movement and reports that the former Vice President is growing very mellow, indeed—they've persuaded him to drink beer with his meals.

Kenny, incidentally, has been making political speeches up New England way. In Boston, hoping for a laugh, he said "In the next election, I sincerely hope we won't be forced to choose between Tweedledum and Tweedledewe."

He paused but not even a snicker marred the silence. The Back Bay boys, Kenny believes, really thought he'd made a slip of the tongue and kept tactfully silent!

Said the GI to the General:

NOWADAYS, our once tough Army is partly recruited from green troops. At a dinner party the other evening the commanding general of a certain Pacific area told a story to show what our officers are up against. The general, in full uniform dripping with stars, decorations and other identifying insignia, was riding in his car, be-starred flag flapping in front.

Along the way a very young GI stepped into the road, wiggled his thumb for a lift. The general signaled the astonished chauffeur to stop. The GI stepped in, sat down nonchalantly beside the general. After a slight pause the general cleared his throat, asked his pickup if he knew with whom he was riding.

The GI turned around, surveyed the general carefully, screwed up his face thoughtfully, replied slowly: "No, Sir! You couldn't be Nimitz, could you?"

Success Story

EVERYBODY seems to be writing books. Latest is an enchanting children's story authored by Catherine Besterman. Petite, chic Mrs. Besterman is Polish born, came to this country during the war when her journalist husband was made press attache at the old Polish Embassy. She's never written before and the story was spun from her vivid imagination one summer day when her husband, longing for a nap, desperately begged her to keep their young son quiet. The youngster was so charmed, she jotted down the story, and Bobbs Merrill snapped it up immediately.

The Bestermans are one of the nicest success stories around Washington. Shortly after the old Polish regime was ousted, Walter (then Wladislav) became an American citizen, got a Government job, now is abroad as expert with Christian Herter's Congressional Committee.

He edited former Ambassador Jan Ciechanowski's political best seller "Defeat in Victory." Walters almost finished re-writing an exciting novel, originally written by a 16-year-old Pole who spent 4 years in a Russian slave labor camp.

Princess of Iran Entertains To Bid Farewell to Friends

By Marie McNair

BEFORE the plane carries her across the seas tomorrow Princess Achraf Pahlavi, sister of the Shah of Iran, said goodbye to her American friends at a reception yesterday at the Iranian Embassy. Here for six weeks or more, the tiny black-haired, black-eyed Princess will take back with her administrative methods of the American Red Cross of which she has made a study during her stay in the United States. She's extremely grateful, too, she said yesterday for all the kindnesses shown her, for the friends she's made.

It was strictly the Princess' party yesterday. She welcomed guests alone but with M. Gharaghozlou, Master of Ceremonies of the Imperial Court of Iran, never far from her side.

No story book Princess is this young lady from the East. She's modern to her finger tips and her black gown fitting her slim figure and fashioned of row upon row of narrow black fringe, bespoke Paris design. With it she wore long intricately fashioned diamond earrings and a diamond necklace the size of a baby's bib.

Gather on Terrace

The Iran Ambassador Hussein Alla, who hasn't been well for some time, remained in the embassy's private apartments. So too, did Mme. Ala. But the latter's mother, who is also mother of Iran's Court Master of Ceremony, was there in a black gown sparkling with black sequins. Summer seemed to have returned for the day yesterday. The embassy doors were opened to the terrace and chairs there had been drawn up for conversational groups.

The James Byrnes—he's our former Secretary of State—who were among the guests, hold their own court where ever they go. The Secretary of the Army, Kenneth Royall, and Mrs. Royall were there but otherwise there seemed few others from official circles.

Handsome Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg and his equally attractive wife showed up, also Gen. John N. Greely who was stationed in Iran, and Mrs. Greely, all in black with a black hat of Cossack inspiration on her snowy hair.

Over tall drinks or plates of pilaf from the lavish buffet I saw Mme. Thors, wife of the Minister of Iceland, in green of varying shades with her pretty daughter, Margret; Mrs. Harry Andrews, wife of the South African Minister, looking ever so smart and trim in black with a flaring black hat.

Hornbecks Greet Friends

Dr. Stanley Hornbeck, until recently our Ambassador to the Netherlands, and Mrs. Hornbeck were busy seeing old friends for the first time since they came back from Denver.

The Minister of Luxembourg and Mme. LeGallais who've been away for the summer were being welcomed back and others there were the Finnish Minister, K. Jutila; the Honduran Ambassador and Senora de Caceres; the President's Naval Aide, Admiral James H. Foskett and Mrs. Foskett; the Italian Ambassador and Signora Tarchiani; Mrs. William H. Arnold, Gen. and Mrs. Gordon Young, Aniz Azer, Egyptian Minister; J. H. Van Gelder of New York; the Indian Ambassador, Asaf Ali; Stanley Woodward and Raymond Muir of the State Department; Mme. Baig, wife of the Counselor of the Pakistan Embassy; Mrs. William S. Culbertson, Mrs. Mary Buford, Mrs. Elonzo Tyner, Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr, and Col. and Mrs. Allen Kingman.

On the Party Calendar

AN impressive array of top Army and Naval officials attended a dinner last evening in honor of Gen. Salih Omurtak, Chief of the Turkish General Staff. Given at the Shoreham Hotel, the party was a stag affair. Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, Army Chief of Staff; Admiral Chester Nimitz, Chief of Naval Operations, and Gen. Carl Spaatz, Chief of Staff, U. S. Air Force, were joint hosts.

The 14 officers who accompanied Gen. Omurtak from Turkey were in the company, as well as the Ambassador of Turkey, Huseyin Ragip Baydur. Also, Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, Lieut. Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Lieut. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler, Lieut. Gen. C. P. Hall, Lieut. Gen. LeRoy Lutes, Vice Admiral F. P. Sherman, Vice Admiral R. B. Carney, Vice Admiral J. L. McCrea, Maj. Gen. Lauris Norstad, Maj. Gen. C. E. LeMay and many others.

Hawaii Statehood Group Gives Cocktail Party

THE Hawaii Statehood Committee gave a cocktail party in the Chinese Room at the Mayflower yesterday from 5:30 to 7:30 o'clock. The fete preceded the premiere of RKO-Pathe's movie, "The 49th State," a documentary film in a series known as "This Is America."

Those who attended both premiere and party included the Secretary of the Interior, Julius A. Krug; Delegate for Hawaii and Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington; A. T. Longley, chairman of Hawaii Statehood Commission in Honolulu; Philip Reisman, jr., and George C. McLane, executive secretary of the Statehood Office in Washington.

Members of the House and Senate public lands committees were also invited. Miss Pualani Avon, famous dancer from Hawaii, did a few hulas during the cocktail hour. Delegate Farrington was toastmaster, and Secretary Krug spoke.

Calls Bread Better Weapon Than Atom

By Genevieve Reynolds

Condition of Eastern Germany and the struggle in Indonesia are two of the greatest problems to reconstruction in the Netherlands. So declared Mrs. Bakker Van Bosse, member of the advisory committee to the Netherlands Government on Human Rights.

Guest of honor and speaker at a luncheon given by the United Nations Club yesterday in the clubhouse at 1701 19th st., she appealed to the audience to try to understand her country's side in the Indonesian fight.

"I don't believe we deserve the bad reputation some of your press has given us", she said. "In our dire distress it was natural to expect material help from Indonesia where we had sent our best men to toil and sweat to build up the country.

Dutch Haven't Changed

"The Dutch people who fought the Nazis haven't suddenly changed character and become exploiting demons," she continued. "The fact that the native population has increased from five to 40 million disapproves the contention that the Javanese have been oppressed."

Mrs. Van Bosse, the fifth woman to graduate as Doctor of Law from Leyde University and recently appointed vice chairman, Commission on Human Rights of the World Federation of United Nations Associations plus Covener of the Peace Commission of the International Council of Women, went on to express a belief that "we are the only nation which can cooperate with the Indonesians if only the terrorists who made up nly ne third f the population, will let us."

She said that while none of the Dutch love the Germans, the full economic recovery of the Netherlands is dependent upon imports from the Eastern part of Germany.

Artists Regimented

Recalling the privations of war and the difficulties under the Nazi's civil and military occupation, she told how all the writers, artists, musicians and other intellectuals had been forced to join the Kulturkammer (Chamber of Culture) and do propaganda for the enemy.

Speaking of the food faminine in Europe, Mrs. Van Bosse said that already rations are being cut in her country. "We expect to go hungry," she said. "We learned how during the war. But we expect to pull through since we are an agricultural country. Also, we will share what we can with the other countries."

She warned of the food shortages in Italy and France and emphasized that if France turns Communist all western Europe is lost.

"The weapon against communism will be a loaf of bread—not an atom bomb," she asserted.

Pointing out that the United States had become the leader of the world before it knew or perhaps wanted to, she concluded, "we pray that you will use this leadership for the utmost benefit of your country and the community of nations."

Dr. Hornbeck Speaks

Dr. Stanley K. Hornbeck, former United States Ambassador to the Netherlands, also spoke.

Mrs. James O'Hanlon, luncheon chairman introduced the speakers and distinguished guests among whom were representatives of the U. N., State Department and Atomic Energy Commission.

Miss Meredith Howard, United Nations club president, announced that the club here recently had become affiliated with the Allied Circle Club in Amsterdam. Also, that the former Assistant Secretary of State William Benton had given books and magazines to start a library in the club.

Miss Beardslee Speaks To Episcopal Women

Miss Edna Beardslee, recently returned from an extensive trip throughout South America, discussed the church of that continent yesterday at the annual diocesan conference of the Episcopal Church which took place at St. Paul's Church, Rock Creek Church rd. nw.

More than 300 members of Women's Auxiliary and unified organizations of the diocese of Washington attended.

Holy Communion opened the conference at 10 a. m. and a business meeting followed. After Miss Beardslee, a member of the National Women's Auxiliary staff, addressed the morning session, luncheon was served by the combined branches of Women's Auxiliary of Rock Creek Parish.

The afternoon meetings took the form of special session devoted to supply work, devotion, Christian education, etc.

The auxiliary of St. Alban's Church gave a dinner for those unable to attend the morning and afternoon sessions. Miss Beardslee spoke there, also.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl, 15, Calls Stepfather a Cruel Man, Hostile to Her of Recent Years, Though He Seemed All Right When She Was Smaller

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My parents were divorced when I was six years old. I am now 15. Two years later, my mother married an old friend of the family.

Things were all right for the first few years, but gradually as I grew older I realized that my stepfather is a cruel man. He will not allow my mother to get me any new clothes; or if she does he sulks for days and makes life miserable for her and me.

I am not permitted to go to the movies at night; not even with girls. I am not allowed to have any parties, nor to have any boy friends come to the house. I don't wish to have girl friends come, either; because when they are here I'm always uncomfortable, thinking that my stepfather will create a scene.

He's Always Nagging, She's Always Crying

HE PICKS on me for any little thing. For instance, he won't let me change my clothes after I have dressed for the day. He listens to all my telephone calls. He calls me "princess" in a jeering tone; and worst of all he swears in front of me. When talking, he uses vulgar figures of speech.

I am always crying; he is always yelling, and mother is caught in the middle. He buys her new clothes to try to make me jealous. I fear he will be the end of mother and me if the problem can't be solved soon. Mother will not leave him as she feels we're financially secure. Please tell me how to treat this perplexing situation.

T. K.

Girl's Self-Pity Fuels Hostility

DEAR T. K.: You are feeling sorry for yourself and hating your stepfather for his crankiness, hence "always crying" in raging protest at a nonidyllic situation, a performance on your part which causes increasing bad blood between you and the head of the household.

According to proverb, "A soft answer turneth away wrath." A mild or courteous reaction to hostile or uncivil treatment, or ugly language, often disarms the antagonist. So why don't you practice philosophic finesse in coping with your stepfather's autocrat tendencies

If things were all right for the first few years, when you were small, he can't be altogether unreasonable. And though he lacks wisdom in supervising teen-age growth, it's also plain that some, at least, of your ideas concerning privileges aren't defensible.

For example, you write from a big city, where girls of 15 shouldn't be movie-going at night without adult chaperonage to their very door—quite aside from the fact that on school nights, school girls should be abed not later than 10 p. m., after some time devoted to home work.

Sweet Reason Averts Strife

AS FOR changing costumes during the day, why should you—unless to save wear-and-tear on good clothes by wearing washable cotton around the house when doing chores? If your fancy runs to dress-up variety—morning, afternoon and evening—to impress school mates, that's foolish, adding unduly to laundry, cleaning and pressing.

So, for advice: 1. Recognize that you haven't just cause for dark grievance on these points. 2. Turn over a new leaf and try amiably to oblige your stepfather's views, as a contribution to better relations. 3. Consult his preference generally, not sulking when his decisions disappoint,—and his shouting insistence on being boss may gradually subside.

However, aside to him, if he reads these remarks: I hold no brief for his ugly behavior, although it signifies overweening anxiety. For the family's sake, and his own peace of mind, he needs short-term intensive psychiatric help,—and to make life worthwhile, he ought to get it.

Your Questions On Homemaking

We will be moving soon into a house that has been occupied for some years. There is illness in the family at present and before moving into the house I would like to fumigate it entirely. Can you tell me how this should be done and what materials and tools are necessary to do the job? I have a vacuum cleaner and all the attachments for spraying and demothing. Can this be used effectively? Also, should the house be cleaned thoroughly before fumigating, or visa versa?

I'm told on good authority that fumigation to kill bacteria has not been recommended by health authorities for several years. Even in the case of tuberculosis, which is considered as contagious as any disease, they suggest this following method as being the best for destroying all bacteria: Wash the woodwork, floors and walls, if possible, of the room or rooms occupied by the patient with a good strong household soap and water. You may add disinfectant to the washing water. During and after the thorough washing of all surfaces, open the windows wide and expose the entire house to air and as much sunshine as possible. This cleaning should be done in advance of moving in so that there will be no danger of contaminating any of your belongings.

I have just discovered a spot of household cement about the size of a quarter on a pair of brown wool slacks. The cement has hardened and has been there about a month. Is there any way to remove the spot? I have tried scraping it carefully with a razor blade, but it has not helped.

Try sponging the spot with white vinegar. If this doesn't soften and remove it, then rub vaseline into the spot. Let stand for an hour or so to loosen it and then apply carbon tetrachloride or other solvent.

Take it easy, Petunia! And here's how to keep honey from sticking to your utensils, anyhow. Dip spoons or cups into hot water first—or grease them—nary a drop will stick.

Wedding Bells Ring

In a candlelight ceremony at Walter Reed Chapel on September 20, Miss Dorothy A. Stota, daughter of Mrs. Bessie Stota of Easthampton, Mass., became the bride and Mrs. Joel A. Byrd of Mullins, of Lieut. Neal A. Byrd, son of Mr. S. C. Chaplain Robert Mulhern performed the double ring service.

The bride wore a white duchess satin gown made with fitted bodice edged with seed pearls at the neckline; long sleeves and a full skirt ending in a train. Her finger-tip veil of illusion was held by pearl orange blossoms. She carried a cascade bouquet of white gladioli with blush pink rosebuds.

Miss Adelia D. Stota, twin sister of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing blue satin with a bouffant net skirt and carrying a cascade bouquet of salmon pink gladioli. Capt. John O'Connor was best man.

Following a trip to New York and Virginia Lieutenant Byrd and his bride will go to St. Petersburg, Fla., to live.

Parker—Haszel

Miss Ethel Mae Haszel became the bride of James B. Parker September 13 at St. Matthew's Cathedral. She is the daughter of Mrs. George A. Haszel and the late Mr. Haszel of Kewaunee, Wis., and her husband is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth P. Puryear of Alexandria, Va.

For her wedding Mrs. Parker wore a street-length dress of purple crepe with a gray plumed hat and a corsage of orchids. Miss Madonna Blahnik, the maid of honor, wore forest green crepe with yellow rosebuds. Thomas L. Parker served his brother as best man.

A reception was held afterwards in the Oak Room at the Burlington Hotel. The couple left for a trip through the Shenandoah Valley and will live in Washington, on their return, until the bridegroom finishes his studies at George Washington University. He served in the Army Air Forces in India during the war.

Mrs. Charles Robert Mattare, before her marriage on tare, before her marriage on September 20 in the chapel of Fort Myer, Va., was Miss Martha Jane Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Davis of Charlestown, W. Va. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark A. Mattare of Arlington, Va.

Arrington—Johnson

The wedding of Miss Mary Elizabeth Hart and Richard L. Arrington, aviation ordnanceman, first class, took place September 20 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Johnson, grandparents of the bride, in Brookmont, Md. Mrs. Arrington is the daughter of Mrs. H. D. Johnson of Washington and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Arrington of Ridgeley, W. Va.

The Rev. Edward Herrmann of Our Lady of Victory officiated, and a reception followed the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her stepfather, H. D. Johnson. She wore ice-blue satin

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Hart, brother and sister of the bride, attended the couple. Mrs. Hart wore a gown of peach satin and carried yellow roses.

After a wedding trip to Atlantic City, Mr. and Mrs. Arrington will live in Norfolk, Va., where the bridegroom is on duty on board the USS Roosevelt.

Noblewoman Changes Title To Plain 'Mrs.'

An Austrian baroness yesterday exchanged her grandiose title for plain American "Mrs." and was happy to do it.

The erstwhile noblewoman, now Mrs. Ida Wilhelmina Maria Katherine Alexich, is the wife of a former Austrian envoy to The Hague. She received her final citizenship papers in District Court.

Alexich left his post of envoy when Hitler's troops marched into Austria in 1938. With his family, he fled to Holland and thence to France. They arrived in the United States after the fall of France in 1940.

Mrs. Alexich showed no regret at renouncing her title. "Titles have no value," she smiled in answer to reporters' questions.

Thirty-six others were granted citizenship papers by Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws. They were:

Religious Fraternity Is Granted Charter

Charleston, W. Va. Oct. 7 (AP).—A charter was issued today to Kappa Delta Chi, Inc., of Philippi, an organization of Alderson Broaddus College of students "who have dedicated themselves to full time Christian service."

The fraternity, which is authorized to spread to other colleges, is open to prospective ministers, missionaries and Christian educators.

Volunteer Firemen Appeal for Funds

Members of the Chapel Oaks, Md., Volunteer Fire Department, whose fire-fighting apparatus and other equipment was destroyed in a fire September 8, have issued another appeal for contributions to rebuild their quarters and buy new appartus. Mrs. Mildred J. Fitzgerald, secretary, said only $280.26 had been received thus far. The company, she said, hopes to raise $50,000 to outfit and house itself.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

Alan Gale, that droll one, will head the Fiesta's new revue starting tomorrow. He hasn't been in town since he kept the ringside howling like timber wolves at Paul Young's. Supporting Alan will be dancers Rita and Allan, singer Ruth Rogers.

TED LEWIS, his orchestra and troupe of entertainers (totaling 43 people) will start a hurricane in the Club Cairo beginning next Wednesday, October 15. This promises to be the biggest, most violent, most exciting floor show ever to crash into Washington . . . Kind words from all quarters are showered on the Cairo's Copo Girls. Their costuming is marvelously exquisite, fresh and expensive—so are the gals, for that matter. They've appeared with Carmen Miranda and the Marx Brothers . . . Sam Shanker may add a surprise act to the Cairo show tonight. He's been trying. But he left for New York on Monday saying dourly, 'I'll bet every booking agent in town is at the ball game and I won't be able to get any sense out of any of 'em.'"

Nat Conway
At the Neptune Room

FAME! FAME! Imogene Coca, sassy impressionist of New York's Cafe Society, will star at tomorrow's opening of the new Fame Room of Restaurant 400. La Coca, known for her demonish wit, is due to appear in the new musical, "New Faces of 1948," later in the fall . . . Lending additional sheen to the Fame opening will be Baritone Norman Lawrence of follow the Girls" and Evelyn Nations, song-and-piano stylist from the Astor.

Michael Douglas, Irish baritone from Chicago's Palmer House, is making what looks like a titanic hit in the Mayflower Lounge . . . Singer Jeanne Shirley has left the Lounge for St. Louis where she'll seen be wearing a bridal veil.

CHEF STEALS SHOW. Al Sakol, Lotus bandleader, pitched a wonderful dinner to celebrate his first year at the spot. The food was so grandly exotic that when Chef Lo Wah showed up the guests made more fuss over him than if he'd been Clark Gable. Betty Ferro of the FCC, who'd thrown her diet outa the window for the occasion, pinned a boutonniere on Chief Lo . . . Joan Brandon, Lotus headliner, appeared at the Cosmopolitan Club luncheon with Washington's Harry Baker, tied up Coal Man Jim Colliflower with so much rope that he asked her to kindly untangle him.

The 87-year-old mother of Peter Borras of the Madrillon has just arrived from Spain, will make her home in Washington. Despite her age, Mrs. Borras said she enjoyed the long plane hop from Portugal.

REUNIONS AT MIDNIGHT. Friends and lads who'd like to be more than friends are always calling on peachy-creamy Barbara Grant at the Rainbow Room. In comes her former fiance, Junio Mays (now bandleader at Cross Roads). Babs was very chummy, but they didn't get reengaged. Other callers were Jerry Morton, featured at the Capitol Theater last week, also a flock of the boys from Skitch Henderson's Band . . . It's a rare evening at the Anchor Room when Georgia Butler isn't greeted by former servicemen who met her as a USO entertainer. A recent dropper-in was Capt. C. S. Grimshaw of the Twelfth Air Force. He and Georgia had met over cognac and cokes in an Italian airdrome captured only two days before.

Traditional tunes and modernist themes will blend in the concert to be given tonight at Central High School by a Toby Tyler-directed orchestra. Only solo number will be "Warsaw Concerto" by pianist Burrus Williams.

FEMMES — THEY'RE UNPREDICTABLE. After giving no-nevermind to school for some years, Pearl Hauer, organist in the Tudor Room of the Hay-Adams House, has gone back to high school. She's working for just three credits she needs to enter Catholic University. Seems that her son is now a student at C. U. and mama's determined that the younger generation shall not get ahead or her . . . Most maddening coiffurs in town are flaunted by the King Cole Room's Dona Mason. Curls, bangs, puffs, up-dos, down-dos — Dona wears them in a hundred variations. We're waiting for the night when she develops a neurosis and decides to have a crew cut . . . Gypsy Markoff, the Balalaika star, has succeeded in pasting gorgeous false eye lashes on the girls of the spot's revue. Such fun! . . . Maurita Gordon, delicately pretty pianist in the Uptown cocktail lounge, is really an athlete. She made both the tennis and basketball teams in her college days . . . Ronny Simpson, singer at the Old New Orleans, was a collector of movie star autographs and pictures in her bobby-sox days. She filled six immense volumes, gave one of them to a war bond sale. It brought $500.

Cheltenham School Plan Approved

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 7 (AP).—The Maryland Board of Public Works today approved an emergency construction plan for Cheltenham School for Negro boys to cost approximately $128,300.

The board provided $75,000 from money turned back to the State by the State Planning Commission and authorized the expenditure of other funds available to the institution.

In other action, the board:

1. Adopted a standard of architects' fees for work performed for the State.

2. Rejected a request from Rosewood Training School for Girls for approximately $8000 to provide a bus and station wagon and $9132 for annual operation and maintenance to accommodate their personnel.

3. Gave the go-ahead to complete negotiations for the Solomons Island amphibious base in Calvert County for use of the Board of Natural Resources.

4. Approved spending up to $21,000 to eliminate the backlog of work in the Department of Motor Vehicles.

The action on Cheltenham was taken after a report submitted by State Engineer John B. Funk was considered by the board. The report was drawn up after visits of various State officials to the institution.

The emergency program for the school—which was chosen in favor of long-range re-location plan—was adopted after Governor Lane read a report showing there was some improvement in the operation of the institution since Calvin L. Kiah, 36-year-old war veteran, had taken charge.

Engineer Funk's report commented officially, "it is suggested that, no matter what repairs are affected in the institution, and regardless of what new buildings and accommodations are provided, the value of such improvements will be worthless is staff and administration officials of the institution do not organize Cheltenham and run it in such maner as to keep it clean and habitable."

The report recommended that the present dining hall, kitchen and food-handling facilities be abandoned in the present administration building.

The structure would be converted in part to living space for the staff, the dining room would be made into office space, the laundry retained but adequately lighted and provided with steam exhaust, and fumigation and rodent control would be carried out. Cottages would be generally repaired and changes would be made in the heating system.

A new dining room and kitchen would be constructed of concrete blocks, and of a type that could be improved later when more money was available.

Young Refuses To Check Evidence In Bunch Death

District Commissioner John Russell Young yesterday denied a request from the attorney for the family of John Forrest Bunch to review the District Government's evidence in the death of the 64-year-old carpenter.

In a letter of reply to two letters of request, sent to him September 26 and October 2 by John R. Fitzpatrick, Commissioner Young declared "The District has nothing whatsoever to hide in connection with the Bunch case."

He stated that since the District Attorney's office and the Department of Justice have not yet completed their investigation, he did not feel he could grant Fitzpatrick's request at this time.

Mr. Bunch died August 4 at Gallinger Hospital, coroner's jury ruled his death accidental. His family has stated they believe his injuries were received after his arrest.

Wheaton Out To Put Name On the Map

The town of Wheaton, Md., formally served notice on the world last night it is tired of anonymity.

At a Chamber of Commerce dinner, at Olney Inn, Olney, Md., spokesmen warned they are out to literally put the town's name on the map.

More than 40 members of the recently organized Chamber of Commerce and their guests kicked off the campaign. Numerous county officials were also present.

Officials included: E. Brooke Lee, vice chairman of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission; Brooke Johns, president of the Montgomery County Commissioners, and County Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter, Oliver W. Youngblood and George (Ace) Esworthy.

"We asked the officials because they're going to be hearing from us in the future," President Thomas G. Oyster explained.

Commissioner Lee told the gathering "Wheaton is clearly destined to have a strong, a large and a long future."

He also brought with him copies of the proposed master zoning plan for Georgia ave. from Silver Spring, through Wheaton, to Brookville.

Anne Arundel Budget Studied

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 7 (AP).—Anne Arundel County Commissioners were studying today a tentative 1948 budget totaling $2,694,820, an increase of $571,619 over the current year.

The proposed budget was submitted by R. Cleveland Logue, budget supervisor, who reduced items the equivalent of two cents on the tax rate from recommendations of county departments and agencies.

Suggested tax rates ranged from $2.60 in the Seventh District to $1.57 in Annapolis, the Sixth District.

Fairfax Seal Chairman

Appointment of Mrs. William M. B. Freeman of Vienna, Va., as Christmas Seal Sale chairman of the Fairfax County Tuberculosis Association was announced yesterday by Thomas B. Chapman, jr., president. Mrs. Glenn Anderson of McLean, will serve as publicity chairman, Chapman said.

42 Farm Loan Group Chiefs Open Session

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 7 (AP).—The success of Cooperative Credit Associations depends on the awareness by local directors of their responsibilities, E. Paul Crider of Baltimore, general agent of the Farm Credit Administration, declared today.

He addressed a dinner meeting at Carvel Hall, attended by 42 directors from seven national farm loan associations in Maryland, Delaware and Virginia.

The session closed the first day of a three-day annual discussion conference designed to give the directors a broader knowledge of the land bank system and national association's work. More than 3000 farmer-members are represented in the seven organizations in this area.

Crider remarked that the land bank system, celebrating its thirtieth anniversary this year, has weathered two world wars and a major depression.

"That is sufficient," he said, "to assure farmers that the system is solid and always at the command of its farmer-members."

Molloy C. Vaughan, president of the Delaware association, and Luther E. Payne, vice president of the Salisbury association, led discussions of directors' responsibilities and land bank loan servicing.

Dr. A. B. Hamilton of the University of Maryland Department of Agricultural Economics will speak tomorrow.

All Maryland counties, the three in Delaware and two in Virginia, are embraced by the seven associations represented at the conference. Headquarters are at Bel Air, Easton, Salisbury, Frederick and Upper Marlboro, Md.; Dover, Del., and Eastville, Va.

Trieste Graft Court Finds Girls Guilty

Trieste, Oct. 7 (U.P.).—An Allied Military Court today found four American Military Government employes and the sweetheart of one of them guilty of graft in connection with Venezia Giulia's one-million-dollar public works scandal.

Three were young women secretaries of Allied officers. The verdict termed the case "a sordid tale of intrigue and infidelity" and said "it is uncertain whether the money they received paid for love or for contracts."

Found guilty were Miroslava Strukely, secretary to United States Maj. E. H. Richardson, former head of the public works department; Anita Huebner, an Austrian, secretary to a British major; Adriana Luzzatto, secretary to a British captain; Angelo Ricci, general secretary of the public works section, and Vincenzo d'Angelo, sweetheart of Miss Luzzatto.

The women and Ricci were convicted of using their positions to give contracts to favored firms in return for cash and presents. D'Angelo, an intermediary, benefited from the deals.

Richardson faces court-martial on charges of receiving $90,000 from illegal contract deals. The officers already have been sent to prison.

The women appeared in court dressed elegantly. They were pale and nervous, and Miss Huebner and Miss Strukely cried throughout the proceedings.

Mandamus Answer Set For Monday

Richmond, Va., Oct. 7 (AP).—The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals today granted Virgil Goode, attorney for defendant Democrats, until Monday to file his answer to Republican petitions for mandamus against electoral boards in some southwest Virginia counties as an outgrowth of the absent voters' law.

S. H. Sullivan, of Clintwood, presented the petitions, filed yesterday, without oral argument. In each of the seven petitions the Republicans challenge the power of a local election board to delegate its duties under the absent voters law to the board secretary.

The court was asked to compel the boards to act only at regular meetings of the full board in handling absent voters' ballots.

One new associate justice was welcomed by the court today, following which it heard arguments in several criminal cases and qualified 16 attorneys.

Former Attorney General A. P. Staples was sworn into the number six spot on the high court. He was introduced by Judge Harvey B. Apperson, who left the State Corporation Commission to take Staples job as attorney general. The oath was administered by the Supreme Court's new Chief Justice, Edward W. Hudgins of Chase City, who became Chief Justice automatically Saturday night upon the death of Henry W. Holt of Staunton.

Later in the day, Apperson went to the State Corporation Commission offices to witness the swearing-in of W. Marshall King of Fredericksburg as the new member of the SCC to succeed Apperson.

Ex-Victim Gets Tuberculosis Job

Richmond, Va., Oct. 7 (AP).—William F. Wagner, San Francisco, who entered the tuberculosis field of medicine after recovering from the disease himself, will become director of a new bureau of tuberculosis control in the State Department of Health November 1.

Dr. L. J. Roper, in announcing Dr. Wagner's appointment today, said in the future all tuberculosis activities will come under the one division, whereas in the past they have been handled by several divisions.

Dr. Roper also announced promotion of Dr. Louise Galvin to direct the bureau of crippled children, effective November 1. She now heads rheumatic fever work in this bureau.

War Mothers Open Meeting at Alexandria

Approximately 150 members from 12 Virginia chapters of American War Mothers are expected in Alexandria today to start a three-day convention at the George Mason Hotel. Hosts to th econvention will be the Alexandria, Arlington and Falls Church chapters.

At 3 p. m. today, the group will lay a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery. A banquet will be held Thursday evening and election of officers will take place Friday morning.

Joust Set for Today

Leonardtown, Md., Oct. 7.—The annual amateur jousting tournament will be held tomorrow at St. John's Catholic Church in Hollywood. The Rev. Joseph Johnson announced that a dinner and dance will follow coronation ceremonies at 8 p. m.

Cabin John Benefits

The Cabin John (Md.) Volunteer Fire Department will sponsor a series of benefits for the fire department fund beginning Friday at 8 p. m. in the Cabin John fire house. Other parties will be held every Friday night.

Ex-GI 'Kidnaps' Own Baby, Flies Him Home From Britain

Greensboro, N. C., Oct. 7 (AP).—Curtis Elmer Vincent took his baby to an undisclosed place here today after telling how he brought the child 3000 miles from England by plane in what his English wife called "a kidnaping."

"It was easier than I expected," he said.

Vincent, a department store clerk and a former Air Corps private, denied he had failed to provide adequate funds for the child, Van Melvin.

A London dispatch quoted his wife as saying she declined to accompany him to this country because she had "lost all faith in him," when "he failed to carry out his promises about money for the baby."

He said his mother, Mrs. Clora Vincent, with whom he lives, would help him rear the boy.

Vincent said he went to England in August to bring his British wife and infant son back, but the wife would not come to this country.

Vincent had prepared amply for his return journey. He took dried milk and dried baby foods. He changed the diapers himself, arriving with 6 out of the 24 he took with him.

The veteran said he cured his child of a bad diaper rash while on the trip, and generally took such good care of Van that several passengers remarked, "A mother couldn't do better than that."

"I Hate Him," Says Wife

Leeds, England, Oct. 7 (U.P.).—Mrs. Madge Vincent said today, "I hate him," and added she had received a letter from her husband which intimated he had no intention of giving her an opportunity to regain custody of their child.

U. S. Able To Help, Krug Finds

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

America has the natural resources and the industrial and agricultural capacity to extend Marshall Plan aid to Europe without damaging our domestic economy.

This finding, it was learned yesterday, is a principal conclusion in an Interior Department report which Secretary Krug is scheduled to submit to the White House today.

The document is said to point out that the foreign aid program will, over a short term, intensify certain shortages. But these difficulties can be met successfully, Krug will declare, by careful programming, screening of demands and channeling of materials.

Exports No Problem

The problems which America will face in the future on natural resources and capacity, the report is believed to point out, will not be the result of a generous foreign export program.

Rather, the fundamental troubles will stem from continuing the home economy over the next five years at its present high level of activity and employment.

Supplies — of steel, power and transport capacity, and of raw materials — may become short, but not because of foreign aid. This is only a small fraction of the total demand. The big segment is the appetite at home resulting from record prosperity, the report implies.

The Krug report is one of three commissioned by President Truman after the Marshall proposal had been subjected to some attacks on grounds that it would cause America to be "bled white." The other reports are under preparation by the Council of Economic Advisors and by a 19-man committee of industrialists called together by Commerce Secretary Harriman.

Called on Business

Krug also called on outside business leaders and other Federal agencies for help in preparing the study of America material potentialities. These sources, who have advised on the report and seen various of its drafts, gave this general outline of its contents:

The report examines 15 major categories of exports, and takes an over-all look at power and transport capacities.

In none of these does it find any absolute shortage of the supply of primary materials for export and for home consumption, even assuming continued full employment and high prosperity here for the next five years.

Some Scarcities Seen

It does, however, see some scarcities which will have economic repercussions. These effects will be intensified by the foreign aid program.

They center around the following commodities:

1. Wheat. This is thought of as a one-year problem. Its solution is contingent on weather, here and abroad.

2. Steel. This is seen as a difficult nut to crack, in that there will not be enough to meet all demands from all sources. But there is thought to be a sufficient supply for basic demands here and reconstruction needs in Europe.

3. Coal. The difficulty here is in transportation, not in lack of mining facilities and manpower. The shortage is basically one of steel, for railway coal cars.

4. Nitrogen fertilizers. A high demand by prosperous American farmers, coupled with the virtual shutdown of prewar German nitrogen production, makes the problem a tough one.

5. Various types of industrial machinery. These include power machinery, railroad equipment and agricultural implements.

Chinese Capture Shantung Port

Shanghai, China, Tuesday, Oct. 7 (U.P.).—Nationalist troops, pressing their campaign to wipe out Communist opposition on Shantung Peninsula, have captured Weihaiwei, pro-government reports claimed today.

Overell Case Cost Is Heavy

Santa Ana, Calif., Oct. 7 (AP).—The longest murder trial on record, the Overell case also ranked as one of the costliest in California court annals.

While certain counsel and special investigating fees can only be estimated, the total cost figured to run over $150,000.

Of this amount, Orange County alone expended $17,403.50, including nearly $3000 the jury fees, at $12 per week per juror.

YE GODS, THIS HAS BEEN GOING ON FOR TWENTY-FIVE MINUTES!
AHEM!
I'LL ONLY BE TEN MINUTES OR SO, FATHER. JANET AND I ARE PLANNING SOMETHING.
I HAVE AN IMPORTANT CALL TO MAKE. MAYBE YOU COULD ARRANGE TO MEET HER SOMEWHERE.
MEETING HER SOMEWHERE WOULD BE SO UTTERLY IMPRACTICAL....
HEAVENS, SHE ONLY LIVES RIGHT ACROSS THE STREET!

MARY WORTH

YOU--CAME HERE TO CHANGE THE EXECUTIVE STAFF, MR. SAXTON? THEN I MIGHT AS WELL CLEAN OUT MY DESK! I SUPPOSE?--AFTER MY DISPLAY OF INSOLENCE, YOU WOULDN'T LET ME STAY AS MAID IN THE FITTING ROOM, LET ALONE MANAGER!
DON'T FRET, MISS LAKE! YOUR STATUS HERE HASN'T CHANGED! MY FAMILY IS WELL AWARE OF YOUR VALUE TO SAXTON'S FIFTH AVENUE!
WHEW! THEN MY HEART CAN TAKE UP WHERE IT LEFT OFF! FRANKLY, I'D HAVE FELT LIKE CUTTING MY TONGUE OUT IF IT HAD RUINED MY CHANCE TO BE MANAGER!
GOSH, MISS LAKE!--I'M AFRAID I'LL HAVE TO CLARIFY ONE POINT!--YOU SEE--YOU ARE TO CONTINUE AS ASSISTANT--BUT THE FAMILY SENT ME HERE TO BE THE NEW MANAGER!
NO!

MICKEY FINN

I THINK MR. GALLAGHER WAS RIGHT, UNCLE PHIL —GILHOOLEY MIGHT TRY TO PULL SOMETHING —HE'S THAT KIND OF A MAN!
NOW DON'T BE SILLY, MICHAEL —HE KNOWS IF ANYTHING HAPPENED TO ME, HE'D BE THE FIRST GUY YOU'D SUSPECT!
I STILL SAY YOU OUGHT TO LET ME GO AROUND WITH YOU—HE KNOWS A LOT OF TOUGH EGGS AND—
AS A MATTER OF FACT, MICHAEL, I'M THROUGH GOIN' AROUND—I'VE GOTTEN HUGO ALL THE BUSINESS HE CAN HANDLE THIS WINTER!
GEE, PHIL —THAT'S WONDERFUL!
YES—I'M HAPPY TO SAY THAT HE'LL BE OUT OF THE RED BY CHRISTMAS —SO YOU CAN STOP WORRYIN' ABOUT GILHOOLEY RIGHT NOW!
I HOPE YOU'RE RIGHT, UNCLE PHIL —BUT I DON'T THINK HE'S GONNA TAKE IT LYIN' DOWN!
THEN WE'LL LET HIM TAKE IT STANDIN' UP! GO TO SLEEP!

WINNIE WINKLE

YOU TOLD MY HUSBAND I WAS NOT TO TALK TO THE MEN!
IT'S ONLY THAT THEY'RE USED TO TAKIN' ORDERS FROM ME!!
NOW, IF YOU'LL TELL ME-
VERY WELL- THEN I'LL TELL YOU!
I DIDN'T KNOW THIS HOUSE WAS SUPPOSED TO HAVE STATUES ON THE ROOF!
STATUES?! WHY, OF COURSE IT AIN'T!!
OH-ER--THOSE ARE MEN WORKING ON TH'----ER--- -HUH??

DOTTY

DOTTY, YOU SHOULDN'T COMPLAIN SO MUCH ABOUT COOKING-- ALL YOU HAVE TO FIX IS THREE LITTLE MEALS A DAY!
NOW, THAT'S THE TYPICAL VIEWPOINT OF A MAN!!
YOU SEEM TO FORGET THERE ARE 365 DAYS IN THE YEAR--AND THAT MEANS 1095 MEALS!!
AND IN THE 9 YEARS WE'VE BEEN MARRIED THE TOTAL COMES TO 9855!!
GOLLY, THAT IS A LOT OF MEALS, ISN'T IT?
BUT YOU HAD 9 YEARS IN WHICH TO COOK THEM, DIDN'T YOU?

Hubby Gets a Summons—But Doesn't Mind a Bit

Carolyn G. Groff of 3726 Harrison st. nw. passes along an interesting story about her husband.

Hubby had parked his car on a downtown street, and when he returned to it he saw a piece of paper tucked under the windshield.

"Oh, oh," he moaned. "A ticket."

It was a summons, all right—but not the kind he expected. On the paper was written:

"Pete: Meet me in the diner at 12 o'clock. Important. Mary."

ONE JOKE—GOING, GOING, GUN

L. C. George of 4121 31st st., Mount Rainier, Md., spots this one in our esteemed morning contemporary:

"Bids will be accepted at the Public Works Office, Potomac River Naval Command, Naval Fun Factory."

How about auctioning off a gross of assorted jokes, Admiral? From the production line to the District Line.

CLEAN JOKE

Robert C. Morrow of 1755 P st. nw. is glad to see that the President has picked Charles Luckman of Lever Brothers to head our food conservation drive. Says Bob:

"With all that Rinso at his disposal, Luckman is a cinch to clean up the situation in short order."

Yes, and he's such a young fellow, too. Very Spry. Full of Lifebuoy. And you know the old adage: Where there's Lifebuoy, there's Hope, and Pepsodent.

WHAT KIND OF SCORING IS 116 TO 91?

Ginny LaMaster writes:

"I was surprised to find that such a well-informed man could possibly fail to know about the G. W. sailboats, or that G. W. recently defeated the Kings Point Cadets, 116 to 91."

Ginny, by the time I find room for this in the column, those sailboats will probably be back on the stage of the auditorium again.

WALTER WILL HAIGHT ME FOR THIS

He's jealous of the trim lines of Walter Haight the horse.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Black 10-week-old kitten. Hurry up and take her away; she's winding herself around our hearts and we can't keep two." (CHestnut 9615.)

DEM BUMS GOT MOIDERED

During the course of the playoff, such mundane matters as the United Nations and the high cost of living took a back seat.

But meanwhile a portable radio at the top of the manhole kept all hands informed on every pitch.

Half way to our first scheduled stop the driver pulled over to the side of the road, turned toward his startled passengers, and asked:

"Won't SOMEBODY please tell me who won the ball game?"

TRADITIONS, OLD & NEW

Jacob Charles Lesher of 22 K st. nw. observes cannily:

"Old England was always very proud of preserving 'freedom of the seas.' Now Princess Elizabeth refuses to switch to those long skirts, and inaugurates a policy of preserving 'freedom' of the knees.' Good for her."

VITAL STATISTICS

Betty Pond of Vienna, Va., wonders whether I know anybody named John Doe or Mary Smith.

No, I don't. The local telephone book doesn't list a single John Doe, but does carry 49 Mary Smiths.

We also have 17 Ponds, Betty—and in case you're interested, there are 37 Lakes. And one Ocean. He's Myron Ocean of 215 O st. sw.

Grin and Bear It

"I have done everything possible about the high cost of living—I've placed the blame squarely on my political opponent!"

Leonard Lyons

Some Gems of Wisdom From GBS

NEW YORK—Last month I published a report about the financial condition of G. B. Shaw—that he had given away his money. Yesterday I received this letter from Shaw: "I am not destitute; but war taxation leaves me nothing to spare. (Begging-letter writers please note.) Serious authorship does not produce best-sellers. No great play can compete with 'Oklahoma!' during the author's lifetime, though over the centuries, 'Hamlet' leaves the most popular potboiler nowhere. I could not afford to marry until I was past 40. Since then I have made enough; and enough is as good as a feast—G. B. S."

Next Monday night Bob Hope and Jane Russell will do a radio dramatization of "The Outlaw" before a jury of NBC vice presidents and people selected as "Typical Listeners." If the jury decides that the dramatization is not censorable, it will be included in Hope's regular broadcast Tuesday night.

Jonathan Daniels will go to Geneva on a mission for the United Nations . . . Dan Golenpaul, producer of the "Information Please" program, is meeting with James Petrillo on a ruling regarding the musical questions on the quiz show. If Petrillo rules that the cooperative sponsorship of the program requires a high fee for the pianist who plays the test question, a harmonica player will be used in his stead.

Ambassador Stanton Griffis has sent a request to a New York department store for 1000 items to be used as Christmas gifts, and to be shipped to arrive in Warsaw before December 25 . . . Vincent Sheean has been invited to spend two weeks in India, with Gandhi.

Time magazine will devote its next cover to William Green, president of the A. F. of L.

This week, when the theater season goes into full swing with the opening of two musical comedies, the first-night parties will begin. These are supper dances usually given by the authors and composers of the big shows immediately following the opening and are attended by the cast and their friends . . .

Sam H. Harris, who spent almost half a century on Broadway, always refused to give any first-night parties. "The food is free, the drinks are free," was Harris' description. "So they slap you on the back if the show is good, and they slap you on the back if the show is bad."

Lillian Hellman adheres to the custom of playwrights in keeping secret the subject of an unfinished play. When she was asked by a non-pro: "What's your next play about?" she replied: "That question is incompetent, irrelevant and impertinent." . . .

Arthur Gaeth is replacing Leland Stowe in the broadcast sponsored by the United Elec. Workers Union . . . Roger Butterfield is in Kansas City to write a Life Profile on Roy Roberts.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES

CEASE FIRING, BOTH OF YOU! AN AIR CREW IS SUPPOSED TO FUNCTION AS A TEAM. MAY I SUGGEST YOU BOTH CALL OFF THE INTER-TRIBAL WARFARE UNTIL WE REACH INDIA? NOW, LET'S GET THIS SHIP INTO THE AIR.
LATER
EASE OFF THAT SCOWL, CHAZZ. YOU'VE GOT THE WRONG SLANT ON OUR TEMPORARY HOSTESS. THIS KITE CAN USE A BIT OF FEMININE INFLUENCE — EVEN NOW I DETECT THE DOMESTIC SCENT OF APPROACHING HOT COFFEE.
AND I HOPE IT CHOKES YOU!

WAHOO AND STEVE ROPER

MONTY CARLO! KEEP YOUR PAWS OFF THE PRINCESS! WHAT'S THE BIG FAT IDEA, ANYHOW?
SHE WARNED THAT CATTLEMAN NOT TO SPEND THE DOUGH HE WON HERE! I OUGHT TO RIVET HER PRETTY RED LIPS SHUT, JEZEBEL!
LATER—ON THE BOARDWALK!
SORRY, UNK— MY JOINT CLOSES AT MIDNIGHT!
NOW, AH RECKON YUH COULD AFFORD T' WORK OVERTIME FER A $50 ORDER COULDN'T YUH, STRANGER?
SAUNDERS WAGGON
YEAH!— SURE! WHATTA YA WANTA SAY IN TH' HEADLINE?
THANKS! WHOEVER YOU ARE UP THERE! IT'S TAKING LONGER TO DRILL THROUGH THE FLOOR OF THE SQUID'S BACK ROOM THAN I COUNTED ON!

DIXIE DUGAN

THIS PLACE HAS BEEN CLOSED UP FOR SOME TIME NOW— WHO COULD GET IN?
WHO WOULD HAVE A KEY BESIDES YOU?

OZARK IKE

WHAT-TA BONEHEAD! OZARK IKE TRIED T' CATCH TH' BALL WITH HIS SKULL...SO THERE GOES TH' SERIES!
LIKEWISE OUR ONE HUNDRED G'S!
TAKE HIM TO TH' CLUBHOUSE, BOYS...HE'LL BE OKAY.
OKAY?...WHY, TH' KID'LL WISH HE WAS DEAD WHEN HE LEARNS HOW HE LOST TH' SERIES!
BUT WHO ARE THESE CHARACTERS?
DON'T WORRY, BOSS... BEEN WANTIN' T' GET THIS BIRD FOR A LONG TIME!

MARK TRAIL

YOU MEAN YOU CAME ALL THE WAY UP TO "DUCKS UNLIMITED" JUST TO TELL ME ALL ABOUT MARK TRAIL? LOOK, MERIDY...
...HE'S A PHOTOGRAPHER, NOT A DETECTIVE... JUST BECAUSE HE'S A SWELL GUY IS NO REASON HE CAN HANDLE THE HAWKFINGER JOB...THIS ISN'T AN OFFICE FOR LONELY HEARTS ...WE'RE TRYING TO INCREASE THE DUCK SUPPLY!!
IF YOU KNEW MARK TRAIL, YOU WOULDN'T SAY THAT...
...IF THAT'S THE WAY YOU WANT TO PLAY... I'LL PERSONALLY SEE TO IT THAT YOU GET NO MORE OF DAD'S MONEY FOR DUCKS UNLIMITED!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

MAYBE HE'S THE ONE WHO SHOT AT ME!
I SAY...DUBOISE, ARE YOU THERE?
OH!
GIVE ME THAT GUN!
MY WORD!...DUBOISE... HE'S DEAD!...DID YOU...?
I'LL ASK THE QUESTIONS! WHO ARE YOU?
